middle of September.

(Editor's note: Before the editor gets himself into trouble over the use of "crank-type" when referring to the old style telephones, it might be well to emphasize at this point that he was referring to the telephone itself, and not to the telephone operators. Seriously, however, we might add that we have found the operators in Tofield to be most friendly, co-operative and obliging).

Definite date of the clinic as well as its location will be announced officially in the advertising columns of the Sept. 15th issue of The Mercury.

PREVIEW

Purpose of the clinic is to give those interested an opportunity to see how the new dial telephones operate. On display will be a working model of an automatic telephone exchange, latest models of telephones and telephone equipment and the new rural telephones. A demonstration on how to use the latter is scheduled. Visitors will also be shown the proper way to place a long distance call as well as proper dialling methods and phone usage.

Everyone is welcome to attend the clinic, and free coffee and doughnuts will be served.

"New" Co-op 2 years old

The Tofield Co-op will be celebrating the second anniversary of moving into their handsome new store this week, marking the occasion with a storewide sale on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

On Saturday afternoon a giant birthday cake will be cut, and members and friends are invited to drop in for the birthday party. Every visitor will be given a piece of the birthday cake, and coffee will be served in addition.

Members of the board of directors will be on hand for the occasion to assist in the birthday party celebrations, and also to chat with members as they drop in. Business of the co-op has prospered considerably since opening of the new store building, under the management of John Baergen, Mr. Baergen assumed his position nine years ago, in 1955, and the Co-op operation has progressed ever since.

Housed in an attractively modern building, the Co-op's 2,500 square feet of merchandising space cost $20,000 to construct two years ago. Featuring the very latest design in store fixtures, it was built by the construction department of Federated Co-ops Ltd. and opened by Tofield Co-op president Harold Schultz.

The Co-op has had a checkered career in Tofield since the first days in 1917 or 1918. At the same time a group of farmers broke ground for the erection of a store in Ryley, and for a while, a store was operated in both places. Then, in 1919, the Tofield store was moved to Ryley, and the Ryley store was moved to Tofield, and operated in the building now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Francis as a residence.

Under these circumstances the store continued in business until the early thirties, when it was sold to a Coop firm. This was brought about by Johnson Ferguson, who canvassed the country for members who were willing to put up $25 each. The business then moved to the present Tofield Service Garage is now located.

Financial difficulties and poor management forced them out of business.

The business was again revived, with A. P. Moen of Wainwright as the new manager. However, misfortune struck again, as the store was destroyed by fire, with several other businesses on the street in a raging fire which threatened the whole town, and will never be forgotten by the oldtimers. The only things saved from the Co-op Store were one show case and the cash register.

Still not wanting to give up, the Co-op members again re-established on the site of the present new Co-op Store. A note of interest here was that in order to get re-established, $1,200 was borrowed and the name changed to Central Co-operative Stores Ltd.

In the early part of 1945, Mr. Moen resigned from the management, and for about six months, George Abernethy and Jo Nilsen Ingraham (now Mrs. Jo Nilsen) took charge of the store until H. Chandler was hired as manager.

In 1944 the name again was changed to Tofield Co-operative Association with Reg Quigley as manager. It was under his direction that the business moved to the location of the old Model Coop Store. Mr. Quigley continued as manager until ill health forced his retirement in 1952.

Several months of illness in quick succession, over the next few years. They included Mrs. Messrs. McCall, Jackson, Eggert and Nilsen. To this list the Association was almost ready to give up, but in 1955 Johnny Baergen became manager, and the business has never looked back since that time.

OLD SOLDIERS NEVER DIE

Taken July 1st this year, the picture above shows A. B. Clutterham who traveled from Vancouver to join in the celebrations, with Con Simonson, then Legion president standing in front of the Cenotaph. Serving overseas with the Loyal Edmonton Regiment, Mr. Clutterham was badly wounded in the right arm. The citation told by Mr. Simonson was actually presented some years ago and reads: "Awarded to A. B. Clutterham, Tofield (Alberta No. 51) Branch, in recognition of A charter and active member of the Branch and erstwhile Secretary 1930 - 1940." Now at Vancouver, Mr. Clutterham retains warm memories of his Tofield connections.

Blood donor's clinic gains good support

. . . 112 Donors

The Red Cross Blood Donor Mobile Unit visited Tofield on Tuesday, Aug 25th. There were approximately 122 donors and several would-be donors had to be regretfully refused.

The Red Cross would like to thank all who donated and all who helped in any way, such as supplying lunch or serving it, waiting on donors or rest-beds, etc. A special note of appreciation to the men and women of the three Kinsmen Clubs in our district for attending the clinic, as well to the Tofield Juniors, also to Ryley people and to the many delivery workers from the USA who donated while in our town.

As a number of persons have inquired about this matter, the following information may answer some of the questions.

Any person from age 18 to 65 and in good health may donate every four months. The reason for you being unable to donate are: having had a recent illness or surgery, or a transfusion in the past few months, having ever in your lifetime had malaria fever or jaundice. In recent years it has been found that either of these two illnesses render one unable to ever donate again. Besides these the commonest reason is that your blood count is below 85%. While this seems relatively high, it is for your own protection that you do not donate at this time.

CONSTANT NEED

New donors are constantly required as there is a loss of 7-10 a year, due to regular donors having passed the age limit, or moving to other areas. Treatment and surgery in northern Alberta hospitals has increased the use of blood by 37% in the past five years. In 1962, 21,338 pints of blood were issued to the 19 hospitals in the area from Red Deer north to the Arctic Ocean. Thus the "blood bank" in Edmonton requires 105 (pints) donors per week to keep up the supply.

Our hospital in Tofield calls on the blood bank resources for the last six months there has been a drop in donors in the Edmonton area, the average being only 67% per week which means there is insufficient for elective surgery.

Starting this year, Tofield will have two blood donor clinics each year in February and August. It is to be hoped that we can keep up, and increase the number of donors.

How much of a risk?

Searle Bulletin

Why, we wonder, does the daily weather forecast for Western Canada usually insist on stating that there is a "risk" of thundershowers or rain. Risk of hail or frost yes, but generally not of rain.

True the prospect of rain may be very upsetting for those of us who plan a weekend at the lake or on the golf course and culture. There may be times when even the farmer does not welcome a rain, but more often than not, in this western land of ours, moisture is a distinct blessing and the real risk or fear is that it will not rain.

There must be many town and city dwellers, too, who would welcome a rain to refresh their lawns and gardens to say nothing of improving their business or employment prospects, for there are few who are not directly or indirectly affected by the size of the crop and the prosperity of western agriculture.

As we write, much of our farm land is crying out for moisture to enhance this year's prospects and to bring the present crop to maturity. Yet still, we are told, there is a "risk" of rain. Occasionally the risk none changes slightly and there is a "chance" or rain. How much better might it not be if there was simply a "prospect" or a "possibility" of rain and if we were left to decide for ourselves whether the impending downfall was a good thing or a bad thing.

As a New York Times editorial put out recently: "Like it or not, a rainy day is a blessing to earth and everything that lives upon it". We agree.

Overlook the obvious

Several clergymen of the United Church recently stirred up a storm among some church members when they suggested some of "the bad old hymns" should be eliminated from a current revision of the hymnal. The trouble largely seems to lie in the fact that the bad old hymns referred to are among the favorites of large portions of the membership, hymns such as "The Old Rugged Cross" being included.

Warmly supported by many of the lay people, the hymns are reported to be rarely played by organists, or sung by choirs, because they are not good music, they are saccharine in content, and they do not conform to the highest standards of music. Nothing less than the best is a fit offering to God, say these members, in music as in other fields of worship

The trouble seems to lie in their overlooking the historical fact that historically the music of the church has been for the masses, not for the masters. From time to time, in various churches this has been forgotten, almost always with disappointing results. Some years ago a British member of the Anglican Church decided the music of the people had moved away from the music of the church and decided to do something. So he wrote a complete service in various modern jazz idioms, and while it's a bit unseasoned to most people, it certainly offers a lot. Music of today certainly appeals to many denominations, particularly the fundamentalists.

And while no-one ever suggested that Negro spirituals were "good" music, no-one ever suggested they weren't among the most sincere music in any church, either. And look at the way Tin-Pan Alley name singers are joining forces to help religious music . . . it's not the long-hair kind.

There's lots of "good" music in the field of the churches, and some of it is reasonably well known to congregations. But they save it for special occasions, like their go-to-meetin' clothes. The old favorites are saved, like their work-a-day clothes. for work-a-day use

Softer line

Surely all Canadians will welcome the announcement that Prime Minister Pearson has decided to leave the flag vote up to the conscience of each member of parliament, not tied to the certainty of an election if it's defeated. (And as an aside, the importance attached to this decision would seem to indicate how rarely membe rs are given the chance to vote other than as the party dictates.)

It would seem unfortunate, but Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker is probably correct in his assessment that the relief has come too late, that the position of most members has already become too rigid for the relief to achieve much. Be this as it may, let us at least hope the matter is not referred to the electors of the Dominion in a referendum, for surely this cannot help but crystallize even more clearly than now the regional differences of opinion.

Feelings of individual citizens deserve every consideration and respect, but it seems rather out of place for the high command of the Royal Canadian Legion to insist on retention of the Red Ensign, and demand a plebiscite. It's only a couple of years since this group foisted a new device on its own members without so much as a "by-your-leave", and created a bitter — and not forgotten — argument.

It's probably correct from the viewpoint of heredity and tradition that the "new" flag fills the bill better than does the Red Ensign but those things don't just tumble out of the sewing basket over a week-end and suddenly gain acceptance. We doubt if supporters of 'he new flag are as staunch in their support as those who love and revere the old ensign.

Though it probably won't carry much weight in the parliamentary debates on the matter, learned us they would do so a minister.

As for his remembrance in business. A million-dollar-a-year business can be built on strict Christian principles," he says. "We've had our problems

By George!

Let's make this Labour Day weekend the safest ever. It marks an end to the good old summer time and many summertime pleasures.

The Alberta Safety Council has already started the annual September campaign over the Dominion Day holiday to give us some indication of the seriousness of the traffic accident picture. During the July 1st merry making, eight Albertans were killed.

Since the Labour Day weekend is traditionally the last opportunity each year for most families to get away for a fun spree before settling down to the fall and winter routine, the temptation is probably much greater to over-exert themselves.

The unfortunate result is that we attempt to crowd too much into this holiday opportunity, says the Safety Council. Many will press too hard, hurry too much and take too many unnecessary chances

This will make Labour Day a special problem, and a very tough problem from an accident prevention point of view.

Of course safe driving to and from recreational areas can't be over-stressed. The Council suggests: Be sure that all the passengers in your car use seat belts; allow plenty of time for your trip and adjust your speed to traffic, road and weather conditions; obey traffic laws and signs and don't drink before driving; be alert for mistakes of other drivers which could result in a collision.

If you obey these rules, your safety and the safety of others may very well be the Council says.

A & W president will go into the ministry

A looming driver-in restaurant business is helping Richard F. Bolte along his road to the ministry.

He came here from Missoula, Mont., eight years ago and established A & W Drive-Ins of Canada Ltd.

This year, at 33, he retired as president after seeing 116 drive-ins representing a capital investment of about $1,000,000 put into operation between Halifax and Victoria. One of them is located in Camrose

For Mr. Bolte, who now has moved into the presidency and chairmanship of the board, the decision to retire had a purpose from the start.

"I guess I've had the ministry in my mind since high school," he says. "I was interested I could serve the best I could be a free-lance theologian. To be that, I had to have financial independence."

A & W, which operates approximately with each country involved having its own franchise, had its beginnings in California in 1919. The Canadian head office is in Winnipeg.

FOUR YEAR COURSE

Mr. Bolte will study at the Religious Institute of Science of Wind at Los Angeles for four years. He says the course will be non-denominational. A look at all religions and will include studies in the history of the University of Southern California.

Although he has found a home in Pacific Palisades, Calif., the father of three says he will return to Winnipeg four times a year.

Once his studies are completed he will decide what he will do as a minister.

As for his remembrance in business. A million-dollar-a-year business can be built on strict Christian principles," he says. "We've had our problems

Shower fetes recent bride

A delightful shower was held in the United Church basement on Saturday evening of last week in honor of Mrs. Wendell Clark, the former Miss Donna Hardy. About 50 ladies were present to extend good wishes to the bride, who was welcomed and presented with a corsage by Mrs. G. Hall. Mrs. Clark was seated at a lace-covered table decorated with pink and white streamers and model aeroplanes representing her recent honeymoon as an air stewardess and also that of her husband who is a pilot. Her sister Dianna and Mrs. Dianna Reid helped the bride open her gifts after which she graciously thanked her friends remarking that it was nearly eight years since she first left Tofield and it was most gratifying to see so many old friends at her shower. A delicious lunch was served and enjoyed by all.

IN MEMORIAM

POST. In loving memory of a dear father, Nick Post, who passed away August 22, 1962.

Within our hearts he liveth still

EATON. In loving memory of our loving husband and father, Orville Richard Eaton, who passed away on September 28, 1956.

Six long years have passed and gone
Since you left us here alone;
His memory is as dear today
As it was the day he passed away
We loved you, but God loved you best
Sleep on, dear Owen, and take your rest
In our hearts your memory lingers sweet
Dearly loved, kind and true;
There is not a day that Owen
That we not think of you;
Until memory fades and life departs
You'll live forever in our hearts.

—Ever remembered by your loving wife, Ellen; two sons and their families, Walter and Evelyn Eaton and Children, Leroy and Shirley Eaton and Family, and daughter, Rita and Lionel Chalifoux and Daughters. 32c

THANKS
CARDS OF

Someone in the hospital, remembered, "It takes two nurses to be sure a patient is one the hospital and the other the patient himself. And I wish to extend my thanks to an important third - you, my friends. For one's friends surely contribute greatly to one's recovery by their wonderful cards and other expressions of interest. But no mind can give the proper credit to The One who cares all the time.

I would like to thank all my friends and neighbors for the "Jack's Thoughts" of support that was given me. Your thoughtfulness will be long remembered. The hospital visits by many of you were very much appreciated, also the cards and "get well" wishes.
Thanks again to all.

YOU ARE THE DETECTIVE

When you enter the tastefully furnished apartment of 17-year wealthy young playwright, David Edwards, you immediately see his body sprawled on the floor under the huge single oak beam that runs across the room. There is a length of thin rope still loosely knotted around his neck, and the contorted face and protruding tongue bear mute testimony to his death by strangulation. After studying the strong, bare beam overhead for a minute then the contorted body lying next to the body you turn to the young man who phoned you of the tragedy the victim's younger brother, Donald.

"I already think" exclaims the slim, fresh-looking young man. "I hadn't seen David for more than three years but just arrived in town today and came to his apartment to see him and to congratulate him on his remarkable success in playwriting. I knocked on the door of the apartment several times, and when there was no answer I tried the knob on the door and it swung open, and there was David hanging from the beam, that horrible expression on his face! I was so nervous that I couldn't move for a minute . . . then I climbed up on that chair to cut the rope, but found a note in his hand addressed to . . . and I untied the knot around his neck and let him down easily to the floor. It didn't take much as expiration to tell me that he was beyond any hope of resuscitation . . . so then I phoned you."

The young man brings out a cigarette, rolls it nervously in the thin white fingers of one hand, then finally punches it quickly between his colorless lips lights it with a flick of a silver lighter, and puffs spasmodically at it.

You gaze down at the sturdy, muscular looking body of David Edmonds remembering his college days exploits on the football field as a battering, bruising fullback and you can't help shaking your head sadly over the sudden and tragic ending of his success and promising, young career here in full view. I think that somewhere you got behind him, sliding him by surprise, and with that rope wrapped around his neck, you strangled him and then set up this phony suicide story!"

Why do you suspect Donald Edmonds of having killed his brother?

SOLUTION

Usually a hanging victim is CUT down this being much faster and easier. A body so heavy as that of David Edmonds, ex - football player would make the job of lowering and untying the rope extremely difficult and in fact almost impossible for a frail-looking woman such as Donald Edmonds.

MacDuff Ottawa report

Fatted calf troubles

OTTAWA. Forty years ago the "cattle boat" was an important part of Canada's merchant marine. Ships fitted with decks of stalls left Montreal with full cargoes of beef cattle bound for Liverpool where they picked up whatever cargo was available for the return voyage.

The trade stopped abruptly in the early 1930's when the pound sterling was devalued and the last Canadian shipper with his cattle already on the high seas took a staggering loss.

During World War II beef shipments to Britain were revived, but this time in the form of carcasses. It trickled out soon after the war due to a growing beef consumption in Canada and a sharp difference between European and Canadian tastes. The British consumer is far less concerned with the tenderness of his beef and has made less use for the product of well fattened beef cattle.

NEW TRY

Last month, with an acute shortage of beef in Britain resulting from last year's Argentine drought, Canada Packers tried out a sample shipment of beef on the Smithfield market in London. The experiment, as the Company probably realized, was doomed to failure. Its things farmers like best, weighing more than the shipping costs and brokerage fees. The price for top quality Scottish beef on the Smithfield market was precisely the same as the price for defrosted beef cuts—parts of a comparable grade—of Calgary.

For Canada's cattle raising and beef industries the CP experiment holds a valuable lesson. For some time to come it appears likely that the main interest of North American beef cattle and beef will be confined to the North American continent. For Canada there is a very special reason that so far as possible cattle raising in this country should be geared to Canadian beef demand.

REVERSE FLOW

This at least is the conclusion of experts in the Federal Department of Agriculture who have been making a special study of the border cattle movement over the past few months when Canada was enjoying the unusual sight of U.S. cattle moving north across the border.

The word "reaping" might not be an argument in some quarters. There was a good deal of concern over this American import but it should depress Canadian prices. To attract imports of cattle across the border the Toronto price, it is estimated, must be at least $4.25 per cwt above Chicago. This condition existed in April, May and into June. By June 30, 27,000 head had crossed the border.

SHORT LIVED

The reason, however, was not a glut in the United States where supplies of beef cattle were only one to two per cent above the previous year. It was the result of small marketings and high prices here, a situation which could not last indefinitely, regardless of the size of imports. Canadian prices are inevitably tied to Chicago. The differential today has dropped to about $2 per cwt at the end of the year. It is expected that Canada will soon be a large exporter of beef cattle.

This continues to be a decree of nature so long as cold hard winters in Canada make us non-competitive with the United States in production of fattened beef carcasses. It is the reason that so little has been heard in Canada of the bill now running its course in Congress to restrict imports of beef to the levels of low import years, 1958-63. Live cattle are not affected and so long as Canada continues to have this outlet for its surplus cattle, it is all we can ask. Virtually the only beef shipped across the border is for use in processing sausages or other beef products.

The beef import bill, if it passes Congress, is more than likely to get a presidential veto. If it does not, the Canadian product will be a matter of principle only.

Expect 60 at junior college

Somewhere in the neighborhood of 60 pupils is expected to register at Camrose Lutheran Junior College this fall, Dr. Dan Lee told The Canadian last weekend. "Naturally, this will depend largely on the results of some of the supplementals written this week", said Dr. Lee.

Growth in registrations at the college has been steady but not spectacular so that development has proceeded in an orderly way. Registrations this year will be held Sept. 21 and 22, with classes swinging into action on the 23rd.

It is expected the new dormitory will be ready for use prior to the opening of the junior college and it will be used strictly by the university pupils. Several features of its design have been planned with university needs in mind, and college authorities feel this will be a major asset in development of a junior college program and junior college atmosphere. The convocation centre is also rapidly taking shape, and will play a major role in college and junior college scheduling.

Heads weekly papers

Weekly newspapers of Canada, numbering well over 800, today elected Ken Patrige of The Tofield Mercury as their president for the coming year. The election was held at the annual convention, which is being held in Toronto at the Royal York Hotel. Sessions run until Friday.

Mr Patrige has been associated with The Camrose Canadian ever since he moved there in 1947 following discharge from the RCAF. Over that period he has been in partnership with R. L. King, Fred King, Chuck MacLean and George Meyer at various periods. Prior to assuming he had served as a correspondent for some time for The Regina Leader-Post, and was at one time with the public relations branch of the Saskatchewan government.

His association with The Mercury dates back two and a half years, when together with Geo Meyer of the Vermilion Standard, the newspaper was purchased from CMT Patterson, when he moved to Benton Harbor, Michigan immediately on joining The Canadian he became interested in association activities and was quickly named to an executive post. In 1958, he was appointed secretary-treasurer for the Alberta division and held this post for ten years, vacating it to assume the chair as president in 1962.

The same year he was named second vice-president of the national body, and served as first vice-president this past year. His new office will bring him into contact with weekly publishers from Coast to Coast, and with several fields allied to the publishing field.

Plans have already been made to hold next year's national convention in Edmonton, where Jack Parry of The Rimbey Record will be convention chairman. Mr. Patrige will naturally be presiding at these sessions.

Mrs. Patrige and Barbara accompanied Mr Patrige to Toronto and are attending the convention with him. One of his first duties will be a short sidetrip to Niagara Falls tomorrow after which they plan to take a brief holiday en route back to Camrose

Teamwork is stressed in all phases of Junior Forest Warden's training. It is in evidence on the two rope bridge at the Junior Lake Camp. One misstep could send the entire group plunging into the muskeg below. The bridge is one of 12 obstacles on the camp's half mile obstacle course. The course is run daily, with timed competitions at the end of each two-day camp. Guest Editorial— NATO: a pervasive presence

Christian Science Monitor

Barely has so little hysteria been generated by conditions making for big headlines as by the Turkish and the Greek withdrawals of military forces from NATO — withdrawals which were soon repaired.

For the Western Alliance, accustomed to the absence of French contingents during years of war in Algeria, the few days in which it had to forgo the services of Turkish and Greek forces because of the Cyprus struggle seem to have brought gain rather than loss.

NATO is reassured by this sign that the Cyprus struggle can avoid becoming a protracted military test between two of its members. It is better to have the withdrawals over than hanging like a threat on the future.

In the midst of a sharp East-West crisis it is doubtful that the Cyprus struggle could have affected NATO forces in the way it did, even temporarily. Both Greece and Turkey have creditable records as alliance members.

Yet the withdrawals have their admonitory side. They are reminders that NATO consultation is far from being the force for peace which it could be if the dreams of such men as Halvard Lange of Norway and Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium could come true.

Indeed it might be said that the withdrawals were needed reminders for many people that NATO exists.

In these days of overbalancing economic prosperity it is easy to forget that NATO had to provide a political-military basis of security before the chaos and want of the early postwar years were overcome. Without that no Common Market, no French, West German, Italian or small nation revivals would have been possible.

NATO not only exists. It is supported by many international leaders thinking creatively toward a more effective future for it. The Greek-Turkish actions focus on the Western defense system at a time when important unofficial discussions are going on toward strengthening the Atlantic partnership. The summer issue of the Atlantic Community Quarterly, for example, brings into one moderate-sized volume the views of President Johnson, Belgian Foreign Minister Spaak, former Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, former NATO Supreme Commander in Europe, Gen. Lauris Norstad, Britain's Lord Gladwyn, former Ambassador to NATO Randolph Burgess, and a number of other eminent workers in the alliance field.

Much of their discussion centers round the possibility of strengthening the political side of NATO, in order that its military character can remain a force not for war but for peace.

As one notes the alliance's strength which some of these authorities describe, it is clear that in the Greek-Turkish crisis NATO has played a big background role, despite Premier Khrushchev's warnings against NATO intervention." The very fact of membership by Greece and Turkey has given them security in which to resist undue pressures from Moscow and an interest in keeping war out of the Mediterranean.

They know why Moscow takes every opportunity to sow distrust of NATO and to try to break it up: It marshals two and a half times the economic power of the whole Communist world. Its members have five million men under arms and key reserves to draw on. It includes 500,000,000 people within its borders, whose economic production has doubled in the 15 years in which it has been in existence.

NATO is, in a word, a tremendous success story, although so far still from realizing its potential value, so constantly under attack, even from within, that it often seems about to disappear. Neither the Greeks nor the Turks want it to disappear. That is one reason their forces have been returned to it almost before their absence could be noticed.

Labor Day question

Historically, Labor Day has been a holiday set aside to draw attention to the laborer, the working man or woman in our community and to the contribution made by him to the nation's wellbeing and prosperity.

This year it would seem the course of prudence would dictate that we should spend the day pondering instead the contribution being made by cybernetics and automation, and to the place of the laborer in the future. Not just one day, but many hours are needed for this study because the problem is obviously one of the most complicated our nation has ever faced, with ramifications almost too broad to imagine. For the sake of today's children, however, if not today's workers, our best minds must be augmented by the Joe Doakes minds in an effort to come up with new approaches to the problems. Who knows, the notion that comes from the mind of a Joe Doakes may start things rolling towards the surest solution

Real values

Most people face the sternest realities of life only very infrequently, and carry on from day to day happily unrelieved from distress of any serious nature. It's probably one of the mercies provided by a gracious Creator which finds a variety of ways of sheltering us from pain too hard to bear.

The fact we're accustomed to being [illegible] tends to illusion our sense of values. It dulls our appreciation of the people who really contribute to our well-being, and who matter when the chips are down.

All of this was brought to mind by a personal disaster last week which catapulted our family into the emergency ward at the local hospital, completely reliant on the skills and concerns of the local physicians and nursing staffs. Apart entirely from the distress involved, it's an experience that increases the warmest admiration and appreciation for a group of people we have always known to be skilled and competent, but who show up even more clearly as a special blessing for people of this district. From physician to ward aid, they're all personally and intensely interested, helpful, solicitous and concerned.

When the chips are down in life, these are important people to have in the community

By George!

Our family has just returned from a most enjoyable one-week holiday of swimming, hiking and golfing at Fairmont Hot Springs, just south of Radium, B.C.

This holiday report was recommended to us by a neighbor, Joe Thygesen. It's unnatural that Joe should recommend this particular spot, not only because he has spent many happy leisure hours there himself, but because the place is owned and operated by his brother-in-law, Walter Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wilder.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilder purchased the resort only about six years ago, but the number of improvements and additions they have made in that relatively short period of time has made Fairmont one of the most popular holiday spots in British Columbia. And it seems to be a favorite for a number of Albertans, too, for on any given evening Alberta license plates during the week we were there along with several from all over Canada and the U.S.

To attractions at the resort is, of course, the warm swimming pool, with its mineral baths. Even though the weather wasn't the best during our visit to Fairmont we found the swimming was still high. The two pools offer different water temperatures. One is about 85 or 90 degrees Fahrenheit for enjoyable all-morning, while the other, a smaller pool opened just this year by the Wilders has slightly warmer water for those who "like to bake" and soak. Then there are mineral baths which are still higher water temperatures for any who choose to "boil" themselves in the hot mineral water.

The Wilders offer a variety of extras from the "chuck" for those who like to rough it, to party activities, barbecues and chalets. Besides these, there is plenty of accommodation for trailers and tents in two large campgrounds.

As far as family fun is concerned, we would have to say that this was our best holiday yet and it wouldn't require for a minute to recommend this resort to anyone planning a family holiday.

LIFE FOREVER is theory advanced by Robert C. Ettinger of Detroit...he says people should be put in deep freeze at death so they can then be restored to life at some future date, when science has conquered death.—PNS Photo.

Mrs. Pearl E. Lehman passes at Tofield hospital

Pearl Ellen Lehman, daughter of Wladislaw and Amanda (Bender) Roth, was born at Minden, Nebraska, June 20, 1894. She died of cancer at Tofield Hospital, August 31, 1964, aged 70 years 1 month, 29 days. In 1918 she moved with her family to Tofield. On November 25, 1922, she was married to Joseph W. Lehman who survives. Also surviving are five children: one daughter, Hilda (Mrs. Fred Parker), Edmonton, and four sons, Earl of Edmonton, Harley of Tofield, Bernice of Edmonton, Larry of Ryley and 13 grandchildren, also three brothers, Dave of Duchess, Lee of Tofield, and Farl of Iowa, and two sisters, Lydia (Mrs. John Bauer) of Iowa and Anna (Mrs. Ben Bauer) of Nebraska. She also received her in death by her Saviour and became a member of the Mennonite Church remaining faithful until death. We feel that the Lord was merciful in sparing her the [illegible] pain so often accompanying this disease. She suffered but one week. Now she is free from all pain and suffering. She left just where the battle will soon be raging in its most fierce form. But she is the only one we envy. Those left behind have a hard battle to fight. We long for her presence. But the race may then be still.

The family desires to thank all those who have expressed their sympathy in many ways.

The funeral service was held at Salem Mennonite Church on Wednesday, Aug. 26 at 2 p.m., with Mr. Harold Buettger and Mr. Milo Shantz officiating. Order of service was as follows "The Love of God"—Quartette; scripture reading, Corinthians 15; "Rock of Ages"—Solo; obituary by Pastor H. Buettger; "Jesus While Our Hearts Are Bleeding"—Duet; scripture reading and prayer by Milo Buttzman, trio; "Wings of a Dove"; message by Pastor H. Buettger; "Safe in the Arms of Jesus"—Duet; "Abiding" (4 songs) "Sweet By and By"; "Shall We Meet Beyond the River".

Interment was in the Salem Mennonite Cemetery. Pallbearers were "Pearl's Children" in the Lord" were Mrs. Bill Gaede; Mrs. Reginald and Sylvia; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hillerud.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to take this opportunity to thank all our friends and neighbors who so kindly helped us in our recent bereavement. A special thanks for all the expressions of sympathy and thoughtfulness shown. — Joseph Lehman and Family. (1-2nc)

Former district rector visits Tofield friends

Archdeacon F. A. Tuckaberry was a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Robinson last Thursday afternoon and evening. It will be remembered by many that he was a faithful clergyman in the Anglican diocese of Edmonton for approximately 45 years. He also worked as secretary-treasurer and travelling archdeacon of the synod office from 1930 to 1956. Previous to that, he served in several parishes in Edmonton being rector of St. Peter's from 1924 to 1930, after which he was transferred to St. Michael's and All Angels. Until Edmonton received its present bishop, he was Administrator pro-tempore between Tofield, Viking and Rivina will remember the many services they enjoyed under his leadership during reminiscing, it was discovered that it was 18 years since he last preached in Tofield.

In a few days Mr Tuckaberry hopes to visit the area around Bracebridge Ontario, to see again the district where he lived as a boy.

IN MEMORIAM

WIDEMAN In loving memory of Floyd Wideman who passed away September 2, 1962

His is gone but not forgotten,
And we dearly wonder why
In our lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of him are always nearby.

Days of sadness will come o'er us all
Friends may think the wound is healed
But they little know the sorrow
That lies within the heart concealed.

when he left a condition of general break-up coming Only a few days ago he was attacked with a severe cold which developed seriously and attended fatally. He was one of a very few in the Beaver Lake district who had reached the ripe old age of the eighties, is being 82 years of age. Just a week or so ago he received a visit from a brother whom he had not seen for over 18 years and who has lived northwest of Edmonton.

Having lived as he did many years in the west, in the early time when the H.B. Co. employees were the only white men in the country, Mr. Rowland always had a fund of stories at his tongue's end to tell about the remarkable things that happened in those days. Wonderful it must have been to him to watch the development which has taken place in the last decades in the march of progress.

Deceased leaves a sorrowing widow, two sons and two daughters to mourn his demise. The daughters are Mrs. E. Pruden and Mrs. J. Logan, and the sons are Messrs. Wm. Rowland Jr. and Stanley Rowland, all of whom live around Beaver Lake.

The funeral which was one of the largest ever seen in the Beaver Lake district and which testified to the great respect that the deceased held in the community, took place from the family residence, one mile west of Tofield, to St. James the Apostle cemetery at 1 p.m. last Tuesday, Rev. A. G. A. Ratsner, curate in charge of the Anglican church, of which the deceased was a member, conducting the obsequies.

The late Mr. Rowland was born in 1882 at Cumberland near Lake Winnipeg and spent most of his life in the west. In the early days he held an important position with the H.B. Co., traversing the north country between Fort Churchill on Hudson's Bay and Chipewyan in charge of shipments of fur company.

Several brothers and sisters survive him. These are Fred and Alex. Rowland, who live at Battleford; John, who lives at St. Albert; Mrs. Kenneth McDonald and Mrs. John Sinclair of Edmonton, and Mrs. Cain Fraser of Fort Chipewyan.

INDIAN TRADING— PAST AND PRESENT

The old land marks are fast disappearing one by one The converting links of Nah-Yas long ago are getting fewer and fewer as each year claims its inevitable harvest

At Beaver Lake lives one of the genuine "Old Timers" William Rowland, who for many years in 1880 to 1920, and even before that held the important post of special trader and interpreter to the great, war-like tribe of Black-feet in the service of the mighty H.B. Co.

Living, as we do now, in peaceful and Sunny Alberta, At ease with wireless, telephone and telegraphs at our command, under the paternal care of a government in other words, the R.N.W.M.P., we cannot realize how important an office was that held by Mr. Rowland.

Not only between the great company and the Indian tribes did Mr. Rowland act as intermediary but also between the Crees and Blackfeet, it was his duty and a difficult one, to see that there was no breach of faith between these hostiles, at last within the horizon of the H.B. Co.'s immediate influence and forts to so manage the periodical visits of these Indians that they did not encounter each other near the fort, and as far as possible, without the knowledge of the other tribe.

Mr Rowland has seen some mighty big feats' around Edmonton fort during the days the pemmican trading was done. Could he be induced to tell a few of his experiences with some of the wild Indians, some of the curls would straighten out and the blood curdle in our veins.

The times and missionaries have changed and not the best of the reception chiefs not only in name. They lead the power of life and death at their slightest call Old Chief Mask-ke-po-toon of the Crees and Chief Sapoo-mak-kwon among the Blackfeet had and frequently were obliged to use their power in maintaining their dignity Both these chiefs were friendly to the whites but were "at daggers drawn" with each other as far back as the writer's memory goes

In the end the Cree chief lost his life at the hands of a few unruly Blackfeet while on his way to "patch up a Peace" and "smoke a pipe" with the head of the Blackfeet Sapoo-mak-ke-wa was horrified at the action of his treacherous subjects and dealt out summary justice to them

Having called a great council he asked the bearers of the scalp of the Cree Chief to stand forth, which they proudly and promptly did, and as he received the scalp from them with his own hand Chief Sapoo-mak-kwon commahowked both of the murderers

These are events which happened in the days when Mr. Wm. Rowland was a young man and held in he several to none in dealing with and meeting the Indians.

CENTENNIAL 1967

In regards to the Centennial 1967 the secretreas. reported that he had as directed by the motion 371 61 reierred the suggestion made at the July 30 meeting as to the division of the County's Centennial Grant to Mr. D. A. Hodgson, centennial officer. Mr. Hodgson on the date of July 31st had replied that he is pleased to report that the County Council had decided to allocate the centennial grant plus the County's contribution to the town, villages and hamlets within its boundaries. Later Mr. Rollens had called at the County office and had discussed the matter with the sec-treas. Crs. Johnston and Dorin stated that the residents in the hamlets of Kinsella and Bruce would not be at all satisfied if their proposition of the centennial grant was allocated to other areas. The sec-treas. stated that he had not had the time to as suggested at the July meeting refer the matter to the residents of the County by way of the weekly newspapers but that he hoped to be able to do so in a week or two.

It was moved and carried that the matter of the Centennial 1967 be tabled until a later meeting.

The application forms required in accordance with Section 3 of the Prairie Farm Assistance Act and Section 2 of the regulations were referred to the Council. It was moved and carried unanimously, that the estimated yield in all townships within the County be reported as below 8 bushels per acre.

The sec-treas reported that the director of tax recovery, department of municipal affairs, had inquired whether Mr. J. E. Currie of Viking had satisfactorily taken care of the taxes owing on the land that he controls. In the opinion of the director should Mr. Currie have failed to pay the taxes no further consideration could be extended to him; this would leave the Council free to dispose of the land. It was moved and carried that nothing will be done for this year and that the matter be left over until early in that information be accepted and the letter from the director of tax recovery received and filed.

It was moved and carried unanimously that ledge authorization concerning the hydrant located WSW 14-48-18 W. 4th be received and filed.

Cr. Weatherell reported that an animal had been impounded in the pound kept by Campbell Stuart on N.W. 21-52-19-4th and that the impounder had claimed damages. Although no written complaint had been submitted to the County office it was decided that a committee should be appointed to investigate the complaint, and it was moved and carried unanimously that Crs. Weatherell and Wagstaff be appointed the committee to investigate the pound complaint in question.

The road foreman J. W. Peck attended the meeting at this time and the matter of the power poles on the Round Hill road was discussed and the reeve in reminding his main-tist that several the poles was pointed out to him. The road construction program was discussed with Mr. Peck and it was decided that the public works committee check on the progress at the end of August and if necessary arrange for contractor to assist in completing the construction program for the year.

The committee watched the demonstration of the TS 14 Euclid Scraper after hawk and then received in the Council room. The pros and cons of the merits of this equipment were fully discussed and it was compared with other scrapers and, in the opinion of the Council, this machine was the most satisfactory. It was moved and carried unanimously that we arrange to rent the TS 14 Euclid scraper for the balance of the year with the intention of purchasing it in 1965 at a total price of $63 656.00 with the rental at $16.00 per operating hour, being applied on the purchase price.

Tofield Community League commences fall activities

The Tofield Community League opened its fall activities with the regular September meeting with 16 members present and President John Baergen in the chair.

Since the league's treasurer, Ralph Garrie, has left Tofield Hans Christensen was appointed to the office of treasurer for the remainder of the year. It was decided that a letter of thanks should be sent to Mr. Garrie in appreciation of his service to the league. Since Mr. Garrie had also been the league's representative on the Scout committee a replacement for him will be appointed later by the executive.

It was decided that a sign bearing the words "Tofield Community Centre" be obtained for the hall.

To raise money with which to conduct the league's activities, a Thanksgiving bingo for October 7th was planned, and a community auction for October 17th was decided on.

J. Whyte reported that the Family Buck Night sponsored by the theatre committee had proved successful and would be repeated.

It was reported that the league had received $100 for the July 1st celebration.

Plans for Tofield's participation in Canada's Centennial celebration will be discussed at the next meeting.

Contributed by Mrs. M. Harland

Due to an oversight last week, The Mercury neglected to mention the name of the person who donated the article on a Tofield oldtimer to the Tofield Historical Society.

The article, as it appeared in The Tofield Standard of 1907, was contributed by Mrs. Maycie Norland. It was a letter to the editor of The Standard, signed by "East Trebla".

By George!

This is the time of year for all clubs, lodges and other organizations to launch a new season of activities, and it usually means that people who had a lot of time to spare during the summer months will find themselves wrapped up once again with executive meetings, regular group meetings, and other activities connected with organizing.

Then there is the opening of school, too, which tends to get the executive of the hard-pressed family life back on a straight-ed schedule, and a round of routine.

It appears that everyone will be busy for the next few days with the exception of the farmers. Rain, rain, and more rain has brought the harvest to a dead stop. Perhaps it's still a little early for the men of the soil to worry about their crops, but too often in the past they have seen autumns when they just couldn't get into their fields, and the crops were not harvested until the following spring. Let's hope the weather soon breaks, and gives our agricultural friends the break they need.

And still on the subject of fall activities, the Alberta Weekly Newspapers Association will be more or less winding up its year of activities as its members gather at the Macdonald Hotel in Edmonton for their annual convention Thursday, Friday and Saturday this week. We look forward to this event each year, for it's always a pleasure to meet and talk with fellows whose weekly-day world is so similar to our own, and with whom we can share our problems as well as the pleasures one enjoys in newspapering.

And that is about enough "rambling" for this week!

Degrading, if true

We've heard stories about RCMP employment recently which certainly shouldn't be true, but seem substantially to be the same. In two communities, the reports say, widely separated, but both employing RCMP officers for local patrol work, the orders seem to be to bring in enough speeding tourists to pay for the police operation. "Fines" of up to $50 have been "levied" by the constables on the basis of a ticket only, with no appearance before a judge, and only the promise of long, inconvenient delay if a court appearance is insisted upon.

When no endorsement is made on the driver's license, (and indeed none could be, under these circumstances) and when rude, or threatening behavior is accompanied with evident obstructionism, there is only one net result, which is to lower respect both for the RCMP and for the law. Even when motorists are convinced they were not guilty, they realize the odds are loaded against them, they cannot afford the time lost on a busy holiday, and they feel they're being forced to pay tribute.

In our experience, most RCMP men have been pretty decent types, and this sort of behavior would be abhorrent. But they're also good soldiers, and if these are their orders, they'll do the job they're assigned to. This was never the intent or the spirit of providing RCMP staff for these posts, however, and it should be stopped before the whole force loses face through odious local practice.

Heartening sign

Recent announcement that British Columbia district court judges will be empowered to deal with divorce cases is a heartening step, even if it is only a small one

Naturally, the province has had the right to deal with divorce cases for years, and is only now simplifying the mechanical method for handling the problem. The fact it has been given some consideration, though, indicates attention being focussed on the subject. It gives rise to the hope that slowly, but surely, too, there may be some change in our national approach to the subject, extending the grounds on which divorce can be sought and gained

It is absolutely appalling that years of abuse, drunkenness, abandonment, neglect or even bestiality cannot be compared with even a few minutes of infidelity, particularly when this is frequently the outgrowth of the drudgery which in itself is not considered grounds

Modern Etiquette ...

Q. Is it still considered necessary or proper that a woman speak first when meeting a man on the street?

A. No. In fact, it is more usual for the man to smile and give the woman an indication that he has recognized her so that she may then bow to him. This is particularly true in business contacts where it may be hard for a woman to remember all the men she meets during a busy week.

Q. What should an usher at a wedding do when several woman guests arrive simultaneously, and the other ushers are already occupied?

A. He offers his arm to the oldest woman guest, and the others follow them to the appropriate seats.

Q. When is the proper moment for a dinner guest to open his napkin and place it on his lap?

A. Only when the hostess takes up her napkin.

Q. What is the proper manner of holding the coffee or tea cup?

A. The handle of the cup should be held firmly between thumb and fingers, not hooked through with the index finger. And, when holding the cup, watch your little finger that it doesn't get crooked out in an affected pose. Keep it in close with your other fingers.

Q. If a dinner guest sandwich seems too big and unwieldy to handle with the fingers, isn't it all right to eat it with the knife and fork?

A. No; this type of sandwich must be picked up. Only on the open-faced ones do you use your knife and fork.

Q. I received a number of gifts at a birthday party recently, and I thanked each donor personally at the party. Is it also necessary that I write each one a thank-you note?

A. No.

District farmer visits homeland

... (Mrs. J. Knudson) ...

PALMER - EARLING. Sept. 6th This summer Hans Huseby, of this district, returned to Norway, the land of his birth, at the age of 86 years, to retrace old paths of his childhood, and to see the modern ways there now.

Mr. Huseby was 25 years old when he left Norway in 1902. After homesteading and farming here for about eight years, Mr Huseby, his wife and three children, returned to their native land the first time in 1914, later in 1924, 1934, 1937, 1962 and again in June for a stay of six months.

Norway is enjoying a very high standard of living, and the people are content and happy. Three-fourths of the people speak good English, as it is compulsory in schools there.

Mr. Huseby visited many points of interest while in Norway including the Canadian Embassy, where Chester Ronning was high commissioner before his appointment to India. Mr. Ronning had visited Oslen route to Canada, just previous to Mr. Huseby's visit there.

At Oslo, he visited Mrs. E. Westby, a former Palmerite, and also Mrs. Maren Grosle, the latter being a sister of Mrs. Haaken Stenerud of Camrose. Mrs Grosle was a visitor here last year.

KHRUSHCHEV VISITS NORWAY

While in Oslo, Premier Khrushchev of Russia came to the hotel in his own boat with 52 passengers including his wife his three daughters and staff members, who spent three weeks in the Scandinavian countries, including Norway.

Mr. Huseby visited the three Huseby farms in the Spydeburg area and attended services at the church where he was confirmed.

On returning home, Mr. Huseby remarked he was not idle during his stay in the Old Country and is eager to return there again soon.

"OUR ALBERTA HERITAGE"

TWELVE FOOT DAVIS

The top of a high Peace River hill is an unusual place for a grave. But Twelve Foot Davis, who rests there, was an unusual man. In reality, this early Albertan was hardly five feet tall. He got his nickname in the gold rush, digging a fortune from a tiny twelve foot strip claim that other prospectors ignored. But that's not all. Twelve Foot Davis was one of the first to open a string of trading posts in Alberta. While doing so, he proved his strength by trekking miles through rugged bush with two hundred pounds of furs on his back. Then he opened his cabin to the sick, the hungry and the discouraged. In the space of a few years he made - and gave away - a fortune, Twelve Foot Davis was a rough cut man, unlettered and small in stature. Yet in independence, enterprise and generosity he was twelve feet tall, a true pioneer of OUR ALBERTA.

This is an example of the stories of enterprise and courage in Calgary Power's new publication "Our Alberta Heritage". Mail coupon for your free copy.

Beaver county asks for assistance in drainage

A delegation from the County of Beaver, including Reeve E. Ingmundson, ratepayers from both the Counties of Beaver and Camrose, and Allen Strome of the Water Resources Board, Edmonton, appeared before the Friday meeting of the Council of the County of Camrose to ask for the Camrose county's assistance in constructing a drainage to alleviate a flooding problem in the County of Beaver and about five sections in the northeastern part of the County of Camrose. The County of Camrose is involved, the delegates said, in that the water flows from Camrose county north into Beaver.

It was the suggestion of Mr. Strome that the counties pay 25 per cent each of the cost of the project, and the delegates said that the farmers affected already had formed an association to help bear the cost, and that the County of Beaver farmers had agreed to pay $80.00 toward the project. Camrose county residents indicated willingness to contribute to the same extent.

Estimated cost of the ditching is $7,500, with the provincial government to pay half.

Delegation members assured the Camrose county council that all easements for the ditch have been obtained.

The Camrose council spent a few minutes discussing the plan after the delegates had left, and decided to offer to match the ratepayers involved dollar for dollar towards their share of the cost of the ditch, up to a maximum of 1,000.

A special message to all parents of boys and girls now in high school

You can guarantee your youngster's College Education in partnership with "MY BANK" at the sign of the Blue M

BANK OF MONTREAL

UNIVERSITY EDUCATION PROGRAMME

A comprehensive, life-insured plan for financing a college education for boys and girls now in high school

If you are like most parents with children in high school, you are probably wondering how you are going to meet the costs of financing your youngster's college education. To help parents solve this problem, the Bank of Montreal has introduced its University Education Programme—the first life-insured plan of its kind in Canada.

Under this comprehensive programme, parents, guardians and sponsors of high-school students can spread the cost of a university education over periods of up to nine years, thus keeping monthly payments to amounts they can afford without hardship. And the cost to the parent is only a fraction of the interest paid on a straight loan programme.

VARIANTS OF THE PLAN

Several optional plans are available under the programme, and these vary as to the number of years in which the parent wishes to make monthly payments, as well as to the amount required annually for university expenses. Plans are based on objectives ranging from $1,000 to $6,000 payable to the parent in four annual instalments.

Here is an example of how one of the basic plans can be varied to suit your needs:

OPTIONS	OBJECTIVE: $4,000 To be paid to the parent in four annual amounts of $1,000 each
	TOTAL PAYMENTS MONTHLY PAYMENT	PERIOD OF TIME PAYMENTS NEED
Plan A	$49.53	7 years
Plan B	42.76	8 years
Plan C	37.56	9 years
		2 years [illegible]
		3 years [illegible]
		4 years [illegible]

HOW THE PROGRAMME WORKS

Under the basic plan, the parent agrees to make monthly payments to the Bank starting, say, two years before the student enters university, and terminating one year after graduation. In return, the parent receives an annual sum from the Bank at the start of each of the four university years.

LIFE INSURANCE FEATURE

If the parent concerned should die after the start of the programme, the funds for education specified in the agreement will be advanced by the Bank each year without any further payments being made by the family or the estate.

HOW TO JOIN THE PROGRAMME

See the people at your neighbourhood B of M branch. You will receive a warm welcome from a staff who will be pleased to give you further details and to help you select a plan suited to your needs. Ask for your copy of the Bank of Montreal University Education Programme folder.

P.S. If you need help in financing a student already in University — or planning to register this year — talk to your B of M Manager. Chances are he can arrange a tuition loan with extended payments adapted to your circumstances.

Waterfowl bag limits unchanged in Alberta

Waterfowl bag and possession limits are relatively unchanged in Alberta this year according to the 1964 Migratory Bird Regulations, details of which were released last week by the Canadian Wildlife Service, Department of Northern Affairs and National Resources.

Bag and possession limits for ducks remain at five and ten, excepting mallard ducks, for which the limits are four and eight. The bag limit for geese is five, of which not more than three may be white-fronted geese, and the possession limit is ten, of which not more than six may be white-fronted geese. Other bag and possession limits are five and ten for rails, coots and gallinules, and eight for Wilson's snipe.

The two-year closed season on ruddy duck and redhead ducks has improved the population levels to some extent, and a limited harvest will be allowed this year. Two of these birds may now be included in the daily bag limit and a total of two in the possession limit. This applies to the three Prairie Provinces, Ontario and Quebec.

The following changes in the regulations apply across Canada:

1. It is now mandatory that hunting be discontinued after the daily bag limit has been reached.

2. A hunter may not possess more than part of a migratory bird unless some of the wing plumage remains attached to the bird. The wing and plumage may be removed if the bird is prepared for immediate cooking or after the bird has been taken to the hunter's residence or to a commercial freezer locker. Migratory birds may not be exported from any province unless one wing and the wing plumage remains attached.

3. Hunters may not use recorded bird calls or sounds, or mechanically or electrically operated calling devices.

4. A hunter who cripples or wounds a migratory game bird must now make all reasonable efforts to retrieve the bird, and if a wounded bird is recovered the hunter must kill it immediately.

5. Special permits may now be obtained by managers of civilian airports or the commanding officers of military airports to take migratory birds which are endangering the safe operation of aircraft.

There will be two hunting zones in Alberta this year rather than three as in the past.

The details of the opening and closing dates are as follows:

1. In the Northern Zone, Sept. 1 to Nov. 28 for ducks, rails, coots, Wilson's snip, Canada geese, white-fronted geese and other geese.

In the Alberta Game Management Range, Sept. 21 to December 6 for ducks, rails, coots, Wilson's snipe, Canada geese and white-fronted geese, and October 3 to Dec. 6 for other geese.

2. In the remainder of the Province of Alberta, Sept. 21 to Dec. 5 for all the above mentioned birds.

Dial phones for Tofield

On September 20th, 1964, at 12:01 a.m. the Alberta Government Telephones will bring dial telephone service to Tofield.

Total cost of the project has been set at $137,362. Of this amount, $71,000 is being spent on dial equipment, double plant facilities are being installed at a cost of $43,000, and $22,000 is being spent on the new building. Other expenditures are going toward cables, aerial extensions, toll and exchange facilities, and miscellaneous circuits.

The costly installation that will soon be put into service are a far cry from those in use when the office was first opened. In the early days, one small switchboard and a few magneto phones were sufficient to serve the needs of the entire community.

Development of dial phone

The story of the development of the dial telephone and its particular interest to Tofield area residents.

The invention of the dial telephone came about in rather a curious way. It was made by Strowger, an Illinois undertaker who was suspicious that the local telephone operator was steering prospective customers to his competitor.

Determined to find a way for customers to call him directly, Strowger began to experiment. He took one of the round wooden buns that men used to keep their detachable collars in at that time and equipped it with a ten-contact rotary switch. Later he adapted the switch to move up and down through ten positions, to provide one hundred contacts. It was a primitive forerunner of the modern dial switch; but it worked!

Not content with inventing dial telephone, Strowger took an extra precaution to insure that none of his calls would go astray. He married the switchboard operator!

FROM THE SCRAP BOOK

Youth means a temperamental predominance of courage over timidity; of the appetite of adventure over the love of ease. This often exists in a man of 50, more than in a boy of 20. Nobody grows old merely by living a number of years; people grow old only by deserting their ideals.

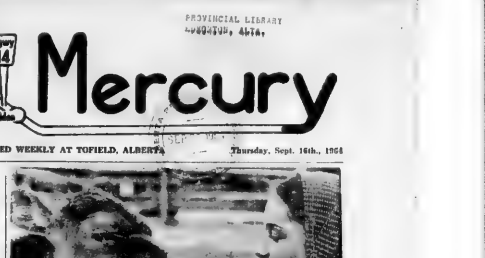
—JWR.

Former district minister passes in Victoria at 80

(Mrs. H. G. Taylor)

Mrs Campbell received word from friends in Victoria a few days ago that the Rev. Bruce Rogers, D.D., aged 80 years, passed away on Sept. 4. Rev. Rogers served many charges in both Alberta and B.C., one of them being the charge at Daysland. He also served Chalmers and Westminster United churches in Edmonton until he retired in 1957, when he moved to Victoria, B.C. Rev. Rogers married Mrs. Edith Bosanworth, whose husband was a missionary of the Holden - Ryley - Bruce charge for several years, before his death some years ago.

Besides his wife, Edith, two sons, Bernard of Vancouver, Duncan of Edmonton, one daughter, Mrs. E. Hart of Vancouver, eight grandchildren, one brother, the Rev. R. G. Rogers of Boston, Massachusetts, also one sister, Miss Margaret Rogers in England. A brother, who married the former Miss Farrell, an old time resident of Holden, predeceased him several years ago.



THE NIBBLER. If the expression on the Jersey calf's face is any indication, there's nothing like a nibble on a little girl's hand. It may not quite taste like sugar and spice and everything nice, but Jennifer Virgin's hand seemed to have some great flavor appeal. — Staff Photo

Queen Street crossing still a thorny question

The Council of the Town of Tofield met on Tuesday, Sept. 8, with Mayor Dr. W. H. Freebury, Jefferson, Paterson and Scott, Mr. Chas. F. Kallal and Constable Wall present.

QUEEN STREET CROSSING

A letter was read from the Department of Transport Commissioners asking Council for their submission on the closing of the two crossings and for Council's acceptance of the estimated costs of installation and maintenance. The secretary-treasurer was instructed to mail a copy of the acceptance of the estimated costs mailed to their office May 5th, 1964. After much discussion the secretary-treasurer was asked to contact the Department of Highways requesting their report so that a proposed plan to have the West Crossing remain open could be forwarded to the Board of Transport Commissioners.

PETITIONS

A petition against the proposed curb and gutter by-law as revised from Third Avenue and from Fourth Avenue home owners. The by-law was defeated by the petition. A petition for sidewalks on the north side of Fourth Avenue from Main Street to Alberta Street was received. The secretary-treasurer to acknowledge receipt with the information that considerations will be given the project in the 1965 budget estimates.

ENFORCE CURFEW

Chas F Kallal asked that the 9:00 o'clock curfew by-law be enforced. The secretary-treasurer was instructed to publicize the by-law and also to publicize through the School. Mr. Kallal informed Council that Fourth Avenue West was almost impassable, and Council decided that a number of streets and alleys be gravelled as soon as the weather permits.

A plan was submitted by Mr. Watson with regard to the ATA building. Cr. Jefferson moved that the plan be accepted and that the sale of Lot 13, Block 13, Plan 3230 be approved at assessed value.

Council agreed that the sale of electrical lots be increased to $350 where the assessed value was of a lesser amount, effective as from date.

Council felt that no concession could be allowed J. Durbholder regarding his August water bill for $73.10. The question of a coin operated meter was discussed. The secretary-treasurer was asked to get information

Oil and water won't mix

It's a well established scientific fact that oil and water will not mix, but farmers living in the area of Miquelon Lake are becoming more and more concerned over the possibility that water from their lake may be used to augment the supply of oil in the Joarcam field . . . and even government officials have mixed feelings over the proposal.

A government water resources board official probably hit the proverbial nail smack on the head when he said the government would have to decide whether it wants an oil field or a recreation spot in the area north and west of Camrose. Provincial Parks officials are afraid the use of water from Miquelon Lake to re-pressurize the Joarcam oil field . . . thus extending the life of the field another ten years . . . could mean a lowering of the lake level to the point that it would not be usable for recreation. On the other hand, the Oil and Gas Conservation Board has ordered one oil company to re-pressurize its wells, and Miquelon Lake appears to be the only source of water available for re-pressurization.

Farmers in the area, of course, are concerned mainly from the point of view of water conservation, and to a small degree, we suppose, recreation.

It's a thorny problem that will cause some ill feelings regardless of what the final decision is. We wonder, however, if some form of compromise can be arranged. Is it possible to re-pressurize the oil field to a small degree for the present, spreading water consumption over a period of years as repressurization is needed, at the same time being careful not to lower the water level in Miquelon Lake noticeably? After all, the oil wasn't all removed at one time. Re-pressurization, however, may be an "all or nothing at all" proposition, in which case the possibility of a compromise would be as likely as the aforementioned mixing of oil and water.

Acceptable to neither

The MacDuff report appearing on this page draws attention to several changing phases of the flag debate and readers may find the comments of more than usual interest. The feeling even that the emphasis is changing in the marathon contest is significant.

MacDuff seems to make much of the inability of the opposition parties, even collectively, to muster enough votes to defeat the Liberal party on the matter. But we wonder if he's not overlooking the very likely possibility that the opposition parties astutely chose the time for these votes, carefully avoiding any occasion when the government might be outvoted, so as not to force the issue to an election.

One thing we have felt for some time is that the opposition parties have selected this one item on which to vent all this displeasure with the Liberal government. No matter how much they may argue with a national health plan, or a national pension plan, and other legislation of this kind, no party in its right political mind would associate itself in the minds of the electors as opposing these programs.

So they've pounced on the flag issue. It is doubtful if any considerable portion of the electorate conceived of more than one plank in a whole election platform, and not one of the essential or structural planks at that. Politically, then, if it's not a basic issue, it makes a good one around which to focus opposition.

Once again, it would be a national tragedy if this were to force an election, for regardless of the possible intentions of the parties to remove it from the field of the hustings, it would inevitably become the centre of a raging battle from one end of the country to the other. However, Mr. Pearson assured us all Sunday evening there was no chance of this. But we were dismayed at his bald statement that we're going to have a new flag by Christmas, one distinctively Canadian, and which will carry the maple leaf, all the while he kept insisting that "Parliament will decide".

In the final analysis, we're afraid, the controversy has destroyed both the Red Ensign and the present Pearson design in the minds of far too many citizens. The only acceptable solution, then, is an entirely new design not so far advocated by either party to re-pressurize its wells, and Miquelon Lake appears to be the only source of water available for re-pressurization.

Farmers in the area, of course, are concerned mainly from the point of view of water conservation, and to a small degree, we suppose, recreation.

Re-pressurization, however, may be an "all or nothing at all" proposition, in which case the possibility of a compromise would be as likely as the aforementioned mixing of oil and water.

Pleasing choice

The decision to continue General Georges Vanier as Governor General of Canada for a one-year extension of the original appointment will no doubt be welcomed by many Canadians. Probably few of us had realized his term was anywhere near expiring. On the other hand, everyone seems to have been delighted with the job he . . . and his wife . . . have been doing, and no-one would have wanted to see the service terminate.

As one side remarked, when Vanier was Canada's ambassador to France, "it makes me so damn proud to know that Canada could produce a man like that." We're all proud, and pleased he will continue.

The Flag Issue

Following is a copy of letter sent to the Hon Mr John Diefenbaker, Leader of the Official Opposition, recently, and made available to The Mercury, for reprinting:

Holden, Alberta,
August 31, 1964

Mr John Diefenbaker,
Leader of the Opposition,
House of Commons
Ottawa, Canada.
Dear Sir:

The above issue has been on for weeks and should soon come to a climax. It is my opinion that the design could be improved upon.

Why not put a combination of three maple leaves and ten stripes? The maple leaves being to one end and the ten stripes running horizontally across the remainder. One stripe in respect of the Provinces in the Dominion.

A rich and prosperous country like Canada should have a flag well filled out to look rich and understated. This design would remind the Canadian people of the great land they are living in and that it is necessary for all the provinces to remain in the union in order to fulfill Canada's future.

If a decision or a good design can't be reached we should keep what we have, the Red Ensign, and let the Parliament get on with the business of governing Canada.

Yours truly,
Hans Haseby,
an Ukrainian Canadian.

Anniversary reception marks 50 golden years

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wickenheng of Tofield celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on September 2nd with open house at the Legion Hall. The picture of Mr. and Mrs. Wickenheng appeared in last week's Mercury.

Mr. and Mrs. Wickenheng were married at Lacombe on August September day in 1914 and although their golden anniversary was enjoyed, it did not dampen the enthusiasm.

Some 75 relatives and friends arrived to sign the guest book, and wish them health and happiness.

Out-of-town relatives present for the happy occasion were their two daughters, Mrs. Norman Jones, and Mrs. Jarel Wickenberg, and their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lyal Wickenberg all of Edmonton; Mrs. Wickenberg's sister, Mrs. Nettie Thomas and Mrs. Sibyl Nelson, both of Lacombe; Mr. and Mrs. Art Kleeton of Ails; Mr. and Mrs. Leslea Primus of Edmonton; two sisters of Mrs. Wickenberg, and their husbands, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Haverstock, Castor, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Knight of Drayton Valley.

Also a special guest was Mrs. Myrtle Findlater of Ails, the bridesmaid of 50 years ago.

A phone call came from a nephew of Roy's at Westlock Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ransum, brought congratulations after hearing the announcement on radio.

The tea table was laid with a hand crocheted cloth made by Mrs. Wickenberg, and centred by a three-viewed wedding cake, banked with beautiful gradiolus.

Many lovely gifts were received and a purse of money donated to the couple in the form of a three-tiered golden wedding cake.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Morton, who were partners of Roy's in a general store at Clive in 1914, and who were unable to attend, sent congratulations with two golden cups and saucers.

An afternoon and evening was spent in reminiscing, and the family of Mr. and Mrs. Wickenberg sponsored the event of the day. A delicious supper was served to relatives at 6 p.m.

Modern Etiquette . . .

Q. Is it necessary to acknowledge receipt of birthday or anniversary cards?

A. If by this you mean a note of acknowledgment, no. However, when next you meet the sender of such greetings, it is always good manners to mention that the card was received and appreciated.

Q. Is it ever permissible to lean across one person in order to shake hands with a third person?

A. Usually it is better to avoid this. But if the other person seems bent on shaking hands, be sure to beg the pardon of the person across whom you must reach.

Q When one is eating grapes at the table, how are the seeds properly removed from the mouth?

A. These should be removed as inconspicuously as possible with the fingers. Never under any circumstances, be guilty of dropping them directly from the mouth onto the plate!

Q. Is it still right for a man to smoke a cigar at a social function, even though all the other guests are smoking cigarettes?

A. There is nothing at all wrong with a cigar at any affair where other people are smoking.

Q Is it considered in good taste to mail wedding invitations to friends who have been recently divorced?

A. Since they ARE friends, this is perfectly proper —even though they may not feel up to attending the wedding.

Q. Is it the accepted form for a woman to use her maiden name as her middle name after she has married?

A. This is the established custom in other words, after Dorothy Anne Adler marries John Rogers, she then becomes Dorothy Adler Rogers.

Q. When I have borrowed a needle and thread from the attendant in a powder room to make a small repair on my dress, am I supposed to tip the attendant?

A. Yes, this is expected—and no less than a quarter.

Q. Are the folded thank - you cards proper for acknowledging wedding gifts?

A. A folded card with "Thank you" imprinted on the face is all right — but a handwritten personal message MUST be added.

Q. We have recently moved into a new neighborhood, and some of the neighbors have been kind enough to call on us. How soon should these calls be returned?

A. Within two weeks, or thereabouts. Failure to return these calls could indicate to your neighbors that their friendship means nothing.

Q. When mailing birthday cards to my women friends whom my husband knows only slightly, should I include both our names, or just mine alone?

A. You need not include your husband's name on your personal greetings.

Q. Does a woman EVER rise from her chair when a man stops to speak with her?

A. If she is a hostess, yes—but not otherwise, unless the man is an important personage or very elderly.

Q. My husband and I are the godparents of a friend's child. Now that we are soon expecting our own baby, is it necessary that we ask these friends to serve in the same role for our child?

A. This is not at all necessary.

QUESTIONS about the CANADA STUDENT LOANS PLAN?
...talk to the B of M NOW

Details of the new Canada Student Loans Plan have been released. And your local branch of the Bank of Montreal has the information on how to apply.

The Plan will provide bank loans to students who need financial help for full-time studies towards a degree or diploma at universities or other educational institutions above high school level. No security is required and repayment will not begin until six months after you graduate or discontinue your studies. Up to that time, all interest will be paid by the Federal Government.

In a recent statement on the Plan, G. Arnold Hart, President of the Bank of Montreal said, "Support of education has long been an established principle of the B of M... Any practical measure that extends the educational horizons of young Canadians will always find a ready, sympathetic response from Canada's first bank".

If you'd like to learn more about this new Plan call on the Manager of your local branch of the B of M. He has all the details and he can give you a folder on the subject. Why not see him now!

Modern etiquette

By Roberta Lee

Q. How does a guest know when to begin eating at a dinner?

A. It is generally considered the courteous thing to wait until the others have been served, either at the beginning of a meal or at the beginning of a new course, before starting to eat. Usually the hostess in the first to begin, which gives the signal for the others to start.

Q. Is it really considered in good taste to exchange any and all kinds of social invitations over the telephone?

A. One may use the telephone for almost any kind of invitation, with the exception of formal ones.

Q. On which arm of her father does the bride proceed down the aisle of the church?

A. On his right arm.

Q. In a home where there is no service, and where the serving dishes are put on the table, how are the dishes started around the table?

A. Properly, the host starts by offering a dish to the woman on his right, and the hostess from her end of the table starts another dish on its way around the table to her right.

Q. Since becoming engaged recently, I have received a number of gifts of money. Am I supposed to divide this with my fiance, or does it rightfully belong to me to spend as I wish?

A. Rightfully you should put this money into a special account to be spent later by both of you for something for your home.

Q. When women, already seated at a luncheon table, are introduced to one another, do they shake hands again, when it is convenient to do so?

A. No; they bow. It is much too awkward to reach across a table to shake hands.

WOP MAY'S FAMOUS RESCUE FLIGHT

Wilfred May - known as "Wop" to his friends - was an Alberta pioneer with wings. After winning his DFC on World War I, this enterprising Edmonton flyer helped start a one-plane charter service. Then, in the 1920's he made aviation history - a 700 mile, mid-winter flight - in an out-dated plane - rushing vital drugs north to epidemic-stricken Fort Vermilion. After two days the news came back that Wop May had succeeded. Two thousand proud Edmontonians cheered the fractious pilot when he touched down at World War I, this enterprising Edmonton flyer helped start a one-plane charter service. Then, in the 1920's he made aviation history - a 700 mile, mid-winter flight - in an out-dated plane - rushing vital drugs north to epidemic-stricken Fort Vermilion. After two days the news came back that Wop May had succeeded. Two thousand proud Edmontonians cheered the fractious pilot when he touched down at home base. News of the historic flight made world headlines, and led to year-round air contact with the north. Wop May went on to win more honours for leadership in Canadian flying . . . a winged pioneer whose exploits are written into the heritage of . . . OUR ALBERTA.

Dahlin - Skogland vows pledged August 15th

In an August 15th ceremony at Salem Lutheran Church at Kingman, Rev. O. H Haugen of Camrose officiated at the marriage of Greta Antonia Skogland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arni Skogland of Kingman and Arnell Frank Dahlin, son of Mrs. Esther Dahlin of Prince Albert Sask.

Mrs. Margaret Clemin was organist, and Mrs. F. M. Bergh of Camrose the soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked lovely in a floor-length gown of white nylon crystaline featuring bustle back skirt paired over a hoop and lily point sleeves. Her fourtier fingertip veil was held in place by a sequin and pearl headpiece and her bouquet was of red roses.

The bride's attendants were her sister, Mrs. Meryl Engerman, as matron of honor and her sister Mrs Lawrence Kathen and Miss Arlene Dahlin sister of the groom as bridesmaids. They were similarly styled street-length gowns of nylon lace over satin in shades of blue, pink and blue respectively. Their bouquets were pink and blue carnations.

The groom was attended by his brother Wilmer Dahlin and Arne Skogland and Marvel Skogland brothers of the bride. Ushers were Lauren Erikson and Gordon Dahlin.

The bride's mother chose a Nurses' Aide blue gown with white accessories and the groom's mother was attired in a coral blue dress with white accessories. Both mothers were corsages of pink roses to complete their ensembles.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Tech Cafe banquet room in Camrose, where Mr. H. B. Ehlert of Camrose proposed the toast to the bride, the groom ably responding. The wedding cake which graced the reception table, was beautifully decorated by Mrs. Bertha Chapman.

Following a trip to Vancouver and points in the U.S.A., the bride and groom will make their home in Calgary.

Well-known farmer retires from homestead after 50 yrs.

(Mrs. J. Haddad)

MINISTIK.—After farming for 50 years, Matthew Ferguson has decided to retire, and has sold his farm to Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Paterson of Lloyds.

Mr. Ferguson was a hard-working man and cleared his farm consisting of 320 acres, sowing it to approximately half legume hay and the remainder to grain each year. He is the proud owner of nearly 100 head of Shorthorn cattle

Matthew came to this community from Scotland in 1907, along with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Ferguson, five sisters and two brothers. He farmed with his brother Andrew on the homestead until 1920, when he moved to his own farm.

He has no immediate plans for the future, but will not be selling it before until spring, when the Paterson's take over the farm. His friends and neighbors all wish him the best in whatever he chooses for the future.

D. E. Bell passes

Word was received just before press time today that D. E. Bell of Edmonton, well known to Tofield district residents, had passed away this morning at the age of 66.

Date of the funeral is not known, but arrangements are to be handled by Andrew and McLaughlin Funeral Home.

Hearing is adjourned to Sept. 30

A preliminary hearing into legal action against George Arnett of Tofield, to determine whether he will have to stand trial for a charge of having unlawfully defrauded the County of Beaver of a sum of money, remanded from July 12, was held yesterday in the Tofield Legion Hall.

Several witnesses were called, but due to the fact that questioning took more time than had been anticipated, the hearing was adjourned to next Wednesday, when it is expected the rest of the witnesses will testify.

Witnesses called yesterday included a former employee of Arnett Motors as well as a provincial auditor, a member of the RCMP who took a statement from Mr. Arnett earlier this year, and several former school bus drivers. Officials from the County of Beaver likely will be among the witnesses to appear when the hearing reconvenes next Wednesday.

Former school bus drivers testified yesterday that they had on several occasions signed bills for one more gallon of gasoline than had been placed in the bus

Another witness, a former supervisor of the school bus garage in Tofield, said that the practice had been stopped early last year after officials of the County of Beaver realized the situation had existed.

TO MONTANA

John Moore joins delegates attending 19th annual Montana 4-H Congress

A trip to Bozeman, Montana, for the 19th annual Montana 4-H Congress, was sponsored for ten outstanding Alberta 4-H leaders by the province's investor - owned electric utility companies, Calgary Power Ltd., Canadian Utilities Limited and Northland Utilities Limited. The Congress was held August 20th to 26th. Among the Alberta delegation was John Moore, well-known 4-H leader from Tofield

The 10 delegates were chosen by the supervisor for 4-H activities in Alberta and District Agriculturists throughout the province. They were selected on the basis of length of service, contributions made to 4-H Clubs, general record of club activities and the presentation of reports attended.

We as Canadian visitors were royally accepted by all 4-H personnel with such heart warming feeling, that it was hard to believe we had crossed the border," said Mr. Moore.

"Their program, especially arranged with the theme 'The Adventure of Inquiry 1864-2064' was a renewed inspiration for the Alberta 4-H leaders

"To be able to spend a very enjoyable week with the top 4-H members and representatives from 750 leaders and extension personnel representing every country of the state all keenly interested in 4-H activities was a very stimulating and challenging experience."

Canadian leaders made their major presentation Thursday afternoon August 24th on a program entitled 'This is Canada Alberta and our 4-H'. Views covered included the formation of clubs an explanation of the 4-H colours for both boys and girls and the various awards available to club members. The interest Montana delegates had in learning about Alberta projects was obvious from the enthusiastic hour-long question and answer period which followed the Alberta presentation Mr. Moore commented.

The Canadian group received a standing ovation Thursday evening at the annual banquet and presentation of awards, following remarks from Mrs. Wendy Cox District Home Economist from Calgary.

The name is Gordon

It was Robert, The Bruce, who gets history's credit for the famous "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again," but there's another Scot working in the field today by the name of Gordon Walter Gordon.

Canada's minister of finance, Mr Gordon is back in the field of trying to insure more Canadian participation and control in Canadian business. It will be remembered that he based his first budget more than a year ago on an attempt to bring home some of this control, only to have his legislation rudely broken to bits by the opposition, the Canadian investment public and business interests on the American side of the line.

With a bit more caution born of experience, and more time to study the matter, as well possibly as to soften up the United States investment market slightly, Mr. Gordon is back with more legislation of this nature. This time, however, he is not attempting to make the program retroactive, but only to reach into the future.

We were delighted with his first move, and we're pleased to see that Mr. Gordon didn't stay down just because he didn't succeed the first time. It's probably not the easiest road that he has chosen to walk, but that doesn't mean the prize isn't worth it. If you ever doubt the importance of bending every effort to keep Canada for the Canadians, just take a look at how long it takes American interests to yelp for protection when Canadian businessmen export beef, or grain, or lumber, or oil, or automobile parts, or whiskey or other manufactured items that compete with some portion of their economy.

There has been already and will continue to be a great din from those who claim we will drive away needed investment funds. The truth is we needed to drive away some of this money . . . Canada was becoming too attractive as an investment center, and Canadian venture money was losing the battle to the greater leverage exerted by major American corporations.

In truth, Mr. Gordon's 25 per cent is little enough. But it's far better than nothing. We're delighted with his 'try again". Let's hope he doesn't quit now. A few modifications to the tax laws would make a healthier climate for Canadians continuing to own the business interests they still do have.

Rep. by pop.?

The Financial Post and The Edmonton Journal are only two of many widely separated metropolitan newspapers which recently have picked up the argument that Parliament should get on with the redistribution bill, and level out representation as between urban and rural areas. The Conservatives have urged a "leading" or "tolerance" of 25% , while the government proposes 25%. The Financial Post, representing the big city interests, of course, claims that tolerance is only a fancy word for giving rural voters more political power, man for man, than city voters, and charges that even the 25% is excessive.

This in spite of many well reasoned arguments pointing out the need to recognize geography as well as voters in a country so tremendous in size, and peopled in such extremes, as is Canada.

The age-old slogan "representation by population" is familiar in Canada, and not without considerable merit. But surely even the barons of Bay Street cannot all be so narrow or so far removed from their small town or farm origins as to suggest that the heavily concentrated but diminutive Niagara peninsula should elect four times as many members as the entire province of Alberta, which is twelve to fifteen times as large. Or for that matter four times as many members as all the rest of Ontario.

Or to reach the extreme of ridiculousness, that the city of Toronto alone should elect thirty times as many members as the North West Territories, which comprise considerably more area than Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia added together.

Yet this is what strict representation by population would do. In order to achieve any kind of fairness, we need to look at more than voters alone at least for some time to come.

Solve a crime . . .

YOU ARE THE DETECTIVE

Upon your arrival at the little cabin in a lonely part of the mountain resort, you are met by two bloodshot men, Calvin Winters and Ralph Sauber, both of them looking very drained and tense. Winters has just found an 11 minute tape recording the suicide of Paul Torrington, his and Sauber's partner in the corner of the cabin. The two men were staying in during this hunting trip.

The two young men lead you along a narrow, winding trail circling the foot of the mountain until finally you arrive at a wooded spot where Torrington lies dead, a bullet hole in his right temple. Beside his body lies a .45 gun, which you pick up carefully in your handkerchief and examine for fingerprints with your power glass. Then you take fingerprint impressions of both Winters and Sauber.

"The only prints on the gun are yours, Sauber", you remark. "Although you have already told me this in Torrington's gun".

"Oh, that's easily explained", says Sauber "I put those prints on the gun when I picked it up . . . when we scanned or examined it. I found him here like this. I didn't think. Of course, I had already heard that shot as I was running along the trail, but thought nothing of it. Then I reached the final bend and found Torrington lying there. I rushed up to him, but saw right away he was dead . . . and I don't know what made me pick up the gun".

"That kind of puzzled me, too", Calvin Winters breaks in. "When I came around the turn on the trail, there was Ralph standing there over Mr. Torrington's body with this gun in his hand. It gave me a real jolt".

You ask for and examine the guns each of the young men carries in his belt. Both of these weapons are .45's, too, and both of them fully loaded.

"These are Mr. Torrington's guns, too", volunteers Winters. "Of course, we didn't use them for hunting, but he suggested that we carry them around for self-protection. This is a pretty lonely, out-of-the-way place, you know".

You sniff at both guns and say, "Your's has recently been fired, Sauber".

"I took a couple of shots at a dead tree limb as I was coming along", he recalls. "I was trying to get in practice. In fact all of us were in the habit of doing that now and then, and that's why I didn't think anything of the shot I heard ahead of me . . . until I found my body here. It WAS suicide, wasn't it? You weren't thinking that I . . ."

"It was NOT suicide", you state . . . and then pausing to see if the two men have added to the gun's question you further on the matter of murder.

Which of the two men do you suspect . . . Calvin Winters . . . or Ralph Sauber . . . and why?

SOLUTION

Secrets in life depends upon persistent effort, upon the employment of moments more than upon any other one thing.

SECOND YEAR

Modern Etiquette . . .

Q. What should the bridegroom and his best man at a formal wedding do with their gloves during the ceremony?

A. The bridegroom removes his right glove and holds it in his left hand. The best man does not remove his gloves. If it is a double-ring ceremony, the bridegroom removes both gloves holding them in his left hand, and then switching to the right hand at the time his bride places his ring on his finger.

Q. Is it considered proper to send a male patient in a hospital a bouquet of cut flowers?

A. Although cut "improper" cut flowers are usually sent only to women. A growing plant is the customary gift to a male patient.

Q. Must a man, while dining in a restaurant with his wife, always rise whenever another couple stops at their table for a few words?

A. He must always rise when a woman stops at his table.

Q. If there is to be no ceremony service for a wedding reception, is it permissible to ask friends to help out?

A. This would depend upon how close these friends are and upon their possible reactions to such a request. Some persons would think it an honor, while others would think it an imposition.

Q. When eating olives at the table, is it proper to take the whole olive into the mouth and, after the meat has been eaten off, remove the stone from the mouth?

A. No. The olive should be held in the fingers and nibbled off the stone.

Q. Is the black-bordered type of mourning stationery still in good use?

A. This has not been in "popular" usage for many years.

Standard equipment: a bank loan

It has become almost standard practice today for people to go to their bank to finance the purchase of cars and other family items. You, too, may have found it a good idea to borrow where you save — at your local bank. It is often simpler, because the bank already knows you as a savings customer. And it also may save you money because bank loans are low-cost loans. For borrowing and saving, and for any other bank service you may need, just visit your local chartered bank. It's the one place where you can get all your banking done, under one roof.

MASTER FARM FAMILIES

Next time you pass a farm that impresses you by its efficient, well-kept appearance, check to see if the gate has a Master Farm Family plaque. This title is awarded by our Provincial Government to those enterprising, independent businessmen, our Alberta farmers and their families. Every year, five Master Farm Families are chosen — one for each of our five Alberta soil zones.

What makes a Master Farm Family? Good farming yes . . . but leadership in other areas such as the farm home and the community are equally important. If the farm you see is not a master farm today, the chances are it will be picked tomorrow. Agricultural leadership is one more reason why we're proud of OUR ALBERTA.

Service board meets with new veterinarian

At the September 16th meeting of the Agricultural Service Board of the County of Beaver, in regard to a Veterinarian for the western part of the county, a letter was read from Dr. Wm. C. Stiles advising that he was opening an office in the basement of the Medical Building in Tofield and would be interested in the Beaverhorse Veterinarian in that area.

Rev. Boyles said he had discussed the proposal regarding setting up an office in this area with Dr. Riddell by the Miller Clan. However, nothing concrete had been done and there was no indication that the Miller Clan was still interested.

Dr. Stiles attended at this time and the information sheets were shown to him that were used last year. Rev. Boyles explained the way the campaign is organized.

Dr. Stiles said if he were given the vaccination program he could get together with Dr. Riddell and go over the list and arrive with him by one if any changes were necessary and to change them by mutual agreement.

Stan Powers asked Dr. Stiles his opinion on preventive medicine where a veterinarian makes regular visits to the herds and treats possible diseases and warbles and parasites are treated before it is too late.

Dr. Stiles said this is going to come and is common practice in Eastern Canada and the U.S. He said he would be in favor of this type of practice and would be interested if there were a demand for it.

Dr. Stiles retired and the Vaccination Program was discussed. It was moved by Cr. Doris that Dr. Stiles be given the Beaverlodge vaccination in the western portion of the county formerly done by Dr. J. Robertson of Ryley, and that any change in boundaries would have to come by mutual arrangement of the veterinarians concerned.

In his report Field Supervisor Rex Boyles said, "since the June 25th meeting the most time was spent on weed work. Charles Rees and myself have covered as many farms as possible, around 130 inspections have been made. 51 destroy notices were issued and carried out. Complaints have been followed up and records are made of farms that will require No Seeding and 'No Removal' orders.

"Five spraying jobs were done with the County sprayer, including the CNR mainline and destroying White Cockle south of Pos.

"Dry weather retarded the growth of sow-thistle and all patches were not found and treated.

"Farmers in most cases have been cooperative by spraying and controlling weeds.

"A total of 826 miles of county roads were sprayed plus 200 miles covered by brush spraying. A great deal of road spraying was done too late for effective weed control.

Road-side seeding of back roads was completed on only 22 .41 miles of roads were seeded using 1,250 lbs.

He also reported 120 strychnine pellets were released for coyote control. 1 requests for coyote control received, five farmers made use of the magpie traps in the past two months. Inquiries are coming in regarding spraying cattle for warbles and lice.

Demonstrations that were carried out this year were: Spraying regrowth of brush on cleared land, weed spraying with Castrype, Kill-ow, Ureabbs and Dalapon, Atrazine and Simazine in the western portion of the county formerly done by Dr. J. Robertson of Ryley, and that any change in boundaries would Moved and carried that the report be accepted.

The Superintendent informed the Committee that it appeared that only about eight bursary students would be available from the County, and he inquired what the Committee wished to do in this matter.

Moved and carried that, if sufficient bursary students are not available within the County, applications be accepted from students from other areas to make up a total of 13 bursary students for the current year.

The Superintendent informed the Committee that the film projector at the Bruce School was in a bad state of repairs and that a cost estimate of $130 had been received to repair this machine. It was decided that, providing this projector was being used to full advantage, the machine be repaired.

The Superintendent mentioned that some students in the County wished to attend school on a part-time basis in order to make up certain marks and he did not believe this to be very satisfactory, and that it would not be difficult to provide a program for those students that would enable them to attend school on a full-time basis but he suggested that a policy statement on this problem would be advisable.

Moved and carried that no students be accepted on a part-time basis but must register for full-time attendance.

Moved and carried that Nessie Semchuk be appointed to attend the Principals' Meeting on September 30th, as representative for the County.

Canadian Bible Society marks 'anniversary

The Canadian Bible Society is marking its 59th anniversary this year.

The local canvass for the Bible Society is now underway. Please support it as much as possible.

Anniversaries and birthdays are usually celebrated by the receiving of gifts. The Canadian Bible Society is marking its 59th anniversary by receiving gifts, but these gifts are not for itself, but to enable it to meet its goal, to provide 2,000,000 of the $5,500,000 required for the worldwide needs of the Bible Societies, in 1964 as we go forward with the campaign for Scripture Distribution called "God's Word for a New Age".

To achieve this increased objective, the support of all true Christians and the sacrificial gifts of thousands of Christian people are required.

The growth of the work of the Canadian Bible Society over the past 60 years has been encouraging and the present demand distribution of scriptures in the world is far short of the need.

The Christian Church is growing very rapidly and at present the world population and the present distribution of scriptures, is far short of the need in efficiency.

The population of the world is increasing at the rate of 60 million annually. There are three millions to be won for Christ! Will they be provided with the Scriptures in their own tongue, the language with which only the literature of the Communists are printed in vast quantities?

Since poverty is the lot of the majority of the human race, the Bible Society must provide the scriptures at a fraction of their cost and in some cases free of charge. Only as contributions increase can the Bible Society increase its production and distribution.

The scriptures are now translated in over 1200 languages and the annual world scripture distribution by Bible Societies is 65 000 000.

The churches and missionaries depend upon the Bible Society to supervise the translation of the scriptures, to publish them and to provide them at a fraction of their cost.

The forces of righteousness are engaged in a gigantic struggle with the powers of darkness both in home and abroad. The Christian Church is in the very midst of this battle for the souls and souls of men. In this struggle, the essential weapon of every Christian and of the Christian church is the Word of God in the language that can be understood. It is the Word of God which is "the Sword of the Spirit, and it is this weapon which will enable the forces of Christ to carry on the battle until the enemy is conquered and Christ shall reign in the hearts of men and in the kingdom of this world. Tofield.

Holden residents honor 3 winning ball teams

(By Connie Cooper)

Having one championship team in town is something great. But Holden has gone one better by having not one, not two, but three home-town championship baseball teams — Boys' Little League, Pony League and Senior Men's.

Nineteen Hundred and Sixty-Four has been a proud and eventful year, and certainly one that will be remembered by many for a long time.

The citizens, parents, businessmen and officials of Holden, to show their appreciation and sportsmanship joined together in expressing their feelings by providing a banquet for the ball players of all three teams.

The banquet was sponsored under the auspices of the Holden Recreation Board and the very fine and tasty supper was served by the Greek Catholic Ladies' group.

With the saying at Grace by Father Lacyshyn, the evening's program commenced with a welcoming message by Wm. Ogredvick, chairman of the Holden Recreation Board. He extended greetings to all in attendance and said it was very pleasing to see so many here on such a wet night. Mr. Ogredvick went on to explain the aims of the Board, and hoped through their endeavors they are helping the youth of the district excel in whatever in which they enjoy. Young people would have a chance to take part in sports activities.

Garnet Barnstad of Ryley, President of the Senior Men's Powerline League, expressed happy tidings to the three teams and hoped each player had enjoyed his participation at playing ball during the past season and hoped all three leagues would continue for many years to come.

The reply to Mr. Barnstad's message came from Don Coutu, president of the Holden Senior Men's team. He said quote: "This is a night which will long be remembered by many in the community. It must be kept in mind that it has taken many hours of personal involvement by many people in the community to achieve what has taken place here in Holden. By people not only in Holden, but by citizens of our neighboring communities. My heart-warm greetings go out in the pillars of this successful season, the coaches, managers, umpires, community groups, and the others who willingly gave of their time. It is these people who build a community".

Guest speaker for the evening was Gordon Fish of Ryley. His remarks brought to the fore the feelings that seem to be even more noticeable today as our society flexes its moral ideals and social boundaries, even more so that the ideal expression takes on even more pressing today. "It is nice to win, but it takes a man to lose". It takes a man to accept any outcome with a cheerful disposition and a mature outlook. We must, either as winners or losers have a willingness to co-

Discrimination?

A Tofield man, owner of a garage which has allegedly been selling gasoline to the County of Beaver for school buses at a discount, and has allegedly attempted to recover at least part of the discount by adding gallonage to each fill must stand trial for defrauding the county, it was decided at a preliminary hearing concluded in Tofield yesterday afternoon.

We understand that it is unlawful for garages and service stations to offer a discount to county governments on the sale of gasoline, and it stands to reason that trying to recover such a discount in the way it has allegedly been done might also be unlawful. In short, two wrongs don't always make a right.

And yet, today, according to testimony at the preliminary hearing, garages and service stations are selling gasoline at a discount. And it has been stated that other garages or service stations at one time or another added gallonage to bills to recover the discount. This may or may not be true, but the question arises: Why is only one man's operation being investigated? Why has the provincial attorney general's department not explored these other avenues and determined whether or not more than one man or business is involved, before charging one man with an offence?

The whole matter was then placed before the County of Beaver council some time ago, and the council lost little time in seeing that the practice was stopped, but this was brought to a halt at all outlets. At the same time the council decided to take no action.

Then, by some way or another the attorney-general's department was made aware of the situation. This could have been brought about by government officials, or perhaps by someone living in the Town of Tofield or the County of Beaver. Regardless of how it came about, the fact remained that only one man has been made to face the music, and if preachs of discrimination, whether it be by the department or those responsible for bringing the matter to the attention of the department.

Perhaps the crown, in this case, should give consideration to dropping proceedings. We cannot help but feel that the Beaver County Council showed wisdom in merely righting the wrong, and letting it go at that.

It's that season again

It's fall again with the usual reopening of all sorts of meetings including those that draw little boys on bicycles like Wolf Cubs, cheers, Explorers and so on.

It also draws their bicycles, as a speedy means of transportation. So riders and parents of riders should not forget that while it is often broad daylight when Junior sets out, it's pitch black when he's coming home.

His bike isn't very easy to see, and coupled with the hi-jinks of riding circles around his pal's bikes, he becomes a ready prospect for motorists who may slip up unawares. With no reflectors or headlights

For safety's sake, parents, check for reflectors and headlights or keep the bike at home after dark. Sure walking may take longer, but the odds against his being hit are away better

Do it yourself flag

One of the more enterprising greeting card companies in Canada has ceased to highlight the Commons flag debate with a new card announcing the debate. Showing a blank area in the proportions of a flag, it suggests you draw your own idea of what Canada's flag should be and mail it to your member of parliament.

One consolation in it was Canadian ingenuity that saw and seized the opportunity here. And while it seems a shame to so caricature an item when would be a symbol of love and pride at least it is probably a fairly accurate assessment of the level to which the matter has descended on the floor of the Commons, and the opinion of the public generally.

Would it be better, perhaps, to table the matter for a little while rather than rush headlong into a solution that may finally satisfy no one?

Eliminate compulsion

Meeting recently at Banff Alberta gasoline retailers urged the provincial government to establish an enquiry into the gasoline retail business and the relationship of retail dealers with oil companies. Earlier they had been informed the government had decided to wait and consider the outcome of a similar investigation in British Columbia.

Repeated suggestions of pressure methods in an industry related to so many segments of the Canadian economy are not the opportunity to paper-tigers in the form of Senator Leo Gerard by Chairman Ottawa Branch of an address of Fog [illegible] Your own [illegible] the record [illegible] for one more gallon of gasoline than had been placed in the tank. The defence counsel for Mr. Arnett through cross-examination of the witnesses, revealed that the gallonage had been added to make up for a discount on gasoline. The discount, which is not allowed under provincial regulations, had been requested from garages and service stations by an employee, or employees of the county as well as by the county council, according to testimony at the hearing.

Witnesses appearing yesterday included Edwin Masterson, town of the county, Olaf Monson, county secretary-treasurer, Mr. Tofield town councillor, Mr. Ralph Hansen, supervisor of schools for the county, and Harold Weatherill, county councillor.

The latter testified that he filled his car at the extra gallon ago when he was asked by the county council or school committee to find why two garages in Tofield, other than Mr. Arnett's, were charging more for gasoline than others. He said he learned at that time that the other garages were offering discounts on gasoline but were making up for the discounts by adding gallonage. He and other witnesses from the county said no action was taken at that time because they considered the matter only hearsay. They added they did not know definitely until Mr. Arnett himself voluntarily told the school committee that he had added gallonage to make up for the discount, and they immediately put a stop to that practice at all garages and service stations that the practice had to stop, and that as far as he knew, it stopped immediately.

They took no action, they said, because it was felt the cost involved might be more than the amount that could be recovered.

Mr. Smith in his testimony stated that Mr. Arnett had volunteered this same information to the Tofield town council.

In his testimony Mr. Weatherill said that some garages including Mr. Arnett's were giving extra services for which they were not paid. He also said he understood discounts were still being given by the services.

Mr. Monson was called up on to read part of the county minutes from April 10th, 1962 which showed that the two other garages in Tofield had agreed to give the county a discount on gasoline, and the minutes of Jan. 8th, 1963, said Councillor Weatherill had reported to the meeting that extra gallonage had been added to make up the difference for the discount. Mr. Weatherill said that prior to this meeting he had advised all bus drivers and service station and garage operators that the practice had to stop, and that as far as he knew, it stopped immediately.

Farmer's vital tool is money says Manitoba Ag. minister

Hon. George Hutton, Minister of Agriculture for Manitoba, in a recent address to all livestock breeders, stated that industry, and their area in particular, is now producing the total output of requisite to successful farming and are being replaced by 25% capital and level of management. Money, practically unknown as a tool of the agricultural industry of yesteryears, today is undoubtedly the most important tool of all. The farmer who cannot afford equipment, cannot make enough in the old fashioned way in competition with modern machinery.

Hutton cited a trend to fewer and larger family farms. Mr. Hutton pointed out that in 30 years today, only one-third of our farmers produce two-thirds of ten years, while the next lowest category showing production of between $5,000 and $10,000 only increased by 12%. Since 1951 farms showed a disappearance of 5,500 units. In short, said Mr. Hutton, it is a picture of production techniques and management being concentrated in larger and fewer hands. To some this has represented a gain, but to almost 10,000 farmers it has meant a personal loss. This is one of the harsh results of agricultural progress. "But", Mr. Hutton went on to say, "there is another frontier. That is, education and job training. This is the key to adjustment and is the greatest legacy that one generation can provide another."

"Let us be mindful", he said, in closing, "that technical progress is a mixed blessing and if we are those who are affected adversely is or should be interested in it."

GROUP AWARD WINNERS

School days are often considered carefree days. But many young Albertans spend hours working for underprivileged children at home and abroad. One outstanding group is the Grades 5 and 6 students of Cayley School. Under the supervision of their teacher, Mrs. K. Curran, they dedicated their spare time to the Junior Red Cross.

In the past school year alone, they knitted 837 nine-inch squares to be made into afghans for disaster areas.

These enterprising youngsters held draws, candy sales and auctions to finance vital Red Cross Health Kits. They raised funds to buy toys for needy children.

This is one of a series of Junior Citizen Award announcements. The people at Calgary Power thank R. Hawk, Editor of the Nanton News and the group's nominator Mrs. C. Beaton of Cayley.

operate and to accept authority that it is there for the good of all, and we should not be so quick to flaunt or retaliate, or take as personal the aims and purposes of the rules by which we govern our private lives or in our sporting activities, and by the same rule the people who execute those rules.

For the most part you younger players probably felt the most important part of the evening was the presentation of the trophies.

Ed Regehr, a member of the Tofield Recreation Board, presented the Bob McKay Memorial Trophy to the coach. Mike Thacyk, and team captain Dale Ralph of the Little League team. Mr. Regehr outlined the history of the trophy and the man whose memory it honors. He also entertained with some heartwarming ball stories.

Bruce Budd, mayor of Holden, presented to coach Milt Malech and the team captain Terry Carmichael of the Pony League with the Barry Brewery Trophy. Mayor Budd stated the trophy had been many years old and Holden has won it on both occasions.

Herb Bessey, District Supervisor for Calgary Power, presented to the Holden Senior Men's team as League Champions the Calgary Power Trophy. As Mr. Bessey is a resident of Holden of some years ago he was very pleased to see so many faces he recognized out of the days but of the many fathers who were in attendance.

Larry Olson, past chairman of the Holden Recreation Board and now school principal, presented a toast to the ball players. But as Mr. Olson stated, "There are not many of us here tonight. If any, who has not been a player on a team at one time during his life, as a toast to all ball players, past and present". Terry Appleby of the Holden men's team replied to the toast.

The Little League team captain then presented their coach, M. Thacyk, with a gift, voicing the team's appreciation. It might be added that Mike's team also won the Battalion Fathers Little League ball trophy in a ball tournament at Mundare this summer.

A gift had been presented by the Pony League team members to their coach, Milt Malech, when he and his family moved last month to take up residence at Daysland. It is with great regret the talents of Milt are lost to this community.

Master of ceremonies Dennis Cooper closed the evening with a few short remarks. He hoped by what had taken place here tonight and during the season was the end result of what can take place when people work together and try to do their bit, no matter how small or large it may be, when trying to develop a better community and better citizens.

Closing entertainment for the evening was the showing of a very fine color film of the final baseball game of the 1963 world series. The film was edited by the Coca-Cola Company, who were very kind in sending the film along for the evening's program.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Stauffer of Bardo. Cans or bottles?

Slowly but surely cans are establishing a firmer foothold in the beverage container field. A market research study is still being conducted, but figures and expenditures now have clear companies to spend more money to promote no-return (throw-away) bottles as cans consolidate still more breakthroughs in the battle for sales. Glass and many consumers would encourage public agencies even if it means paying more. Supermarkets are getting fed up handling the crates for returned bottles. So the battle is still on. Manufacturers and retailers of glass would welcome no-return bottles because of price. But they say sales of canned soft drinks are expected to more than double last year's volume. Just how much less million cases is not clear but four million. Total sales of soft drinks are not easy to industry estimates expected to be only slightly ahead of last year's

TEACH CHILDREN TO DIAL OPERATOR

To children the telephone operator should be as well known and trusted as the county policeman. Although a young child may have learned to recognize numbers by numbers, he can't consider one number more important than another. Therefore it is vital to teach a young child that he can call the operator and she will help you.

Mr. mother is asleep and can't wake up and there's a fire in the house. Can you find a quick and painless message to the operator. After the fire department is notified the operator will ask the caller's name and address. Then she will call the caller back. The operator called by a child should address and send a doctor on the way if needed.

Other operations such as requests for directory information, time or traffic tests should only be done in person. Emergency numbers should be memorized by children. Also the child's name and address.

If you don't have a private phone, but have access to a pay phone, don't forget you don't get the operator without a coin! Keep one just for emergencies, taped on a card for use by everyone in the family. Be sure children also know how to use the coin and can reach the phone.

Modern etiquette

By Roberta Lee

Q. If a great many wedding gifts have been received, and the bride's time is limited, won't it be all right for her to mail out engraved cards of thanks?

A. Never. NEVER! If a bride does not consider the gifts worth her time and effort to write personal notes of thanks, then she proves a shame that her friends devoted any time and money to her.

Q. When a man is in an elevator in an office building, and a woman friend enters, is he supposed to remove his hat?

A. He should lift his hat in greeting. But custom and etiquette do not require that he remove his hat in a business elevator.

Q. Since my father is not living, I wonder if it would be all right for my mother to "give me away" at my wedding.

A. Quite all right. Under these circumstances, you walk down the aisle alone, and then at the proper moment in the ceremony your mother steps forward and gives you away.

Q. Do you think a person is always obligated to give his reason for declining an invitation?

A. Although not exactly obligatory, a logical reason does have a way of softening a refusal of this kind.

Q. Is it all right to eat bananas with the fingers when at the table?

A. No; they should be sliced on the dessert plate then cut and eaten with the fork.

Q. Is it possible to correct someone's grammar without being impolite?

A. No one likes to be corrected in group conversation, and efforts at improvement of grammar and diction had better be reserved for members of one's family or friends who you are SURE will consider them as favors, and not insults.

Q. What would be the appropriate wording of engraved invitations to the wedding of a middle-aged widow and widower?

A. "The honour of your presence is requested at the marriage of Mrs. Henry O. Bates to Mr. James F. Haskin".

Q. When one has received an invitation two weeks in advance of a large dinner party in a friend's home, when should one acknowledge the invitation?

A. Immediately. There is nothing so discourteous or so inconsiderate as keeping a hostess waiting for a reply to such an invitation.

The federal government is currently spending about $2.1 billion a year on social security, health and welfare; provincial and municipal governments spend about $3.4 billion.

Ryley boy loses leg

(M. K. Westmoreland)

Harold Kenneth Nernaeus, familiarly known as "Kenny" to his many friends and relatives around Ryley and district, has just suffered a shattering experience, by having one leg amputated just above the knee because of a cancerous growth.

Kenny was born in Ryley 22 years ago, the second son of Florence and Harold Nernaeus, with a leg that has hampered him all his life. He has undergone many operations on the limb, has spent months at a time in hospitals for treatment, the Red Cross hospitals in Alberta, and the Shriners' hospital in Winnipeg. Despite his affliction Kenny has remained cheerful throughout the years, kept up with his school work and passed his Grade 12.

It was an acute shock when the "good leg started to cause trouble and ended up tragically. Kenny is in hospital in the United States where his father is employed for Canadian "Nobel" Farm Machinery.

Some cheerful cards and notes would help to brighten the days ahead for Kenny. His address is Box 5, Parrow, Colorado, U.S.A.

Retail spending per capita in Canada was $970 in 1963, compared to $470 in 1946.

Fire safety hints for baby sitters

(From Your Tofield Fire Brigade)

You have a very great responsibility for the SAFETY of the children and the property of your employer. To aid you, we offer the following suggestions:

1. Be sure you are familiar with the house in which you are sitting.
2. Be sure you know the quickest and safest route for children from the house in case of emergency.
3. Ask your employer how to operate any heating appliance in case this should be necessary.
4. If a fire should occur, wrap the children in blankets—do not take time to dress them—then remove them from the house.
5. Call the Fire Department—Ring Fire Call requests that you call the Fire Department as soon as possible by telephoning from a neighbour's house—do not delay.
6. Always be sure to ask your employers where they may be reached in case of an emergency and contact them if necessary.
7. Stay with your charges A—Accidents might happen in your absence the only time you should leave them is if an emergency arises and it is necessary to leave to call the Fire Department. In that case, the children would not be in the house.

In case of fire telephone Fire Department Ma. . . . . requests yourself with fire numbers

The two slates in the Junior high election were the Beatniks and the Super Slicks. The speeches were short but to the point and were enjoyed by all. Time for Thanksgiving

Maybe Canada and the United States should trade seasons for Thanksgiving. For some reason, rare comes in the middle of harvest, just when every cloudy day causes imagining, while that south of the border comes well after the season.

However it may well be that most of us are too close to the trees to see the forest. We seem to dwell on the daily woes, and take for granted the continuing and important features of our lives. And yet we have so much for which we should give thanks, in the midst of so many distractions such as elections, strikes, potatoitis, Fire Prevention Week, flag debates, royal visits, World Series, commencements and declining highway remembrances and many others.

Certainly the part of the world we live in is far from perfect, yet how many of the world's teeming millions would consider this as heaven. We have troubles in Canada, yes, but not the grievous disturbances in other parts of the world. We have unemployment and unnecessary and unrest, but hardly the serious ones to be found in many countries. Even though the outlook is not for considerably less than a bumper crop, our farmers and for that matter the rest of us are still well off compared to many parts of the world.

Materially, we have many benefits. Spiritually too, we are endowed with many blessings, most notable of which are our freedoms of worship, to assemble, to speak, to think and to act. For all the problems we think we encounter, we still have much for which we should pause this week-end, and certainly the part of the world we passing, give thanks.

Peekaboo?

Was the public this week given just a hint over part of the reason for the dismissal of E. W. Hinman as provincial treasurer when Justice Hugh C. Farthing dealt with an application to remove the name of the Farmers and Merchants Trust from a court action for more than $2,000,000? Named in the action were Mr Hinman, his son Hinman and a Calgary businessman, the action was filed by Manning's action? Is the curtain being pulled back for more than just a peek? Will it be pulled back further shortly? Or has it already been pulled back to the point where the Premier will be forced to answer questions?

Mac Duff Ottawa report . . A bell for the cat

OTTAWA — Public security ministers in Canada are a little like those men in the old fable who decided that the best way to protect their mice from the cat would be to hang a bell around the cat's neck.

The bell they've now in mind is Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker. They have the bell ready to be hung at a conference tonight on the rights of Parliament and they're pushing and they're about what a good job it will do.

This is how the new rule would work: Before every debate requiring votes of all parties would be called together to agree on a fixed number of days for the debate.

MEDIA UNANIMITY

If they couldn't agree unanimously then the debate would run on as long as the party rules allow. In other words no more talk-a-thons because they had been worked out for that debate.

But if all parties agreed the time limit could be invoked on everybody. At the end of the agreed number of days the bill would end and the Commons would move to the next.

The only real effect of all this would be that Mr. Diefenbaker would have to give advance warning of his next move. As it now is he's constantly springing new and unforseen questions. That often annoys the Government and gives Parliament its chance.

He would like the Commons to be told so that the Government could prepare its answers in advance.

EXISTING PUBLIC

The Government then tried to open hearings to the party leaders and a public through newspapers.

Apparently the MDP were on a collision course with Premier Manning's proposal for the rule changes in a televised press conference.

The New Democrats then tried to head off ministerial action by Mr. Pearson and at the same time bring public pressure to bear on Mr. Diefenbaker.

NOT WORRIED

So far Mr. Diefenbaker hasn't showed much sign of being the pressure. And if Mr. Pearson does make the move he has borrowed the result would be a particular day blow up and at elections.

NOT ORIGINAL

The idea of advance limits on debate is used in the United States House of Commons and it was one of the Grey proposals to come before the committee which the Canadian House set up to review its rules this year.

The purpose put in support of a sub-committee headed by New Democrat Stanley Knowles and including several Conservatives that it has never yet been the main committee which will meet with Speaker Jean Marchand (Liberal) back on Parliament Hill.

Mr. Knowles has tried many times to break the log-jam in the sub-committee already but Parliament keeps up to Mr. Diefenbaker and his Tory front bench.

Then the Commons is expected to be very much busier during the main session.

Modern air raid precautions—the need was bound to realize that a properly used property is submarine up to now would be more useful if it were given a set of wings and a television transmitter.

Just this week I learned that a flying submarine is dropped to new underground facility used with the Defence Research Board.

Called a "protomobile" by its British inventors the device resembles a combination of a passenger car and a helicopter.

Designed to provide transportation and reconnaissance under water with a range of the ground cleared for relatively long ranges the helicopter should also help to improve the performance of supporting weapons systems by providing close coverage of their types of targets. Controlling rockets could be given other benefits.

Through the ground-based television system the helicopter is designed to give a helicopter its maintenance task of the economy-minded establishment.

Initial employment of the system will be under daylight conditions although scientists are hopeful that improvements in the present vision [illegible] will make it possible to use it at night.

1965 FAIRLANE 500 SPORTS COUPE. A TOTAL PERFORMANCE FORD DUALLY IN CANADA.

'65 Fairlane-Excitement in Style

(A New World of Value)

Fairlane is the car that's built a unique reputation for ruggedness, reliability, and value. And now, for '65, we've added new values.

Outside, the new Fairlane is crisp and clean, with a trimness that makes it easy to park, easy to handle in traffic. Inside Fairlane offers the room of many larger cars, with beautiful new upholstery and a new, smaller steering wheel that is easier to handle.

But Fairlane's combination of nimble handling with big car comfort is only part of the story. Low price makes everything about the Fairlane doubly appealing.

The new standard "Six" has 120 hp and the smoothness and durability of a 7-main-bearing crankshaft. There is a bigger standard V-8 of 200 hp, plus an optional 225 and 271 hp—with a choice of three transmissions (3 and 4-speed manual and Ford's 3-speed Cruise-O-Matic).

As you can see, the "Fabulous Fast-selling Fairlane" is even better for 1965—because it offers all this new value at Fairlane's low price, plus excellent operating economy. Ask a Ford Dealer for a Test Drive soon, and bring the whole family—we build them for family fun.

Pilot dies in jump when sailplane glider folds

A well-known Edmonton businessman who lived in Tofield in his boyhood, fell to his death at the grass airstrip at Cooking Lake Sunday when his glider folded in mid-air.

Witnesses at the crash scene said Dan McLaughlin, 48, a partner in Andrews-McLaughlin Funeral Home, died instantly after plummeting into a farmer's mead.w.

They said one wing of his engine-less sailplane folded over the top of the fuselage, parallel with the other wing shortly after Mr. McLaughlin broke contact with his tow plane at 3:35 p.m.

A pilot of more than 30 years experience, Mr. McLaughlin jumped free of the crippled machine while still 200 feet in the air, an airport official said. Witnesses said he was not wearing a parachute.

His body landed about 60 feet from the wreckage of the glider.

The glider landed on its nose crushing the cockpit area. Both hull and wings buckled.

METAL FRAME

No immediate explanation was available for the failure of the glider, a two-seater model. The machine had a metal frame and spars, covered with fabric.

The glider, the property of the Edmonton Soaring Club, had been used steadily all day by club members an airport official said. It had been a busy day at the airfield with three to four gliders in the air at any one time. Sky-divers, too, were practising their art over the field.

When Mr McLaughlin hit the ground two divers immediately jumped to help him. They found he was dead. Death was due to massive chest injuries.

Mr McLaughlin had spent years as a flying instructor with the RCAF in the Second World War, attaining the rank of Flight Lieutenant. He is married and has two children both now adults.

The glider towed under an RCMP permit after the crash is to be transported to Edmonton for an investigation into the cause of the structural failure.

FUA to ask for food assistance

The first meeting of the season of the Tofield Farmers' Union will be held on Tuesday, Oct. 13th. in the Legion Hall, starting at 8:30 p.m.

The FUA has been approached to find out if there is necessity to apply for freight assistance on fall supplies. So, farmers having need of hay, are urged to attend the meeting and help out on this matter. There certainly is a shortage of feed in the district, especially should this be a severe winter, and if the needs of individual farmers are known it could help to provide a solution.

Farmers now have the services of a resident veterinarian. Dr Stiles whose office is in the McDevel Building. The FUA hopes to have him at one of its future meetings to get acquainted.

Some years ago the FUA did a good deal of corresponding in an effort to get a "set" here, but to no avail. It is hoped however that now there is one in this district he will be supported. The FUA feels it is a needed service having him here but in case of sickness among the animals it is a great help to have a qualified veterinarian to treat them.

The "jack-pot" is still running so come out you may be the lucky winner. Remember the date Tuesday, Oct 13, 8:30 p.m., in the Legion Hall. Come with your suggestions for making meetings more interesting.

Beaver county asks reconsideration of grant from Camrose

In a letter to the council of the County of Camrose, the County of Beaver asked the Camrose county to reconsider its offer to match, dollar for dollar, the sum of money contributed to the Round Hill Flood Control Project by Camrose county ratepayers who are affected. The letter suggested that Camrose County consider a grant of $1,000.

The Camrose County council, however, felt that it had never entered into any other drainage project, even within its own boundaries, and that they were setting a precedent as it was. A motion to adhere to its original decision was passed at the Camrose County council meeting Friday.

Thanksgiving motif at district church

(Mrs. J. Knudsen)

PALMER - EARLING, Oct. 2 October 11th, 4 p.m., is the date for the Harvest Festival and Thanksgiving program at Scotsmore Church. The chapel will be decorated with flowers and local vegetables, symbolizing the bounty of harvest.

Let us pause in our daily occupations to lift our hearts in thanksgiving to God for this good land and all that living within its borders implies. Thanksgiving is the opportunity to gather the broken fragments of your spirit together and make something beautiful of them; to count your blessings instead of your problems.

Modern etiquette

By Roberta Lee

Q. I mailed a wedding gift to a bride in another city about two months ago, but have never received any acknowledgment. Would it be proper for me to write and ask if she received my gift?

A. I think you have the right to inquire as to whether or not the gift was received and if it was, the bride has been guilty of extremely bad manners.

Q. When one is in doubt as to whether or not an invitation can be accepted, how should the acknowledgment be worded?

A. You must not be in doubt when acknowledging an invitation. State definitely whether or not you can accept.

Q. Should candy be served to guests in a box, or in a dish instead?

A. It is all right to offer candy in a box to guests in the living room but at the dinner table it should be served in a dish.

A PAUSE FOR THANKS. In this modern day we rush through life, barring past our blessings without even noticing them, but once a year, on Thanksgiving Day, we pause to remember that here in Canada there is always food when we're hungry, doctors to cure for our ills, and the freedom to speak out when we're angry. And for all this, and more, we give thanks. — —NNS Photo.

Modern Etiquette . . .

Q. Will you please comment on the proper manner of eating soup?

A. Dip the farther edge of the spoon into the soup, directing it away from you and towards the nearer edge of the bowl. Then fill the spoon to the brim. Put the tip of the spoon into the mouth, not the nose. And remember, of course, sip the soup as quietly as possible!

Q. If it so happens that a bride-elect has already had an opportunity to thank a donor verbally for a gift received, is she still obligated to write a thank-you note?

A. Indeed she is—and as soon as possible.

Q. Is it necessary for a bride to ask permission of friends who have given her duplicate gifts before she exchanges them?

A. Since the exchanging of such wedding gifts is a general and necessary custom, it is not required or expected that she ask permission.

Q. Is it really bad manners for a woman to file her nails in the presence of a guest? A friend and I are having a big argument about this.

A. To file a broken nail that is catching on things is all right . . . but to give yourself a manicure in the presence of guests is in extremely bad taste.

Q. When a young man is taking a girl out to dinner, is he supposed to ask her where she would like to eat?

A. Not usually. It is the man's privilege to decide beforehand where they are going.

Q. When eating a baked potato at the dinner table, is it correct to scrape the potato from its skin and mash it on the plate?

A. It is generally considered most proper to split the potato, and then eat it from the skin.

Municipal building seen as centennial project

The Town Council meeting was held October 5th at 8:00 o'clock with Mayor Dr. W. H Freebury and Councillors Allan, Herndon, Jefferson, Patterson and Swift present

CENTENNIAL PROJECT

Representatives from the Historical Society (Mrs. G. Phillips, H. Schatz and J. Plaskett) and from the Lions Club (Mrs. A. Sutherland, Warner and Wm. Sherwood) with Council the possibilities of a Municipal Complex building to house the Town Hall, Police, Fire, Library and Historical Society as a Centennial project. It was decided that the Centennial Committee meet to discuss the project more fully.

QUEEN STREET CROSSING

In answer to a letter from the Dept. of Highways a draft will be submitted to the Board of Transport requesting the installation of the protection at Queen Street Crossing, but asking that the West crossing be left open. Also when the protection has been installed the speed limit of 30 miles per hour for trains passing through Tofield be lifted.

A letter was read from Mrs. M Boyles asking that a garbage can also was available she wished to resign as the Town's representative. The secretary-treasurer was instructed to write a letter of thanks to Mrs. Boyles, and request that she continue as the Town agent.

LIBRARY

A petition requesting the Town Library be established as a Municipal Library and signed by more than the required 10% proprietary electors was discussed. Dr Freebury moved that the Library be established as a Municipal Library under authority of Section 17 of the Library Act. The motion carried.

The Secretary-Treasurer informed Council that although she wished to attend the Convention in Lethbridge, Nov. 4, 5 and 6, it would be a bad time to have the office closed. Councillor Jefferson suggested that J. E. Simons be asked to take over for the three days if Mrs. Halverson decided to attend.

Council received notice that the CNR Depot at Tofield is to be closed.

Tofield Library was granted permission to hold a dance at Tofield Hall on October 17th.

Cr. Swift moved that one-third of the total miscellaneous accounts for payment should be charged to Ryley. The secretary-treasurer was asked to write a letter of thanks to the Northwestern Utilities for their assistance in setting up and for making available the gas pipeline for pumping water into the reservoir.

FROM THE SCRAP BOOK

Someone aptly said that growing old is a habit. I have never had time to cultivate that habit yet. But I notice the steps are getting a little higher, the walk to town a little longer and the hills a little steeper . . . perhaps this is a sign.

—J.W.R.

Co-ops are significant in the Alberta economy

Alberta can be proud of the co-operative achievements made in this province. Total volume of business done in 1963 was a 477 million dollars, this business was done through the following types of co-operatives:

Consumer, Livestock, Dairy and Poultry, Feeder, Grain and Seed, Electrical, and Credit Unions.

There are a total of 1,056 co-operatives and Credit Unions in this province with 25% of the people of Alberta holding membership.

One of the two newest co-operative ventures in Alberta is the construction of a 21 million fertilizer manufacturing plant. Another is the establishment of local farm machinery co-ops by groups of farm people.

It is hoped that Alberta people will continue to work together co-operatively to provide themselves with goods and services and to develop the democratic processes which are inherent in the co-operative way of life.

Locals . . .

Weekend visitors with Don and Ella Hardy were Donna and Wendell Thiele of Edmonton and Mr. Chris and his brother, Lloyd, of Calgary.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Campbell and girls of Edmonton were visitors during the long weekend at the Campbell farm and Lions Rodeo.

Jim Campbell spent at last week visiting in Edmonton.

Tofield United Church marks 70 years' service

The Tofield United Church will celebrate the anniversary of worship in the community this Sunday.

In the early years both Presbyterian and Methodist ministers conducted worship in Tofield. The original buildings no longer exist, but one or two pioneer families have been associated with the church since very early times.

Quite early in the century the folly of being separate was realized, and an early form of church union or co-operation was set up. In 1925 when The United Church was established, church union was an old story in Tofield community.

Rev. Gerald Payne, now minister of St. Andrew's United Church at Edmonton, who is Supervisor and President of the Alberta Conference, will preach at morning and evening services. A social hour will follow the evening service.

Mr. Payne has served at Vernon and Nelson in British Columbia, and at Camrose and in St. Andrew's in Alberta. He is a gifted man, and a sincere welcome to other congregations is extended to worship with the United Church folk at the evening hour.

Party at RC Church says farewell to Mrs. Manchur

(Mrs. G. H. Taylor)

HOLDEN — Wednesday evening of last week, a farewell party was held for Mrs. Mike Manchur with approximately 30 ladies being present. The Manchur family moved from Holden recently to make their home in Edmonton. Mrs. Fdna Ruskeveld drove her from Westaick, stopping in Edmonton to pick up Mrs. Manchur to attend the party, which was held in the Roman Catholic Church parlors. As Mrs. Manchur entered the room with Mrs. Steve Komarnisky, a bouquet of carnations was presented on her dress by Mrs. Ruskeveld. Mrs. Joe Chamnike and Mrs Annie Mielnuska were in charge of the entertainment and kept the ladies busy with various games. Mrs. Lawrence Kolusny, president of the RC ladies' aid, presented Mrs. Manchur with a Crucifix and Father Adams spoke a few words thanking her for all her work in the aid and for the church.

Mrs. W. L. Campbell, on behalf of the ladies of the community then presented the guest of honor with an electric frypan, a beautiful stainless steel roaster set, a towel and paper dispenser and a purse of money.

Mrs. Manchur thanked all the ladies who were present and those unable to be there for their gifts and kindness saying she would always remember her many friends in Holden. The evening was brought to a close with all enjoying delicious lunch served by the hostesses.

Thieves busy at Holden

(Mrs. G. H. Taylor)

HOLDEN — Several stores were broken into sometime during Friday night, victims being Nick's Coffee Shop T. A Ltd., Ross Burke's Machinery and Holden school. To date we have not heard the extent of the break-ins but a quantity of cigarettes and other goods along with a sum of money was taken from Nick Bilyk's coffee shop. The police are investigating. Earlier in the week the NADP treasury was broken into and one of the culprits was apprehended, two others making their escape. We hear that the trio were out on bail from a previous crime.

Youngs enjoy 'memory trip' to Banff area

Over the Thanksgiving weekend Mr. and Mrs. Jim Young treated Mr. Young's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Young and Miss Lois Young to a "memory trip" to Banff.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Young were married in Banff almost 40 years ago and had never been back since. Mrs. Young is a pioneer nurse of Alberta and received her training at the Banff School of Nursing at Banff. This school has long since been closed. Miss Young is a graduate of the Provincial Normal building and visited there for one early impression and also a friend who was boarded Mrs Young also had the opportunity of seeing the hospital at Canmore where she nursed. The building is now being remodelled into a rooming house.

The Youngs returned home on Sunday, much pleased with their memory - refreshing and memory-building trip.

Plaudits for AGT

We have heard very few complaints on the service provided by Alberta Government Telephones in Tofield since the major change in equipment of about a month ago. In a switch of such magnitude, particularly when new electronic equipment is doing the job once handled by "number, please" gals, one can expect a few hitches and we would even go so far as to say one might expect many hitches. But such does not seem to be the case in Tofield.

The AGT and their field crews are to be commended for the success of the change, but we feel we should go even further in our praise. We were very impressed with the speed in which the telephone company was able to supply revised directories. No sooner were the new telephones installed than a new directory was made available, this directory a special issue for Tofield and district subscribers. We don't know how other offices in town have fared, but we speak from experience when we say the AGT is generous with its supply of directories. We have needed extra copies. We asked for them, and by return mail they were in our hands. This is service that deserves recognition.

Second fiddle to flag

A Canadian Press dispatch from Ottawa last week reads:

OTTAWA . . . The Canadian Bill of Rights does not grant taxpayers the right to be present at revenue department inquiries at which their financial affairs are being investigated.

The Supreme Court of Canada ruled this Tuesday in a judgement granting the appeal by the revenue department against Quebec Court judgements ruling that Rene LaDuc of Montreal had that right.

Our guess is that the Supreme Court was interpreting the law as it stands, not as it ought to be; this, after all, is their function.

But with a shocking situation such as this, denying every right expected from a court of justice, it is incomprehensible why our parliamentarians are spending so much time fooling around with the design of a flag which may or not be a symbol of unity.

Rarely written into the law, but insisted into the regulations, for the convenience of departments of government, technicalities such as these are usually considered to be there only for "exceptional cases", to help the department hook the "big offenders". And since most people will never be in the big league field, they acquiesce in the hope the big crooks will be dealt justice.

But the end does not justify the means. The weight of might is still with the government, even if it takes a little longer to do the job properly. And the evil and the error of the law are there just as much for the little guy as the big fellow.

John Diefenbaker saw his Canadian Bill of Rights enacted apparently to protect Canadians against just such absurdity. We wonder what he'd been doing in the face of this denial of rights. What, for that matter, has Cliff Smallwood been doing?

Are they content to argue the flag question while we slip back to a type of Star Court?

By George!

I don't know if everyone in this city and district finds life, personally, as hectic as I do what with service organization's with its meetings, conventions, club work and the countless other activities one finds in an up and coming community, but this year sure seems busier every year. This seems to be the case particularly in the fall after a fairly quiet two months when clubs and other extra-curricular activities hit the low ebb.

But in spite of the busy season, I did manage to find the time to watch one complete game in the world series, and I believe it must have been the best of the series to date. This was the Thanksgiving 12 to 5 battle, when the good old St. Louis Cardinals, the come-back boys of the year, had to go into extra innings to subdue those D - - - Yankees. It is not beyond the realms of possibility that the Cards will take the series, and since this is being written prior to today's game, this prediction shall may have been verified in all the game.

Incidental to the trip, Mrs. Chris Lotzwel wife of a cousin of Mrs. Simson, entertained 25 relatives on Sunday, Oct. 4th, some of whom Mrs. Simson had not seen for over 40 years.

Editor, The Mercury,
Dear Sir:

On my short trip East I got as far as Ottawa. When I asked at the Bank of Commerce here I felt a deep ill - ease in my soul. When I went up the High rise of the Peace Tower I felt a sense of pride in the achievements of my countrymen of another day before me. When I was reminded of those brash deeds of which it is written in that silent chapel I, too, became silent. When I read those inscriptions cut deep into that stone I was moved by an abiding affection for my Parliament and for my Country.

But when I sat in that gallery where the chamber of that House I felt discomfort in my soul, a sort of saddened sorrow. Parliament is gone There is no Parliament today. They insult one another, joke with one another, clown with one another, scale and rail names. Who can give an answer yet? And yet they talk of higher salaries . . .

Yours very truly,
R. Armstrong.

MacDuff Ottawa report: The Queen of Canada

OTTAWA Tight security arrangements with the attendance of things so foreign to Canada as bullet-proof cars has done a good deal to rob the Queen's 1964 welcome of its warmth and spontaneity.

There could be no question of the success of the first Royal visit in 1939 when a King and Queen accepted themselves from the official party and were had in a record of cheering and welcome. This visit is expected even in Quebec as well as other provinces and never a thought was given by the men on the street to possible danger. Canada were screamed then as they were on this occasion but few knew it and still fewer cared.

Never more unfortunate was the fact that reports of pre-cautionary measures also recalled the emphasis on the constitutional importance of the 1964 visit which had been carefully planned in the light of Canadian developments. It was at Quebec in 1939 that the Canada subject to a British monarch has not been developed nearly so quickly. Constitutionally, it was established clearly with the Statute of Westminster in 1931 but as late as 1939 Prime Minister Mackenzie King had a difficult time impressing it on Lord Tweedsmuir, then Governor General Mr King insisted that while the monarch was the Canadian well he Tweedsmuir had to read states and that the King must be consulted and kept informed on matters affecting Canada. Mackenzie King's interpretation of 1939 is given credit as part in the Royal tour than the place given today to the leader of His Majesty's loyal opposition. Just which these have complaints

THE RIGHT TO RESIGN

The concept of a Canadian Monarch today is being established deliberately by advocates of republicanism who are using the British Crown to foster Government against a boyhood sovereign.

M. Marcel Faribault, brilliant and Quebec lawyer and president of the General Trust of Canada, would certainly not be classed as an extremist nor does a Conservative conference on nationalist minds held recently in Fredericton appear the same aggressive place for extreme ideas. Yet one of Frederton and drafted by M. Faribault states a successful formula for a new Canadian constitution, one aspects of which reads:

"Canada is a free independent member of the British Commonwealth of nations and as such it acknowledges the Queen of England as its titular head."

Not only would she no longer be Queen of Canada but would no longer have any part in the government of Canada. Her representative would be a Governor-General appointed by her on the advice of the Canadian Government. The Governor-General of 1939 is given credit for a very important role in Quebec City — one that was performed almost entirely from this quarter where French Canada's interests have been protected over the years by the monarchy at its building the Liberal Government at Ottawa has by no means been so well protected over the years by the strength of the Monarchy in Canada and with it national unity rather than the presence of the Queen in Quebec.

CAPITAL HILL CAPSULES

Chances of Finance Minister Gordon Churchill's budget giving any more health tax reductions are growing brighter. On the basis of six months revenue experience it appears that Mr Gordon is going to end the fiscal year with a deficit not very much above $200 million or about half the $400 million predicted by March. A year ago and even more recently this would have led to predictions of an attempt to balance the budget in 1965-66. There is a change in thinking. With an economy growing at a record rate per cent growth rate expected in the year if it is to keep pace with a rapidly growing labour force an additional 300,000 may be needed in the next few years. Also, the federal government may be called on to offset the deficits of provincial governments. Spokesmen of Ontario and Quebec have made it quite plain that they would welcome more room for manoeuvre. Therefore deficit financing for a few years could accomplish two purposes.

Industry Minister C. M. Drury's efforts to find an alternative to ban some purely tariff protection plans that will be acceptable to the Americans are getting attention on Parliament Hill. There is little doubt now that efforts of the auto part manufacturers in the United States to have the Treasury Department change on countervailing duties that would make the Canadian economic protection will be successful. Washington officials are interested in an alternative which would involve reciprocal free entry of parts and cars.

Six infringements

By C. J. Harris

It has become a common complaint that constitutional guarantees of the citizen's liberty are being voided by executive authorities granted to governmental departments bureaus and officials. A Providence lawyer, speaking to the civil liberties section of the Canadian Bar Association, recently cited six specific instances of infringements under the income tax act.

The Act, said lawyer Eugene J. Mockler, provides that a citizen must answer any question put by a tax department investigator either orally or in writing and either on oath or by statutory declaration. I consider this provision as a mockery of the right against self-incrimination. Even the police in the investigation of such important crimes as murder, arson, treason and others cannot compel a person to answer questions on oath.

Mr. Mockler criticized the attitude of the department that a taxpayer is not entitled to a transcript of the evidence taken at a hearing. "Surely, if he is entitled to be present and represented, he is entitled to have the complete record of the proceedings," he declared.

The search and seizure by Frederickton lawyer believes the department should be compelled to give particulars of the items it wants. Until the time of search to daylight hours unless otherwise ordered by a court, allow the taxpayer access to the documents provided for an appeal against a judge's order and insure that the solicitor-client privilege extends to the client.

Under the legislation the Minister of National Revenue has authority to act as Judge, Jury and advocate. "The levy of a penalty is very similar to a conviction," said Mr. Mockler, "but before a man is convicted in court he is presumed innocent and he shall be entitled to defend against and to protect his reputation at the same time. No similar right exists respecting the minister's decision."

When the department goes to court accused Mr. Mockler it should be compelled to form an adversarial that makes clear the charge against the accused "If the prosecution stage we are looking not with tax law but with criminal law. Complete protection of rights and liberties is demanded by our legal system. Anything less cannot be tolerated."

Finally, the Fredericton lawyer charged that the department's policy of selective prosecutions — choosing a few bank examples — undermines tax compliance. He contrasts the concept of civil rights

"Perhaps the legal fraternity can see such retrogression more clearly than most, but press and public must join their protest. Bureaucracy seeking to make its job easier for itself is today's foe of the citizen's vital, inherited rights to liberty, freedom and justice.

At the time of the 1961 census about two-thirds of Canada's population resided in the 308 urban centres of 5,000 population and over.

Of Canada's 17 million households, 80 per cent have electricity, 94 per cent have mechanical refrigerators, 80 per cent have television sets and 67 per cent have powered washing machines.

On its centenary in 1956 two-thirds of the city of Hull was destroyed by a $15 million fire; it was rebuilt partly by donations from the city of Hull in England.

YOU ARE THE DETECTIVE

A telephone call to a phone booth on the edge of the little factory town Tom Radcliff, the proprietor who made the call, meets you and conducts you to the back room of his station where the safe was blown open the previous night and cash receipts of more than $400 stolen from it. "I think I have a suspect for you, too, "Radcliff explains. "Take a look at this evidence".

He leads you outside and around the station to a window that has been pried open. He points down to the muddy, clay ground in the area of the window. There imprinted in the ground are some distinctly outlined footprints about 20 inches apart, leading to and away from the window. "Look at the enormous size of those prints," Radcliff says. "There's only one fellow in town here who wears shoes that big. Mike Collins and I'll bet he's the guy who pulled this job."

After receiving directions from Radcliff, you drive to the bowling house where Collins lives, but there you find that only his roommate, Ted Bingham, is in. When you explain to him that you're working on the gasoline station robbery, he exclaims, "I've been wondering about that. Mike left here early this morning and I don't know where he went—but I saw the muddy shoes he left here. I'll show them to you".

He goes into the next room, then emerges carrying a pair of huge, muddy shoes "Hey, aren't they!" he remarks. "Mike is six feet nine inches tall, more than a foot taller than me. I always thought he was a good, honest guy . . . at least he's always been straight with me. I never dreamed he'd even think of doing a thing like this".

"Let's not be too hasty in judging him now", you put in. "Suppose you come with me, and we'll take a few measurements".

Accompanied by Bingham, you drive back to the service station where, surely enough, Mike Collins' two enormous shoes fit exactly into the prints on the ground under the window.

"I guess that just about locks up your case", remarks Bingham as he fumbles in a crumpled pack for a cigarette, stuffs it into his mouth, and lights it. "I hate the idea of big, old Mike getting himself into a jam like this . . . he must have really needed money".

You gaze for a moment at the short, stocky figure of Ted Bingham as he nervously paces about puffing spasmodically on his cigarette, then you say, "As a matter of fact, I don't think it's Mike who is in this jam. What did you do with the money, Bingham?"

Why do you suspect Ted Bingham of the robbery, instead of Mike Collins?

SOLUTION

The distance of only about 20 inches between the footprints on the ground has made you suspicious. Surely a big, tall man of six feet nine inches would have a longer stride than 20 inches. Also, there is the fact that when you called at the boarding house, and before you had even mentioned the crime, evidence you had the huge footprints in the mud—Ted Bingham was entirely too eager and too much prepared to blame you Mike Collins' shoes. This leads you to suspect that he staged the robbery, wearing his roommate's shoes in order to leave the false clues in the mud—and making such smaller strides that Collins would doubtless have made.

Modern Etiquette . . .

Q. When a person makes a phone call, shouldn't he be the one to terminate the call, not the person who was called?

A. This is not too important really. When you get right down to it, the person who becomes tired of talking first or the one who is more pressed for time can rightfully terminate the call.

Q. When a man finds it necessary to introduce himself, does he prefix "Mr." to his name?

A. No. He can say "I am Douglas Kendall", or, "My name is Kendall", unless of course he has the title of Doctor, which he then properly includes with his name.

Q. How does one properly eat a hard-boiled egg at the table—an egg that is still in its shell?

A. Tap it gently with the blade of your knife, strip off the shell, and eat the egg with your fingers.

Q. What is the proper length of time for a young woman to wear mourning for her father?

A. There is no "proper" length of time, this depending entirely upon her feelings in the matter. The custom of wearing mourning is not nearly so strict as it formerly was, and there are many people now who do not consider it necessary at all.

Q. I've just received an invitation to an "open house". Am I supposed to bring a gift of some kind?

A. No. An "open house" is more or less in the nature of a reception. If, however, you are invited to a "house warming", then you would bring some sort of gift.

Q. When a wedding gift is given to a bridegroom by his fellow workers in an office, should he thank them, or should his bride (who does not know them) thank them?

A. He should thank them.

Q. Is it considered in good taste to mail out handwritten announcements of a marriage?

A. This is all right if the bride or her mother wish to take the time and trouble to write them. However, if the mailing list is large, it would seem that the stereotyped engraved announcements are preferable.

Q. Sometimes I see people at the dinner table helping themselves to a slice of bread by spearing it with their forks. Is this proper?

A. Definitely not! Help yourself to the bread with your fingers. Never use the fork or any other of your individual pieces of silver to help yourself from any common serving dish.

Q. I realize that hostesses and wives are not usually seated together around a dinner table. Does this likewise apply to engaged couples?

A. Usually, yes.

Q. When a businessman invites another man to lunch, who gives the order to the waitress?

A. Each man gives his own order.

Gary Fry

of Edmonton

AN ALBERTA JUNIOR CITIZEN OF THE YEAR

Imagine yourself, as a twelve-year old boy, having complete charge of a household — shopping, cooking, cleaning, washing, ironing and maintaining a large kitchen garden. Gary not only does all this, but also cares for his mother, who is confined to a wheelchair. He takes her for walks after school — helps her with copper tooling and ceramic tile work. He can stuff and cook a turkey. He waxes and polishes the floors, and still maintains above-average grades at school. We congratulate Gary, and thank Alberta's Weekly Newspaper Editors for their active co-operation in the Alberta Junior Citizen of the Year program sponsored by Alberta's investor-owned electric utility companies.

This is one of a series of Junior Citizen Award announcements. Our special thanks to D. McLeod, Editor of the Suburban Times, and to Gary's nominator, Mrs. R. B. Jarron of Edmonton.

The channel tunnel at last?

Great Britain may not be an island for very much longer. Last month a start was made on the much-discussed Channel Tunnel. A geological survey of the Channel has begun to determine the precise line the tunnel will take, and whether it should be bored or dredged. The survey will take about a year to complete and will cost around £5 million. The Channel Tunnel Study Group which commissioned the survey is a joint British, French and American private venture, operating in conjunction with French and British governments.

Talk of a Channel Tunnel has gone on for a long time, even as far back as Napoleon's engineers drew up a detailed plan in 1802 a plan which marked a brief lull in the Napoleonic wars. Not unnaturally the idea was rejected by the British government of the day.

Fifty years passed before any further consideration was given to the idea, and then in 1930 the French and British governments gave their sanction for underground work and we are pleased to hear that it is making steady progress after recent surgery.

With the cooler days of late fall and early winter approaching, colds will begin to become a problem. With many colds will come ear infections, many of which can be traced directly to simply not knowing how to blow one's nose. Blow gently with both nostrils open. When we blow through one nostril at a time, a backpressure is created which can force mucus-laden material into the tubes that lead from throat to ears, and into the middle ear itself.

The story of the lost father

The Christian Vanguard

A certain man had two sons and the younger of them said to his father, "Father, give me the portion of your time and talents that belongeth unto me," and he severed himself and was removed which in my day.

Believing himself to be wise the father divided his substance; he paid the bills for his son and placed his son in a "proper" boarding school. Then by believing he had fulfilled all his fatherly duties, went his way.

A few days later, the father gathered all his interests and projects and journeyed into a far country, into a pattern of life in which there was no room for a boy. He wasted the precious opportunity of being a father and helpmate to his son.

When he had thus spent the best years of his life, buying for earthly treasure he suddenly discovered that he was not really happy. He began to be in want.

Seeking to satisfy his want he joined an organization and he and he was elected president. He also joined other organizations in prominent positions.

He soon would have filled his days to the brim with the duties appropriate to his station. He was heard of the truth of Jesus' words, "Whosoever becometh great among you, let him be your minister." He became a man of many friends and acquaintances.

As a result of my acquaintances have some with whom they share mutual understanding? How many live in a manner and manner friendship with their sons, while I perish there with hunger?" I will go to my son, and say to him, "Son I have sinned against heaven and in thy sight; I am no more worthy to be called your father accept me as one of your acquaintances."

And he arose and went to his son.

While he was yet afar off, his son saw him coming, and he was very greatly surprised, indeed surprised that he should fall on his neck and kissing him, the son felt unconfortable and recovered back with great hesitation.

The father, however, in desperation spoke, "Son, I have sinned against heaven and in your sight; I am no longer worthy to be called your father. Forgive me and let us be friends."

But the son replied, "No! I wish it were still possible that you have waited so long. When I needed your friendship and your fatherly advice, you were too busy. I sought fatherly confidence from others and found them willing to counsel me but their counsel was corrupt. What more can I say?

"You are too late!"

Dr. Kendall foresees standard for university entrance

Dr. Lorne Kendall foresees national college entrance board exams for Canada.

Dr. Kendall was born in Tofield, and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kendall of Tofield.

Dr. Kendall, newly-appointed head of Simon Fraser University's department of psychology, is currently working with the educational testing service of Princeton, New Jersey. That organization constructs, administers and evaluates tests for the College Entrance Examination Board.

The board represents U.S. universities using standard entrance tests in selecting students.

There is no comparable body in Canada — in B.C. selection is based on department of education grade 12 exams.

Dr. Kendall feels Canadian educators are recognizing the advantages of having a college entrance board. In fact, two groups are now working on standard Canadian exams, one for English-speaking and one for French-speaking students.

Well-designed standard tests have advantages over the present system in both effectiveness and economy.

The tests are also quicker and cheaper to administer and mark.

Twisted compassion

The Most Rev. Fulton J. Sheen, Auxiliary Bishop of New York, wonders whether the world has not gone too far if its sympathy with the criminal is destroying its indictable quality. It seems to be becoming twisted. Bishop Sheen feels the quality of compassion is being twisted to mean "compassion for the criminal, the man, the breaker of the law," rather than compassion for their victims.

Something the same was said about accident cases recently by Chief Justice McRuer, when he retired after 20 years on the High Court of Ontario. "There's much too light a value being placed on human life," he said. "All the focus in criminal auto accident cases before the courts is on the accused. The person whose life is destroyed is viewed very much as a mere statistic."

There is pretty reason why the criminal should receive every consideration and justice and humane treatment for rehabilitation. But there may be a danger that his victim becomes the forgotten person in it all. The suggestion made from time to time that the law should provide compensation for the victims of crime, or their families, is not without its merits. It would bring back an awareness that crime does terrible things to its victims. They deserve a little compassion too.

EMO control room course scheduled for Tofield from January 11 to 15

The proposed control room course for Tofield and Viking was discussed at the meeting of Beaver Emergency Measures unit held at Ryley. Fred Thompson of the Northern Zone Headquarters advised that the next available week in which the headquarters staff could help would be January 11-15, 1965, and that February and March were open. It was therefore agreed that a control room course be held in Tofield next January 11-15, and that one be held in Viking in February, the date to be set after consulting Mr. Thompson. A letter from the secretary-treasurer of the Town of Viking advised that Robert J. Venchiss has been appointed as co-ordinator for Viking. This was accepted by the meeting.

An amendment on municipal radiological defence was presented. County Taylor advised that he had made arrangements for all radiological information to be forwarded to Rex Boyles as chief radiological officer.

The secretary advised that an Orientation Course would be held October 19-23, and it was moved by Dorin that the co-ordinator try to get candidates so that course and that the information be received and filed.

MRS. BOYLES TO RETIRE

The secretary read a letter from Mrs. Mable Boyles the Town of Tofield in which she states she will not continue as Councillor for the Town of Tofield after her present term expires. However, she said she would continue until a new co-ordinator is appointed.

Mr. Westminster said it was expected that rescue courses would be put on during the winter. He mentioned that the demonstrations that were put on in Tofield and Holden were well done and hoped they were well received by the spectators.

The 1965-66 budget was discussed. Mr. Thompson noted that this should be as realistic as possible and that the unit should not budget for more than it is reasonably certain it is going to spend.

The final budget for 1965-66 set out amounts as follows: Personal service $1,500; travel $450; material and supplies, $100; rent and utilities, $35; and other expenditures, $65, for a total of $2,215. The budget is to be submitted to Northern Zone Headquarters for approval.

The secretary noted that the unit had budgeted for $200 for rescue equipment and that this would have to be purchased before March 31st, 1965, and it was agreed that the secretary get together with Roland Booth, rescue director, and determine what is required in rescue equipment and purchase it.

The magazine sales this year were excellent and the students would like to thank everyone who supported the campaign. If anyone has not been contacted and would like to buy a subscription they need only to phone the school and someone will be sent out. The sales had some excitement added to them when the girls challenged the boys to a sales contest. The result: the girls came out leading and the boys are planning an ice cream and cake party in honor of the girls.

On October 15th a close exciting game between the Ryley Basketball team and Tofield ended with the score 21-20, the Ryley team winning.

Thursday, Oct. 29th, Tofield will play Holden.

Plans for initiation of the Grade 10 are well underway and promise loads of fun, fun, fun!

IT TAKES A FISH TO CATCH A FISH

And what a fish it is, as you can see. Weighing five lbs., 13 ozs., and measuring 23 inches in length, it is believed to be the biggest fish ever to be caught in Black Nugget Lake, located 13 miles south-east of Tofield. A coincidence, too, the beautiful rainbow trout was pulled in last Thursday by Johnny Fish, of Ryley. —Photo by Peter Nickel.

Local brigade discovers fire trap in the school

(By Peter Nickel)

Parents of the local Grade 1 pupils can be most thankful for the local fire brigade and their promptness in spotting possible fire traps. Were it not for them we can willingly devote their time, at the same time giving an excellent fire-fighting service; a fire trap would have continued to go unnoticed.

While moving an inspection of the Tofield School last Monday evening for the purpose of discovering likely places a fire could break out where to enter, the group was taken to the Grade 1 School, where it was discovered that one classroom had only one exit, and to make matters worse this exit was immediately above the furnace—the most likely spot for a fire to start. Should a fire start from the furnace, the only exit would be the windows, which do not open, and would have to be broken to gain exit. This is a member of the brigade commented, "would be equally hazardous, as the children would then have to jump into a mess of broken glass".

To combat this problem, the brigade immediately filled out an inspection report, asking that another exit be placed on the north side of the west room in the Grade 1 building.

The one of the time, according to Principal Mr. Lewis and Janitor W. E. Lindsay, found everything in order, with an exceptionally good job of caretaking noted by the fire-fighters.

The was only one of several inspections the local brigade has made recently with many more on the list yet to be covered.

Not a fish story— Fish catches a fish

(M. W. Westmancoat)

RYLEY — There have been many fish stories during the year about the good and bad luck that fishermen have had in the district, but we have one for the record this week. On Thursday, Oct. 15th, Jefferde Fish caught a beauty, a five rainbow trout in the Black Nugget Coal Mine that tipped the scales at 5 lbs., 13 ozs.

AN ALBERTA JUNIOR CITIZEN OF THE YEAR

It was early Spring - pussywillow time - and David and his three friends wanted to surprise their mothers with bouquets of these early spring blooms. Suddenly there was a cry for help! One of the children, Gary Summers, had slipped into the icy water of a partly frozen beaver lagoon. Her brother Patrick jumped - but was unable to reach his sister.

Quick-witted 13-year old David lay down on the ice and, at considerable friend Gregerson Rogers grasped his ankles. Thanks to this "human chain" David was able to reach and rescue his two friends.

We congratulate David Kilford, who is also an active Cub member. We also congratulate Jonathon Rogers for his part in the heroic rescue, and thank Alberta's largest newspaper Editors for their active co-operation in the Alberta Junior Citizen of the Year program sponsored by Alberta's investor-owned electric utility companies.

Work with retarded can be thrilling

. . . SAYS MINISTER

Probably one of the biggest difficulties faced by people trying to understand the retarded child is the normal habit of relating mental capacity with physical size said Alberta Education Minister the Hon Randolph McKinnon Saturday evening. He was addressing the annual banquet of the newly formed Association of Retarded Children's Associations of Alberta

Tremendous research is being done in the field of retardation said the minister. One of the most important fields is psychide motivation, for children are motivated in much the same way as are adults, though the big difficulty is to get some motivation with children in years or years

The trend is to smaller units for teaching children in this category, the minister said Teachers more and more are realizing how much retarded children have all the features and failings of normal children and that through positive encouragement they can be benefit along

Citing the development of the Mannifred Bowsett school in Edmonton, Mr. McKinnon said a tour through this school is a thrilling experience. Watching the methods employed in this school alone how much progress can be made associated with groups such as gathered for the meeting, he said.

Following Mr McKinnon Col F. Carmack of Edmonton, and a member of both of the federal and provincial executive groups declared the most pressing need of these groups today is to find and provide an environment suitable for graduates of schools such as now exist. These are the pupils over 21, he said, who can no longer attend the schools

Col Carmack foresee the establishment of a chain of mental retardates at the university in Edmonton as part of the experimental program being planned both by government agencies and associations of retarded He suggested the particular project of research first engaging this department would be the effects of providing the best possible environment for retarded children from the ages of four years and up

Schools like that at Camrose exist to fill the gap that existed among pupils below the upper-county class level, said Col. Carmack "We call them the 'transitables'" he added. As the need for these schools grew, he forecast development of residences, particularly in the rural area, so that children would not need to be moved too far from the influence of home

Pointing to the heightened interest in the work, the speaker announced a meeting on Monday of this week, called by the Hon. Judy LaMarsh, for federal and provincial officials to study the type of help which could be provided and should be offered

THE CATCH

Hearing of the big one that didn't get away from Johnny Fish the previous day, Frank Kortzenon of Tofield, above, set out for Black Nugget Lake last Friday to catch the mate and he did, too, as he proudly shows it here. He was a little disappointed, though, when it weighed out five pounds, eight ounces, five ounces less than Mr. Fish's catch. "It wasn't all fish," Mr. Kortzenon exclaimed, "the trout beat the hook and nearly got away, so I had to go into the water after him."

OLDTIMERS

History is present in this photo showing Ed Stinson on the left holding the out-of-date telephone for probably the last time. Now 25 years out of date, the old phone has served Mr. Stinson, the former town secretary for the past 25 years, as soon as the secretary before him, Bill Chapman, for 22 years. As the automatic telephone was recently installed, this oldtimer, about 50 years old, had to go and is shown here being donated to the Tofield Historical Society where it will take its place in preserving history. President H. Schultz is on the right, accepting the phone which was donated by Alberta Government Telephones. Photo by Peter Nichol.

County school meet . . .

School be made with the County's maintenance crew doing the work

The new procedure in the treatment of representatives from towns and villages to the County School Committee was discussed and it was decided that, as already outlined in 1956, the fourth representative should be invited to attend the meetings although he would have no voting power and would not receive any remuneration from the County

The Supt. referred to the fact that in some of the schools janitors were in the habit of locking the furnace room doors. These doors should at all times be left open so that the furnace rooms would be really accessible. This had been pointed out to the janitors on several occasions but some of them would not abide by this regulation

It was moved and carried unanimously that the janitors be instructed that the furnace room doors must be left open at all times.

It was noted that the representative from the Town of Tofield, George Arnett, had been absent from three consecutive School Committee meetings without permission and as provided in Sec 59(d) of the School Act and Sec 3(2)(e) of the Municipal District Act. It was moved and carried unanimously that George Arnett's seat on the School Committee be declared vacant and that the secretary of the Town of Tofield be requested to arrange for an election to fill the vacancy

It was decided that Cr. Magowan would act on the building committee for the Tofield school until a replacement for Mr. Arnett had been elected.

Beaver county council meets Oct. 8

The regular meeting of the Council, County of Beaver No. 9 was held on Thursday, Oct. 8th. Present were Crs. W. A. Davis, A. L. Gilbert, W. Kreuselenski, E. M. Magnuson, J. H. Reddick and H. Weatherill.

MINUTES

In the matter of veterinarian for the western part of the county, it was noted that Dr. William C. Stiles was planning an office in Tofield and would be interested in the Brucellosis vaccination in that area. The Tofield supervisor had said that he had discussed this matter with Dr. Tiddell of the Vegreville Veterinary Clinic but there was no indication that this clinic was still interested in establishing themselves in the western part of the county Dr. Stiles had attended the meeting and had stated that, if he was given the vaccination, he would get together with Dr. Tiddell and go over the present boundaries to see if any changes should be made and it was considered that Dr. Stiles and Dr. Tiddell could make any necessary changes by mutual agreement.

It was moved and carried unanimously that the arrangements in regards to Dr. Wm C. Stiles establishing himself in the town of Tofield be accepted.

Concerning the Round Hill Flood Control Project, motion No. 64-64, the new agreement between the council that Mr. A. Stiles would agree with the department of water resources that the municipality in regards to the corrections be made to the covenants and the property in the matter of sharing of the cost of this project. Mr. Stroome had indicated that it could take from a month to six weeks before the agreement was signed by the minister of agriculture. He was quite certain that the agreement would be approved and had suggested that the county could call for tenders for this work and get the work started. If the county was to wait until the agreement was signed it would be too late to have the work done this fall. The new terms had therefore called for tenders advertising them in the three papers circulating in the county, and in the Edmonton Journal with tenders to be submitted not later than October 15th 1964. He had also written the County of Camrose No. 22, requesting that consideration be given to a straight contribution of $3,000.00 into the drainage proposal. A letter from the County of Camrose No. 22 stated that the council of the County of Camrose No. 22 had decided to adhere to their original decision, i.e., they would match the contributions from ratepayers from both counties dollar for dollar to a maximum of $3,000.00.

It was moved and carried unanimously that the report be

Fifty years back

Half a century is hardly far enough back to suggest something comes out the misty past, yet we confess to being intrigued yesterday at reading an item from the files of fifty years ago that a new marching song for the British Army was becoming popular around London. Titled "It's A Long Way to Tipperary" that song became popular all the way round the world and still is a favorite. We knew it was a favorite of World War I, but we didn't know if it was written then, or reached back maybe to Bundleon

Donkey or elephant?

Probably the most important item on the horizon at the moment, even transcending the expected announcement from Ottawa's flag committee tomorrow, will be the American elections next Tuesday. Right across the country, many of us have friends, relatives or roots on the other side of the border, but either way, most Canadians will take a keen interest in the results. We don't know how you're betting, but at the moment it would seem you could get pretty good odds if your money is riding on Goldwater.

Get the whole picture

Employers all across the country are concerned, as are members of several provincial governments, over Ottawa looking around with a national minimum wage bill. In theory, it's pretty easy to justify the need for a fair wage bill, but conditions vary so much from one end of the country to the other, that it's almost impossible to come up with a national minimum which would be acceptable. If it's acceptable in the higher cost centres of the industrial East, then it would almost certainly be cost of reach for the many rural areas in centres where both wages and living costs tend to be much lower. And if the basic wages were based on what these areas could afford, it would almost certainly be bitterly contested by the organized labor unions of the central provinces.

The figure of $1.25 was mentioned in early discussions, while the postmaster general announced this week that casual Christmas labor would be paid a national scale of 95 cents an hour. Here in Alberta this is above what even the labor councils are suggesting would be fair having in mind the cost of living increases since the last amendment of the minimum wage, which now stands at 85 cents for males.

Ottawa paints with a pretty broad brush, so its important that it can see the whole view when it starts painting. Otherwise part of the country may get smeared.

Mrs. Dull Ottawa report

Things to come

OTTAWA — In dense fog sessions, enough in the pastand cold national misery to satisfy any confirmed masochist, the Dominion Government has opened the show of things to come. This is merely a trailer of what happens, a Coming soon.

Power and decisions is shifting from the federal authority to the provinces or to a kind of federal-provincial conference.

Just recently the federal and provincial leaders met together at Ottawa and made no effort to conceal their differences.

They agreed on a few issues to submit the Canadian constitution, but not to the Dominion Parliament, thereby opening the way for grabbing the unexpected powers at the conference table. Ottawa.

Where this may lead is anybody's guess but a kind of "Balkanization" of Canada is not ruled out.

Ottawa agreed on an amendment giving the provinces more control over unemployment insurance, while the federal government retains exclusive legislative authority. Confederation.

The provinces have asserted themselves. They have come of age. They know more concerning their own needs than the federal government does.

They are willing and able to make decisions. They are willing to accept responsibilities which the federal government has been exercising.

The provinces have asserted themselves. They have come of age. They know more concerning their own needs than the federal government does.

They are willing and able to make decisions. They are willing to accept responsibilities which the federal government has been exercising.

This is itself a something new in Canadian politics. It is a development that disturbs some people. Mr. Pearson is assailed as a man who is surrendering the rights of federal authority to the provinces.

Mr. Lesage has his reservations, too. They want to have done such successful federalists and Ottawa, to set up their own independent nation along the lines of Lawrence River.

CHANGED POWER BASE

But there's more valid criticism of this self-imposed ignorance. It can be said with reason that the federal-provincial conference is lessening the true power of making decisions in Canada.

In recent months the federal and provincial governments have only dealt with a have the procedural forms of treaties between sovereign countries.

The change is that the federal parliament is by-passed inside a rubber stamp that the federal executive branch cannot exercise its constitutional power over provincial matters.

This young confederation has never been tested in the terms of what servants it wants and needs and which of its governments it would provide best. This is often as a federation and it becomes an party of the provincial governments.

BY PASSING PEOPLE

Many say too, power has and the people of Canada have in these respective provinces have made it clear that the things they want from governments are those things that can be provided only by provincial governments or by a kind of federal-provincial working agency.

The federal government remains unknown in its fields as the provincial governments are also sovereign in some areas and always have been, though they sometimes have been delayed again and again.

Now the provinces are gaining power and they intend to use it. If the things which most people are going to be done on a national scale then there must be a kind of continuous negotiation between the two levels of government.

Mainly through the federal-provincial conference the two levels are working towards unity of purpose and more valid relationships.

MORE CHANGE AHEAD

This will be a likelihood lead to gradual changes in the constitution and a machinery for the legitimate exercise of authority.

WARM DAYS, COLD KNIGHTS given with our modern heating systems and... We've got things too soft i... This autumn ... heating bills were not from last ni... grand-long grow of them!

Knights of the Round Table last many a moonless nonchalant because physically they weren't quite up to par.

Chaser of their frequent assemblies could be traced right to the castle inadequate home heating.

Merlin the renowned magician could only scratch his head in bewilderment when a lamentation been brought demanded: "Get rid of the chilly draft in the castle"

Since only fireplaces were used for heating the castle no doubt the poor knights were often times more afflicted than others. Imagine dropping into a cold suit of armor on a frosty November morn!

Merlin would be thunderstruck if he could see the marvelous advancements that have been made in home heating since the days of King Arthur. Maybe the knights of old sometimes were not in top condition but it would be a safe bet that there is a lower percentage of people in good physical condition today.

CHRISTIAN — MISYK

St. Gregory's Catholic Church at Holden was the scene of a lovely wedding on September 5, when Maria Victoria, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dmytro Wyah of Bruce, was united in matrimony with Noel Edward Krystian son of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Christian of Ryley. Rev. Father Adams conducted the nuptial mass. The happy couple will make their home at Ryley.

Diary of a vagabond

(By Dorothy Barber)

Farewell 6167!

What does a railroad buff look like? Apparently like any ordinary bloke except for a gleam in his eye and unbelievable fortitude. I saw some 900 of the clan, mainly members and friends of the Upper Canada Railway Society on a cool, drizzly fall day. Crowded in 12 coaches with standing room only in the baggage car, they travelled from Toronto to Huntsville. The attraction was said to be the out of colour of that time of year in the leaves of the hard maples and birch that abound in this area of the Muskoka Lakes. If the truth were acknowledged, most of the passengers had taken the trip to pay a last tribute to the CP's old 6167, a venerable steam engine headed for the scrap heap.

For the second time in my years I was greeted with a "all right em" declaration when I requested a ticket for this excursion. It would appear that a very large segment of our population is acquiring the "travel by rail" habit! Stranded in Vancouver without a reservation the last summer wasn't too hard for me to take! I was sure, sooner or later there would be another train headed east with space for me to repose for the three day and night journey. 6167, however, may never turn another wheel.

It seemed important to me to find another means of transportation so that I could take part in the tribute to the past. It landed me on the bridge that spans the CP tracks on the main highway just as the old lady, puffing and puffing and being urged by locomotive 6724 rejuvenated for excursion purposes, came over the horizon.

A GALA SIGHT

Practically the entire population greet train and passengers. The streets of this lovely, craggy town must never have crowded with humanity, even in the height of the tourist season, than on that Saturday afternoon. And Nature, even in a soggy mood, put on a pageant of color that stirred awe and admiration, especially among those railway enthusiasts who had travelled from the "deep south" and other heavily populated areas of the United States to attend this wake for the old engine.

After the first excitement of the reception for camera addicts and the tape recorders and when the human squeals of pleasure was over, most of those aboard tramped up to the lookout, or commandeered cars to take them to spectacular points of vantage which abound in this area of Ontario.

I visited Marjorie Pressnire in her home on nearby Vernon Lake. I had read in one of our national magazines about the star carpet she embroidered. It had secured so favorable a print I wanted to see this amazing creation with my own eyes. The small black and white cut which appeared in the magazine with the text could hardly do justice to Miss Demaine's endeavor. Depicting the history of the Demaine family, it is embroidered on chiffon and hugs in brie twine. The colors are exquisite and the quaint primitive figures tell the story of this family, so well known in the area, from the earliest settler to the two brothers and their talented sister who now reside on the farm.

Miss Demaine is also a correspondent for the local weekly newspaper, the Huntsville Forester; she acts on the Ridout Township Fair Board; is hostess during the summer and bowling season to many guests who repeat their visits year after year, and is a photography hobbyist who has had a number of her colored pictures chosen for reproduction on postcards. More than 300 people have called to see the carpet since it made print. Most are registered in her guest book and will be reminders of a summer season when leaves have fallen and tourists departed.

Modern Etiquette . . .

Q. Is it ever proper to leave one's spoon in the coffee cup or in a bowl of any kind during a meal?

A. Not usually. There are, however, these exceptions: When the soup is served in a soup plate, the spoon is left in it, handle extending over the right edge, parallel to the table edge—and if you've served iced tea, with no saucer under the glass, you leave your spoon in the glass, holding it aside with your first and second fingers as you drink.

Q. Is it proper to autograph the wedding photographs we intend to mail to various out-of-town relatives and friends?

A. Yes, but it isn't necessary.

Q. When I am asked to substitute at a bridge club, am I then obligated to invite this group to my home in turn?

A. You are under no obligation at all, since you really have done this club a favor by filling in.

Q. When a young girl has spent a weekend in the home of a girl friend, to whom does she address her "bread-and-butter" letter, to the girl friend or to her mother?

A. She may address the letter to her friend, but she must simply include a note of appreciation to the girl's mother, who usually deserves much of the credit for a pleasant visit.

Q. Who pays for the beverages and other liquid refreshments at a wedding reception, the bride's parents or the bridegroom?

A. The bride's family pays all the expenses of the wedding reception.

Q. How should the prongs of one's fork be poised while one is taking food into the mouth—up or down?

A. While cutting the food, the prongs are poised down — but when lifting food to the mouth, the prongs are poised upward.

Q. A friend of mine has named her baby son Robert H. Smith III, after the baby's father and grandfather, although the grandfather is not living. Shouldn't she have named him simply "Junior", and not the third?

A. Yes, if his grandfather is no longer living, then he should be "Junior".

Q. Where should dining room chairs be placed when not in use—at the table, or elsewhere around the room?

A. The really depends upon space and convenience. One chair against each side of the table is the usual practice.

Q. Are silver serum scrapers still in good use at the dinner table?

A. Yes, if the tablecloth is of plain damask. But they are not so practical on lace or embroidery. In this case, a folded napkin does an efficient job of brushing off the crumbs.

Q. I am to be married for the first time, but my fiance is a widower. Under these circumstances, may I have a large, formal wedding?

A. Your fiance's status has nothing to do with it. Since this is YOUR first marriage, you may plan it on any scale you wish.

CALGARY POWER LTD.

proudly presents

Philip Moncrieff

AN ALBERTA JUNIOR CITIZEN OF THE YEAR

Philip won his award for his many years of quiet courage. His young brother Larry is a cripple, needing constant care and attention. For over ten years, Philip, now fifteen years old, has put Larry's interests ahead of his own. He is Larry's constant companion and helper, showing commendable patience and understanding. For example, each day he helps Larry to dress, walks with him to and from school, and takes the time to be sure that Larry is warmly dressed for the walk home, that his coat is buttoned, his overshoes done up.

Philip's own interests, his own friends, his own fun take second place - he puts Larry first.

We congratulate Philip, and thank Alberta's Weekly Newspaper Editors for their active co-operation in the Alberta Junior Citizen of the Year program sponsored by Alberta's investor-owned electric utility companies.

This is one of a series of Junior Citizen Award announcements. Our special thanks to R. Hawk, Editor of the Nanton News, and to Philip's nominator, Mrs. G. J. McPheeters of Cayley.

Students 'survive' initiation ordeal

On Friday Oct 16th the Tofield students were initiated into the ranks of high school. The day was spent by the students in games such as blindfolded races, sitting on egg shells, servers, Tofield Lemon Juice, Bra race, and a terrible 12 pulls and you. Next they were set blindfolded through mud, cow yards, and many yet more grotesque things. Following this every one was sent in some relay races after which welcome refreshments were served. All the events went in one very happy mix and the Grade 12's went away tired but satisfied.

On October 20th Holden and Tofield football teams tied with a score of 13 all.

accepted, the secretary-treasurer's actions concurred in and that the Crs. Magnuson, Krupicki and Gibson be appointed a committee to deal with the tenders and that a meeting of the committee be held at 9:30 a.m. on October 15th for this purpose.

It was also moved and carried unanimously that the matter of the Centennial 1967 be referred to the November meeting.

POUND CASE

In the matter of the impounding of cattle owned by the Jones Bros. by Campbell Bruce on S.E. 24-49-19 W 4th and the subsequent sale of this animal, the secretary reported that no new information had been received apart from the recommending of the committee be further considered that the damage awarded in the amount of $25.00 would have to be paid from municipal funds as the sale of the animal had not brought sufficient money to pay for the damages, also that the amount could not be charged against the land as suggested at the September meeting.

It was moved and carried unanimously that as provided by Sec. 29 Section 1 (d) of the Dairyette Animals Act, the amount of $25.00 be awarded to Mr. C. Peiker and that the cost of investigation be assessed to Mr F Meignan; further that the county endeavors to collect $24.00 from Mr. Meignan.

In the matter of the Alberta Government Telephones proposal for extension of telephone line, section 562-01, the chairman, advised that he had received the preliminary agreements for the proposed road survey and that the agreement as it concerns Sec 32-47-11 was in order; that the original agreement was required for the west side of Sec 32-47-11

Cr Reddekopp stated that he would interview the owner of Sec 12-47-11 and Cr Gibson stated that he would endeavor to obtain the agreement in regard to Wly-35-47-11

It was moved and carried unanimously that, providing the proper agreement can be received in regards to Sec 32 and an agreement obtained re the west side of Wly-35-47-11, the survey be arranged for.

DROUGHT AREA

In the matter of having the County declared a disaster area for the purpose of getting freight assistance for feed, motion 513-64, the secretary stated that he had forwarded the request to the deputy minister of the department of agriculture, who had advised that the request had been referred to the Feed crops branch. The Director stated that a representative from the feed crops branch had been down to investigate the situation. In his opinion, the situation did not appear too serious. It was suggested by Cr. Magnuson that further investigation was required.

Cr. Magnuson stated that he and Crs. Weatherall and Gibson had attended the meeting of the commission of the Alberta Co-operative in Viking on October 9th and had presented the case of the growers present. The minister of agriculture, the Hon. H. E. Strom, had stated that the situation would be looked into. A list had been compiled of a number of farmers in the county that would require feed and this list was left with the minister.

It was moved and carried unanimously that the report be accepted.

A letter from the Town of Viking re the fire fighting unit for the rural area, was referred to the council. The council of the Town of Viking requested that the County Council purchase some acres to get a better fire protection materials for the Viking area. Cr. It was moved and carried unanimously that the report be accepted and the letter received and filed

A letter from the Workmen's Compensation Board with a cheque for $207.68 representing the merit rebate for the year 1963 was referred to the Council. It was noted that the merit rebate for 1963 was only 4% compared with the usual 25%. The reason for this was that in 1963 the county had a large number of claims for workmen's compensation; a total of 148 days compared with 47 days in 1962 and 21 days in 1964 to September 30th.

It was moved and carried unanimously that the information be accepted and the letter received and filed

A letter from the Fields Crop Branch in regards to equine control and 1080 baits was referred to the Council. It was noted that the Agricultural Service Board had recommended that 1080 baits be not put out this year. However, the secretary-treasurer reported that in the Beaver News, the ratepayers in the County had been advised to notify the office by Oct 15th if they wished 1080 baits, and it was moved and carried that, unless requests for at least 6 or 8 baits are received by Oct 15th, no baits be put out this year.

A letter from Parks Utilization Committee concerning a water conservation project with dam to be located on NE 25-46-11-W4th was referred to the Council. The proposed project would affect approx. 30 acres and between NW 25-46-11-W4th Lloydminster Cr. Johnson was not present at the meeting, it was moved and carried that this matter be referred to the November meeting.

A letter from Highway 13-14 Association, outlining what has been done by the Ass'n since it was formed in 1961 and a request for payment of dues in the amount of $25 was referred to the Council

Moved and carried that the letter be received and filed and the dues be paid as requested.

Copies of correspondence from Canadian National Railways to the secretary of the Board of Transport Commissioners applications to close the agencies at Holden and Tofield were referred to the Council. Although the Council was of the opinion that the present type of service in regards to express and freight is far from satisfactory, it was considered that it would be of no value to oppose the applications, and it was moved and carried that the correspondence be received and filed and that no submission be made.

The secretary-treasurer advised that a Pesticide information and weather course would be conducted jointly by the De-

It was expected that the Department of Agriculture would pay some of the cost to the Field Supervisors but that the Local Authorities would also be expected to pay part of the cost.

Moved and carried that a payment of 10c per mile necessarily travelled plus the cost of meals be paid to the Field Supervisor in attending this course.

The secretary-treasurer reported as follows on the tax collections to September 30th, with 1963 figures shown in parenthesis: Levy, $756,538 (745,538); Current taxes, $374,742.28 (374,638.71); Percentage of current levy, 23.84 (23.36); Arrears, $321,494.91 (296,536.49); P. P. Lands, $4,125.43 ($5,444.81); Total $700,362.62 ($676,175.49); Percentage of current levy, 45.9 (39.2); Arrears at 30th, $112,352.97 ($111,830.68).

Moved and carried that the report be accepted.

Moved and carried that the secretary-treasurer, Chief Monument, and hereby is appointed Returning Officer for the County of Beaver No. 9 for the forthcoming Municipal Election.

Moved and carried that a Tax Sale under the provisions of the Tax Recovery Act be held on Wednesday, Dec. 30th 1964 at 2 00 p.m.

Cr. Weatherill stated that the County of Strathcona was guaranteeing a seed house in Edmonton sale of 10,000 pounds of grass seed and that the farmers in the County of Strathcona, therefore, are able to get a discount of at least 20% on their grass seed purchases. It was moved and carried unanimously that the Field Supervisor be requested to investigate this situation and see if similar arrangements can be made for the County of Beaver.

The Secretary-Treasurer referred to the Council, Sec. 16 (b) of the County Amendment Act 1964 in regards to representatives of the Town and Villages and the fact that these representatives, when elected, are supposed to have regular meetings and elect a chairman and a secretary within their group. However, there were no provisions in the Act for calling of the first meeting and the Secretary-Treasurer had suggested, in discussing this matter with the Assistant Chief Municipal Inspector, that possibly the initiative should be taken by the County Office. Swift informed him that a concession may be made due to the fine weather and because of the little traffic on this street but could not be considered until Mr. Neufeld's decision was made known as to whether or not he would begin construction this year.

'Fabulous Africa' film coming to Tofield soon

Residents of the Tofield district will have the opportunity shortly of seeing one of the most unusual and complete color motion picture films ever produced on the teeming wildlife herds of Kenya and Tanganyika in East equatorial Africa. The 16 mm color film entitled "Fabulous Africa" was taken by well known naturalist - photographer Edgar T. Jones during a two-month safari to Africa earlier this year. Many will have seen some of his wildlife programs on CFRN's "Canada Outdoors" TV series, over 30 segments of which have been prepared by Mr. Jones. His wildlife films are being shown in Great Britain, Europe, United States and Canada. TV and only recently one of his sequences filmed in Alberta was purchased by a Walt Disney production firm.

"One of the most thrilling and exciting experiences in my life", is the way Mr. Jones describes his African trip. Nowhere in the world can such a dramatic variety of wildlife be seen in such numbers. During his safari Mr. Jones filmed one and one-half miles of color film on which he recorded no fewer than 30 species of animals ranging in size from the African Pygmy Antelope to the 25 different species of which will be shown until it reaches of brilliant tropical birds!

Wolf! Wolf!

Remember the story about the boy who called Wolf just to get attention and was destroyed when the wolves got tired of answering false alarms?

It seems many of us are guilty of something like the same type of irresponsibility when it comes to ambulances.

It came as quite a surprise some time ago to learn that far and away the great majority of ambulance cases are hard to collect from, and many never do pay up. So serious is the situation that many ambulance drivers are actually consider giving up the business rather than face the difficult situations, the unpleasant working conditions, the impossible hours and all for the remote chance they may be paid.

It's true, of course, that in case of an accident, the first reaction is to call an ambulance, and all too often, an ambulance isn't really necessary. It's true, too, that frequently someone else calls the ambulance, leaving the victim to pay for it.

The thing is, however, that when an ambulance is needed, we want to think there's no question of it coming. By the same token, the ambulance operator should be able to feel there is no question of payment.

Hardly repatriation

We've heard much recently about repatriation of the British North American Act, so that Canada can change her own constitution. And there is undoubtedly a great deal of sense in the proposition that this nation, should, after a hundred years, be able to modify its own rules without recourse to Britain, even if this is for all intents and purposes, only a gesture.

But when we're talking about things as accurate as this, let's be accurate.

We can't possibly repatriate the BNA Act, for it's not ours. It's an Act of the British House of Commons respecting Canada, but we can't bring their Act over here. We should get our terms straight.

Poor pickin's

Crops reut have been good in the apple orchards of British Columbia this year, for the apple industry has designated November as apple month throughout the country, and have been given the strong support both of Premier Cec Bennett and Prime Minister Mike Pearson. Efforts of the promotion, naturally, are headed at increasing consumption.

As a matter of fact, the industry records more than twenty million bushel boxes were packed.

It must be heartening to a good many housewives to know there was a good crop of this staple fruit, for we've heard more complaints this fall than for a long time over the inadequacy of some of the other fruits. Many housewives did little or no canning, while others were very disappointed with the result of what they did do. This ties in with stories that retailers were accepting cases of fruit with a murmur, almost as if it became a reflex action.

The general impression of many housewives is that the fruit co-ops are telling orchardists when to pick their fruit in order to meet the dictates of the market, rather than those of Nature. The trouble is that playing around with things like this takes so much hard work on everyone's part to re-establish the confidence of the homemaker.

By George!

Mrs. Diane Prinpnis of Montreal, who recently set up shop as a certified graphoanalyst, claims an analysis of handwriting can be 95% accurate in fitting the right person to the right job, says The Financial Post. Mrs. Prinpnis hands out three points to a person's character. If you are having a secretary for a boss who is hard to get along with, watch the way she writes "i" and "d." If the crossed stems are a little to the left, she will not be sensitive to the boss's criticism. As long as the stems aren't too tall she won't be vain. If the stems on the "i" isn't too shallow, she won't run away from difficult situations. As long as her graphoed writing is vertical or slanted just a little to the right, she will show good judgement. If you're not sure of the boss's personality, check the way he writes "i" and "d." If the way he writes is downward and to the left of the word, there is a secretary than even chance he is domineering. This is the type of boss who wants you to do what he wants you to do and no questions. On the other hand, if the stroke of the "i" is long and joined to the letter before it he may make a better salesman than an office manager. Generally speaking, the slant of your writing expresses your emotional foundations. If it is vertical, you have good judgement, you figure things out for yourself and aren't gauge anywhere in a hurry. If it slants to the left, you are afraid to express yourself and don't show how you feel. If it slants far to the right, you're highly impulsive.

Editor, The Mercury

The enclosed article comes from the White Rock, B.C., paper and deals with a trip taken this summer during the month of August by my parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Lovell, long-time residents of Tofield.

I believe this would be of interest to many of my parents' old friends in the town, Hyde and Holden and district.

The article doesn't mention that they flew via CPA to Watson Lake, Yukon Territory where we met them to bring them back to Cassiar, B.C., which is approximately 999 miles west of Watson Lake.

They were away from home for two months and on the actual trip with us 22 days - camping and most of the time all over the Yukon Territory.

This, of many acts of the late 60's for my mother, and early 70's for Dad, is an accomplishment in itself and will bring to many friends that one is never too old to get out and see this great north of ours.

It you feel that this our-prises has merit would you please forward me a copy of the edition this will appear in for the address shown.

We were very proud to be able to show off parents the wonders of the "Trail of '98" and would be very pleased if this trip of a lifetime became a level notch item in my and my mother's home town. This was the first airplane trip for either of them.

Thank you for your interest shown.

Your truly
Robert F. Lovell.

"I really don't know", replied the physician. "It's a kind of medical standoff."

MacDuff Ottawa report . . . Log jam

OTTAWA. — This is the most unlucky Parliament in the history of Canada but it hasn't been so late on action.

Since the session started Feb. 18, this "busy parliament" has broken all records in the verbal department.

The mistake tagged the Diefenbaker session, and it has taken down every cloture motion made of debate. Printed on the pages of Hansard itself, this series of talk takes up about 10,000 pages.

Tossed in lately, black relation, this report makes the Darling and Feid of the Bertram Mpsley look like a pamphlet and rivals the size of the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Just until the talk runs on.

TALK—BUT NOTHING ELSE

The length of the 1964 session has smashed all records. Including the 17-day high point set by the session of 1960-61. The previous record session was spread over two years. This is compressed into one.

But if Canada's 26th Parliament has been long on debate, it has also been short on decisions.

The major business of the session—approval of the speech from the throne, railway legislation, the Canada Pension Plan, labour code, redistribution and electoral boundaries. the final have come floating down the tide of talk to build a giant approprotion.

Each party blames the others, but the situation is taking its toll of the morale of members of Parliament, especially the backbenchers.

They're bored, resentful, and some of them are rebellious against their own party leadership.

CRITICISM BACK

All these factors have something to do with the recent humiliation of the Liberal government opposition parties are combined to write an extra holiday - Remembrance Day into Labour Minister MacEachen's planned new labour code.

Mr. MacEachen had rejected the addition of an eighth statutory holiday both privately in the Liberal caucus and publicly in the Commons. But when the vote came at the committee stage, only 44 of the 128 Liberals were on hand and the opposition

Later, some restless Liberals claimed they had staged many deliberately - a telling comment on the state of the party discipline which is absolutely vital to a minority government.

GORE ABSENTEEISM

Another sign of parliamentary boredom has been a rising tide of absenteeism among the 116,000-a-year MP's. The "Toronto Globe and Mail" has been driven literally up the wall by it, and turn until the following Tuesday is spent on the "Globe" and now can't even tell by the size of the taxpayers.

This makes newsworthy in the T-for-T club open to Western members who formerly got an undeserved halo for performance every virtue because even a buss combined to write an extra holiday - Remembrance Day into Labour Minister MacEachen's planned new labour code.

Mr. MacEachen had rejected the addition of an eighth statutory holiday both privately in the Liberal caucus and publicly in the Commons. But when the vote came at the committee stage, only 44 of the 128 Liberals were on hand and the opposition there's nothing of this kind in the Commons and it is left to an "honour" system, which himself seems to work very well.

Each session, when the MP's pass the pay-cheque, they sign it a declaration to state and swear how many days he was away from the House that month.

The member is allowed to be away 21 days without penalty each year, but if he's absent more than 21 he's docked $100 a day.

There's no way of proving it, but the opinion of all the experienced observers on Parliament Hill is that there are many absentees which never show up on the declaration. Public accounts for past years show that few, if any, MP's actually apply the financial penalty to themselves. They always find a reason to give themselves a good attendance record if only that "Everybody's doing it."

It wouldn't improve the debate or the job done by individual MP's to have all members glued to their seats all day every day. But an attendance record would give a complete story a way of judging their performance and it would be up to him to explain what he had been doing when he wasn't around the Commons.

NOT THE REAL ANSWER

Some faithful-attending members feel, too, that it would be more fair than the kind of "attendance record" which some newspapers now compile from the roll-call votes - the only time it is officially recorded whether a member is present or not.

Votes come at unexpected times and are sometimes sprung suddenly. A member may have been in his seat for many weeks solid, then miss a couple of votes in the voting record. It may look as though he is seldom in the Commons.

But old - timers say the long absentees usually pay for their deserts, eventually, even under the present system. A rebellion might upset the course of history but Ottawa can't be fooled all the time anyway.

And this raises the question of what the voters will have to say about a Parliament of talk and little action when they get the chance a chance which seems closer each day the House of Commons is bogged down in its own verbosity.

North trip takes pair along Klondike route

(Mrs. J. A. Anderson)

Travels by train and boat, a camping trip with their son and his family, and celebration of their 50th wedding anniversary highlighted a never-to-be-forgotten holiday spent in Canada's northland and Alaska by Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Lovell of Green Park.

They celebrated their anniversary while visiting their son, Bob and family at Cassiar, B.C., later accompanying the Cassiar family on a camping trip into the Yukon.

Married at Tofield, they have one other son, Alfred, in Calgary; a daughter, Mrs. R. W. Cousins at Bellville, Ont.; and ten grandchildren.

In the northland they found a vast country of sleeping valleys, wide rivers and mountain ranges - a land of spectacular scenery. Everywhere - in Mayo, Whitehorse, Dawson City, Atlin and Carcross - they found historic evidence of the Gold Rush days of 1898; old log cabins dating the stages of events; storm wheel paddle steamers resting on the shore of lakes and rivers; the rudder-post gold-seekers dragged deep into the creek beds that once were worked by the hand and his gold pan.

Dawson City, with 30,000 population in its heyday, is now a place of decaying buildings mixed with the new so that to obtain an idea of the life in '98, the visitors had to tour the museum, where models of the different equipment used are on display, as well as many fine photographs of the period.

Another point of interest was the cabin of Robert Service, Klondike poet.

Homeward bound, Mr. and Mrs. Lovell boarded the train at Whitehorse, travelling on the White Pass & Yukon Railway with its narrow gauge and scenic route, to Skagway, Alaska. The route passes through Miles Canyon, the gorge made famous by Jack London who piloted the boats through the rushing water on down to Carcross and Lake Bennett, where at one time more than 800 boats of various kinds were built to be used by the miners for the long journey by water to the Klondike.

At Bennett, the passengers were served a Yukon dinner complete with moose meat.

Continuing on, the train passes along the rim of Dead Horse Gulch, where a foot path marking the Trail of '98 is still visible.

The railway descends 2,500 feet in 21 mile, clinging to the cliffside on to Skagway, where one of the fine boats of the Alaska Ferry is at anchor.

These ferries carry 500 passengers and 250 autos, and are the most modern of their kind Boarding the ferry, the travelers enjoyed a 450-mile cruise through some of the most beautiful scenery of the north to Prince Rupert.

Due to rainy weather, everything imaged a whale and an iceberg! was seen shrouded in mist, the Lovells report. However, snaps were made at Haines, Wrangell, Ketchikan, and Prince Rupert.

A pleasant day was spent in Prince Rupert visiting the museum which contains exhibits of Indian and Eskimo handiwork from the stone age to recent times.

Leaving Prince Rupert for home via Prince George, the Canadian National Railway follows the Skeena River with lumber mills and canneries along its banks, and the first snow capped mountains appear. From Prince George the Lovells enjoyed more scenery as they travelled on the Pacific Great Eastern Railway.

In terms of Constant (1949) Dollars, Canada's gross national product increased from $1,421 per capita in 1958 to $1,589 in 1963.

Hejnar - Wayne vows pledged Oct. 3rd

(St. K. Westmanneat)

St. Clare's Catholic Church on 53rd St. and 118th Ave., Edmonton, was the scene on the arm of surveyor wedding of Miss Joan Wayne and Mr. John Hejnar of Edmonton, on Saturday, October 3rd, at 11 a.m. The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Wayne of Ryley, and the groom is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hejnar, also of Ryley.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by Father Egerton, and the lovely bride entered the church on the arm of her father, who gave his daughter in marriage. The soloist sang "Ave Maria".

The bride's gown was a floor-length brocade sheath. Her veil of tulle was of illusion net, and she carried a white Bible trimmed with Sweetheart roses and trailing ribbons. Her only jewellery was a single strand of pearls.

The three bridesmaids, Shirley Muir, Lorraine Sonstelie and Irene Johnson were identical illusions of gold velvet, styled with bell skirts. Pleats in Kelly green velvet, with matching pillbox hats and shoes and white gloves. They carried complete bouffant bouquets of miniature bronze and white mums.

Best man was Robert Emery, cousin of the bride, and groomsmen were Gary Wayne brother of the bride, and Joe Hejnar, brother of the groom. Reception for 80 guests was held at 1:00 p.m. at the Kingsway Motor Hotel. Marvin Moore of Camrose was master of ceremonies. The bride's table was laid with white candles in crystal candelabra, and bouquets of flowers in shades of gold and brown. The bride's wedding cake was made by a friend.

Assisting were Mrs. Clarence Erke of Bremner, and was decorated to represent a church, complete with stained glass windows and red-carpeted steps. There were also three brides' maids' cakes made cleverly to match the girls' dresses, and flower girls' cakes to match there's. To receive her guests, the bride's mother wore a peach and silver green metallic brocaded dress with peach accessories and corsage of Talisman roses. Mrs. Hejnar chose a pink dress with royal blue accessories, and a pink rose corsage. Misses Merle and Pearl Hejnar Joyce were in charge of the guest book.

At 6:30 p.m., a second reception was held at Sherwin Hall for over 700 guests, when master of ceremonies was Anton Bernchyshen, and speakers were Al Rebus, Father Lacoumbe, Robert Emilsen and Marvin Moore. Presentations were made to the bridal couple at 10:30 p.m.

For going away, the bride chose a regal blue wool suit with black accessories, and a corsage of roses. The happy couple will reside in Edmonton.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Erke of Bremner, and Mrs. Clarence Erke of Bremner were in attendance, and also Mrs. Stella Sharon grandmother of the groom, from Chipman. Other out of town guests were from Camrose, Viking, Vegreville, Chipman, Edmonton, Evansburg and Calgary.

SOCIAL ERROR

Overheard in the department store elevator:

First lady: "And I know for a fact that she paid cash for it."

Second lady: "The did!" I guess they must have taken her charge-plate away from her."

Payment in cash would seem, at least, worth becoming a habit for her. It evidently already ranks as a social error of the first magnitude

Twisted compassion

The Most Rev. Fulton J. Sheen, Auxiliary Bishop of New York, considers compassion the world has not gone too far in its sympathy with the criminal. Condemnation is an admirable thing, he says, but it is not to be whipped. Indeed, Bishop Sheen feels the quality of compassion is being twisted in some circumstances for the criminal, the victim, the heroine of the law," rather than compassion for the victims.

Something the same was said about accident cases recently by Chief Justice McRuer. "Men have relied after 20 years on the High Court of Ontario. "There's much too light a value being placed on human life," he said. "All the fuss is criminal auto accident cases before the courts is on the accused. The person whose life is destroyed is getting very much as a mere statistic."

There is every reason why the criminal should receive every fair treatment and justice and the environment for rehabilitation. But there may be a danger that his victim becomes the forgotten person in it all. The compassion made from time to time that the law should provide some compensation for the victims of crime, or their families, is not without its merits. It would bring back an awareness that crime does terrible things to its victims. They deserve a little compassion too.

From the familiar "number please?" of the telephone operator's voice in the 1920's to the dial tone of the automation has been experienced by Mrs. Harold Fike (Bessie) who retired October 1st after being employed the past 40 years for the Oregon-Washington Telephone Co. in Sunnyside, Wash.

Her first position was as a telephone operator, later as a day operator, night operator, chief operator, assistant cashier, and for the past 15 years as head cashier of the Sunnyside office.

Starting work in 1924 when Sunnyside had about 1,500 residents, Mrs. Fike has seen the city grow to over 6,200, and the number of telephones from 350 to over 6,000.

In the early days the telephone company was often the nerve centre of the community. The city fire siren was located on the roof of the telephone office. In the even of fire, a resident simply picked up the telephone and screamed "fire", and gave the address. Mrs Fike would then blow the fire siren and notify the firemen of the location of the fire.

One of her vivid memories was an occasion when the fire call was in her own home. She maintained h e r equilibrium however — blew the siren — gave the address — ran down the stairs and was at the scene of the fire before the fire engine arrived.

Mrs Fike recalls using the old magneto crank-type and the common battery phone, and the interior changes in style to the present deluxe dial model in various forms and colors.

Mrs Fike and her husband, Harold Fike, Sunnyside electrician, have three married daughters and 11 grandchildren.

Modern etiquette

By Roberta Lee

(By Roberta Lee)

Q. When writing a note to decline an invitation, should one make it formal?

A. This depends altogether upon the nature of the invitation itself. If it has been written formally, that is, in the third person, then your reply must be written in the same style. If the invitation is written informally, you reply in the same vein.

Q. What timing is necessary on an airplane?

A. No tipping of airplane personnel is permitted. When you debark from the airplane, though, a sincere "thank you" to the pneumatics is a very nice gesture on your part and shows good breeding.

Q. Should individual dishes be provided each guest for the various vegetables when giving a dinner at home?

A. No; this is done only in restaurants.

J. Is it proper, when setting the dinner table, to put the butter on one plate and pass it around, or to put it on individual bread-and-butter plates?

A. This is more a matter of convenience than of propriety. Usually it is more convenient to serve the butter on individual plates than have the guests pass it around.

Davis - Simonson wedding held at Kingman Church

The Kingman Baptist Church was the scene of a lovely autumn wedding on Saturday, Oct. 3, when Gwendolyn Faye, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Simonson became the bride of Frederick Davis of Grande Prairie, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Davis of Stony Plain. Rev. Wiebe of Camrose performed the double-ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in a floor-length gown of white satin, the bodice of which had a fitted and lily-point sleeves. Her shoulder-length illusion veil was held in place by a pearl-studded crown and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

Miss Norma Hele, bridesmaid and Miss Noreen Campbell maid-of-honor, were attired in identical ballabby dresses of rose peau de soie with matching headpieces, and carried white roses

Lorraine Davis, sister of the groom, was flower girl and was attired in a white organdy dress with rose sash and bow.

Attending the groom was his cousin, Earl Simson and Fred Evenson, friend of the groom. The guests were ushered by Melvin Davis, brother of the groom, and Dennis Simonson, brother of the bride.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in Kingman Community Hall for over 100 guests. The bride's table was centered by a three-tiered wedding cake, baked by the bride's mother and decorated by Mrs. Evelyn Hurst. Leonard Simonson, uncle of the bride, acted as master of ceremonies and Rev. Earl Phillips also an uncle of the bride, proposed a toast to the bride, to which the groom ably responded.

For going away, the bride chose a teal blue 3-piece suit with black accessories.

Following a honeymoon to Bellingham, Wash., and various points in B.C., the couple returned via the Hart Highway to Grande Prairie to reside, where the groom is employed with the Alberta Wheat Pool.

In Flanders Fields

In Flanders Fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly
Scarce heard amid the guns below

We are the Dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders Fields

Take up our quarrel with the foe:
To you from failing hands, we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep,
Though poppies grow
In Flanders Fields.

Bethel LCW meet is farewell to pastor

(M. K. Westmacott)

RYLEY — The Thanksgiving meeting of the Bethel Lutheran Church Women was held on Thursday afternoon, Nov. 5th, in the church dining room. The meeting took the form of a farewell to Pastor Steiseitz, as it was the last meeting before he leaves for his new parish at Birch Hills, Sask.

A donation was to be sent to the "Lutheran Hour", and the sum executive would attend the workshop in Viking on November 14th. There was a nice selection of gifts turned in to be sent to the Oliver Mental Hospital at Christmas. The O. Olenberg the honorees.

Thanksgiving treasure chests were placed on the table during the singing of "We Give Thanks To Thee", the ceremonia to be used in the glory of God and His church. Pastor Steiseitz gave a short farewell speech, saying how much he had enjoyed working with the group. Mrs. Pearl Kobelnic replied by saying both he and Mrs. Steiseitz would be missed and wished them every happiness in their new parish. Pastor Steiseitz gave the benediction, and the meeting closed with the saying of the Lord's Prayer. Lunch was served with Mrs. Lloyd Wickstrom and Mrs.

Well, hardly the children

A report last week on liquor spending in the province indicated an $84,-000,000 bar bill was packed up by Albertans in the 12 months ending in March of this year. The survey then went on to report this amounted to $50 for every man, woman and child in the province.

That, of course, is the sort of thing that makes people mistrust statistics.

Sure the $84,000,000 equals roughly $50 for each person in the province, but the next part of it spent by minors was spent silently and probably is not a significant figure in the overall total. Alberta has per-capita a slightly younger population than Canada generally, and bachelor figures from the Canada Year Book ever so slightly indicates 45 per cent of the population would be too young to be customers.

So the remaining 55 per cent drank up the lot, amounting to approximately $215 for a husband-wife team. Of this amount, roughly 985 found its way into federal coffers in the form of taxes, while a similar amount helped swell the provincial purse.

And of course, since thousands of Albertans don't drink at all, the contribution made by those who do is actually considerably above the figures cited here.

Want to look at some different averages?

Well, the figures say that nearly a quarter of a million dollars ($230,000) worth of books is consumed every day of the year, including Sundays, holidays and even election days, using averages only of course. Seems an awful lot of money to pay for so much extra reading. And not even a guarantee that it's floordated.

Pears or peaches

Arithmetic teachers used to point out that pears couldn't be equated with peaches, and this sort of thing but the point seems to have been overlooked in Alberta.

One last week Alberta Liberal Leader Dave Hunter vigorously attacked, rightly we think, the government in developing new industry here at the expense of the pulp industry. He drew attention to the fact that two similar developments in Alberta's forests is taking place.

Perhaps Mr Hunter can't hear of [illegible] development in Alberta.

For Alberta, as observers in the B.C. forests know, is indeed developing [illegible] in B.C. roughly comparable with the situation facing Alberta's forests. Mr. Hunter complains that the two hundred million dollars poured [illegible] expansion of the pulp industry [illegible] to the fact that two similar developments in Alberta's forests is taking place.

By George!

It would be quite a thing in the day and age we see a group of con-quiers ride into the pioneer or perhaps a verdict of cattle rustling and herd them away to some remote area to change the brand or slaughter them for their hides. This of course, is what cattle rustling was all about. Such a crime as that described above would not likely be seen in the day and age of overseas cattle rustling is a story of the past raised you last summer cattle [illegible] today, with larger land-owning trends making rustling a route no one than it used to be.

The punishment for this crime is not near as severe today as it used to be either and unless something is done about it, rustling could once again become a lucrative, if dangerous and profitable adventure.

According to the Western Stock Growers Association, [illegible] of Calgary, it appears to [illegible] that the punishment of rustlers [illegible] with the speaking of children and that maybe it should [illegible] back.

Modern Etiquette . . .

By Roberta Lee

Q. If for some reason, social or business, a family has had its name legally changed, how should friends and acquaintances be informed of this?

A. The quickest and simplest way is to mail out formal announcements: "Mr. and Mrs. John Simutowsky announce that by permission of the court they and their children have taken the name of Simmons."

Q. When a guest at a large wedding reception is presenting the bride, should he point out the principles of the wedding party in order to say good-bye and thank you?

A. At a large reception, this is not necessary.

Q. Are desserts ALWAYS eaten with the fork?

A. Some desserts are also soft for easy handling with the fork. A good rule to follow is to use the fork whenever possible—but use good judgment, too.

Q. Is it proper to phone one's acknowledgment of a gift?

A. This is, of course, better than no acknowledgement at all. But still, a nice personality written note of thanks seems to convey more interest and more sincere appreciation of the gift.

Q. Is it necessary for a host and a hostess to accompany departing guests to their cars?

A. Not unless they really desire to do so. Otherwise, it is all right for them to speak their goodbyes at the door and then remain there until the guests are well on their way to their cars.

Q. When there is to be a double-ring ceremony, with the bride and groom exchanging rings, who pays for the groom's ring?

A. The bride.

Funeral home moves

After 25 years in its well known downtown location in Camrose, Hoveland's Funeral Home moved this week to its handsome new chapel at the corner of 48th Avenue and Mount Pleasant Drive.

The business was started in November of 1939 by Arnold Hoveland, and operated for a year in the Provencher Building, next to Alberta Machinery. Then on Nov. 15, 1939, it moved to the house behind the Imperial Commerce bank building where it has been ever since.

Mr. Hoveland reports the building is quite complete, but is delayed in shipping some of the furniture. Because of this, the planned open house will not take place for a short time. However, all furniture and supplies necessary to the proper functioning of the new funeral home are in place, and all arrangements will be conducted from this location in the future.

Double-ring ceremony for Rude - Boness rites

A double-ring ceremony was performed at the Salem Lutheran Church on the afternoon of October 10th, when Diane Audrey Boness, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Boness of Kingman, exchanged marriage vows with Lawrence David Rude, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Rude of Tofield. Rev. G. H. Hoogen of Camrose officiated.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father to the strains of the wedding march, played by Miss Mabel Simanson. Her full-length gown of white peau de soie was styled with fitted bodice featuring lace appliqued panels and neckline with a large bow at back of the waist, and lily-point sleeves. Her veil misted from a crown of crystal sequins, and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. Vern Hansen, the bride's sister, was matron of honor, and Mrs. Dale Rude, sister-in-law of the groom, the bridesmaid. They wore street-length dresses of pink brocade with matching overskirts and headpieces and carried bouquets of white daisies.

The groom was attended by Dale Rude and Vern Hansen. Ushering guests were Dale Hagen and Dale Bjornson.

Soloist was Miss Sharon Hagen of Forestburg, cousin of the bride, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Selma Coates.

The bride's mother chose a two-piece pink linen dress with pink hat and gloves and a corsage of white roses. The groom's mother wore a brown dress with matching hat and corsage of yellow roses.

The reception for 120 guests was held in the Kingman Hall immediately following the ceremony. Miss Jeanette Hale was in charge of the guest book.

The bride's mom was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake baked by Mrs. I. Ness and the bride's mother, and beautifully decorated by Mrs. Evelyn Hoolt of Camrose.

Norman Hagen of Forestburg was master of ceremonies and toast to the bride was proposed by Ingvald Ness to which the groom ably responded.

For going away, the bride chose a three-piece blue wool suit and matching hat with black accessories and a corsage of pink roses. Following a short honeymoon trip to Banff, the happy couple are making their home at Amisk Creek.

"Little Grey Cup" to be telecast

The fourth Canadian Shrine football game for the Canadian Junior Football Championships will be played between Montreal's Notre Dame de Grace Maple Leafs and the Edmonton Huskies at McMahon Stadium in Calgary on November 11th. Often called "the little Grey Cup", the game will be carried on a delayed basis on CTV's Wide World of Sports on Saturday, Nov. 14, at 4:30 p.m. (EST).

These Shrine games between the eastern and western junior league champions are attracting a growing following each year. This will be the first year the Shrine game will be telecast nationally, and the second year these two team have met for the Canadian junior championship. They played last year and the Edmonton Huskies won.

Hugh McLeod
of Edmonton
AN ALBERTA JUNIOR CITIZEN OF THE YEAR

Eleven-year old Hugh won his award for his scholastic achievement under an extreme physical handicap. Hugh was born with glaucoma, which resulted in the loss of one eye and blindness in the other. Following surgery, he spent nine months at Jericho Hill School for the Blind in Vancouver.
After regaining a minimum of sight in one eye, he was admitted to Jasper Place public school — determined to keep up with his class.
He has done this, not only by studying hard at school, but also by giving up all after-school activity or play, to listen and learn his lessons of the day from his family.
In spite of this tremendous handicap, Hugh was among the top students in his Grade Five class.
We congratulate Hugh, and thank Alberta's Weekly Newspaper Editors for their active co-operation in the Alberta Junior Citizen of the Year program sponsored by Alberta's investor-owned electric utility companies.

This is one of a series of Junior Citizen Award announcements. We also congratulate Hugh's father, D. McLeod, Editor of the Suburban Times, and thank his nominator, Art Keller of Edmonton.

Solve a Crime

BY A.C. GORDON

YOU ARE THE DETECTIVE

"Only the young man who works for me, Donald Abbott, and my nephew, Philip Morrison, knew that I kept the money here in my safe at home, and only these two young men knew of the location of the safe behind one of the wood panels in my study. That's always been one of my closely-guarded secrets".

The wrinkly monk broke-hearted Harry Higgins wipes a handkerchief across his perspiring brow. His telephone call this afternoon has summoned you to his home. He has reported a robbery of more than $10,000 in cash. "Much as I hate to say this, one of these two young men has to be guilty of this robbery . . . but which one, that's the big question!" The distinguished looking, grey-haired financier shakes his head mournfully.

"Shortly after I put this money into the safe this afternoon, this masked man dressed in army greasy-looking coveralls, wearing a nylon stocking pulled over his face, a black hat low over his eyes, burst into the study. He had on a pair of white work gloves, and was carrying a gun. He didn't say a word . . . just motioned me over to the safe, pointing at the spot where the money was, and with the gun, motioned for me to take the money out and hand it to him. Then, still in pantomime, he gave me to understand that I was not to move after he left . . . but, of course, as soon as he was out of the room, I got on the phone to you".

You ask to interview the two young men separately, and as Philip Morrison enters you take note of his flaming red hair, his freckled face and hands, and the latent strength and grace of his movements. In answer to your question, he tells you, "I was upstairs sleeping until I heard Uncle Henry's shouts of anger down here in his study. I admit I'd seen a bit of money here and there around town, but certainly

BRAIDED CARROTS

Some gardeners will try anything to be different, and they get a real lift when Nature gives them a hand. Mrs. Tony Dielski of Round Hill dug up the braided carrots above and was so impressed by the comments of her friends she brought the fresh to The Mercury. Now she's wondering if she had let them grow if they'd have produced braided seed.

District bride and groom to reside in the Rose City

Kelsey United Church was the scene of a lovely wedding on Saturday, August 22, when Carol Ann Cunningham, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Cunningham, became the bride of Lesley William Christenson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Christenson of Kingman. Rev. A. McNeil performed the double-ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in a floor-length gown of white peau de soie styled with a fitted bodice, lily-point sleeves and a full circular skirt enhanced by soft roses. Her shoulder-length veil of illusion net was held in place by a pearl-studded flower and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. Clarence Franklin, sister of the groom, as matron of honor, and Miss Rhonda Lebsack, friend of the bride, as bridesmaid, were attired in identical street-length dresses of turquoise chrystal charm and turquoise net headpieces with white accessories. They carried bouquets of pink carnations.

Attending the groom was Geo. Franklin, brother-in-law of the groom, and Neil Cunningham, brother of the bride. The guests were ushered by Lenard Cunningham, brother of the bride, and Harvey Hovdesen, friend of the groom.

Mrs. Clara Nelson was soloist, accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Ruth Thirsk.

The bride's mother chose a powder blue double-knit suit with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses. Mother of the groom chose a cream-colored suit of rayon boucle, with green accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Kelsey Hall. The bride's table was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake, baked by the bride's mother and decorated by Mrs. Lynn Hillaby. Lyle Sherry acted as master of ceremonies, and Bob Thirsk proposed the toast to the bride, to which the groom ably responded.

For going-away, the bride chose a blue double-knit suit, with beige accessories.

Following their honeymoon to various points in the U.S., the happy couple will reside in Camrose.

TB x-ray is slated for Ministik area

(Mrs. J. Reddish)

Sponsored locally by the Ministik Ladies' Club, the Mobile TB Chest X-ray Unit will visit Ministik in the near future.

This service, sponsored jointly by the departments of public health and the Alberta Tuberculosis Association Christmas Seal Fund, is a source of early discovery not only of unsuspected tuberculosis but many other abnormalities including lung cancer, emphysema, heart irregularities, tumors, etc., and is especially valuable in view of the alarming increase in the incidence of lung cancer which the chest x-ray will reveal considerably in advance of symptoms becoming obvious.

Mr. C. B. Pugh, director of x-ray surveys, Alberta Tuberculosis Association, is in the district making arrangements for the Tuberculin Testing and Chest X-ray survey. A housewholesome entrance will be conducted to register every family in South Cooking Lake, Hastings Lake and Ministik communities. All persons over school age will be included in this registration.

School children have been tuberculin tested at school through the services provided by your local health unit, and will not be required to attend this clinic.

In charge of the program are: Mrs. J. D. Paterson, general chairman, and advance registration chairman, Mrs R. Leach, clinic appointments chairman, Mrs. Jim Reddish and Mrs. L. Whisford, publicity chairman, Mrs. A. Horricks, volunteer help chairman.

The area to be covered in the survey will be South Cooking Lake, Hastings Lake and Ministik. You can safeguard yourself and your family by participating in the community survey.

Beaver Livestock Co-op may buy Veregin yards

At a recent meeting of the Board of Directors of the Beaver Livestock Coop it was decided that the Coop should try to negotiate the purchase of the Veregin yards.

The manager, Alex Clark, reported that livestock handlings had increased considerably and prevent indications were that the Co-op had an excellent chance to build up a thriving business. He suggested that the Board should take immediate steps to acquire permanent quarters by either purchasing the Veregin plant or building yards and facilities on another site.

The Board, after considerable discussion, decided to make an offer to the Trustee handling the liquidation of the Veregin firm and if their offer was not accepted that a similar offer be made after the initial buying rush this spring, and suggested that all members should renew their efforts to interest more farmers in the purchase of stores.

He indicated that sheep sales were not such that the Co-op could purchase the Veregin facilities from their own funds, but added that financing was available as soon as it was decided whether to buy or build the required facilities.

Welding school has vacancies

The farm welding school which is slated to be held at Nick's Pantry 66 Service during the week of November 23 to 27 can accommodate several more students Any farmer wishing to obtain training in either gas or electric welding should write or phone the district agriculturist's office in Ryley and make application to attend The school is restricted to 24 students and the trainees will be allotted on a first-come, first-serve basis The cost of the school should not prevent anyone from attending as the fee for the entire course is only $5.00, and will be payable on the first day of the course

As this will likely be the last such school to be held in the county for a few years, all farmers who have welders or contemplate the purchase of one in the near future should take advantage of this last school.

To honor newcomers

Newcomers to Tofield will be honored at a pot-luck supper to be held in the Community Hall next Monday evening at 8:30. All those planning to attend are asked to bring dishes, salads and desserts.

Twentieth century approach

Announcement of a new contract recently won by Sheriff Gordon Minsos to produce 110 million pure nickel colonge blanks for the Republic of South Africa prompts us to wonder how much thought the Canadian mint has given the question of expanding the use of nickel for our own coins.

One of the big problems facing the mint in Canada, and the treasury in the United States, is that the price of silver has risen to the point where many coins are actually worth as much for metal alone as their face value. In other words, there is roughly a dollar's worth of silver in a silver dollar. As the price increases, it becomes a losing proposition to mint coins, and yet merchants and customers are continually looking for more coins to handle the increasing demand for "change".

The problem can't be neglected, especially in this day of coin-operated dispensing machines, parking meters and so on.

How much thought has been given to switching over to nickel, for the same reasons it was chosen by the Republic of South Africa? Their decision was made only after a most intensive survey, which included durability, machine requirements, psychology of people, the "feel", viewpoints of banks and, of course, the factors in preventing counterfeiting. Chief factors, however, were a metal in free supply at moderate price, capable of taking a sharp impression and retaining a bright lustre and attractive appearance for many years. Nickel won.

Of course, as one wag has suggested, the problem could be solved by making a dollar the minimum price for anything.

Amazing and gratifying

Canadians have an "amazing and gratifying" knowledge of their country, according to a Telepoll survey taken recently, wherein specific facts, not opinions, were sought from more than 1,800 Canadians. Readers of this column hardly need be told we don't carry Telepoll in the highest estimation, but we have to agree that this survey was better in our opinion than many they have done.

We'll go along with Telepoll in their conclusion that our knowledge of our country is amazing, but we can hardly consider it gratifying when one in every eight people can't even count the number of provinces. (Ten, in case you can't). Best answered question was "the name of your provincial premier" with 92.8 per cent correct. Wonder if there's anybody in Alberta who doesn't know by now?

Just under three-quarters could name Canada's first prime minister under Confederation as Sir John A. Macdonald . . . and this as we approach our centennial year.

Most poorly answered of twelve questions, and two which flunked the majority, were Canada's ranking as first, second, third or fourth largest country in the world and the maximum number of years possible between federal general elections. Only 43.1 per cent could state that Canada is second largest country in the world, while 41.7 per cent knew, or guessed, there could be a five year run between elections.

Teeners scored as well as adults when a Toronto high school class was faced with the same dozen questions, says Telepoll.

But no better. And after all these years of social studies, too.

Another interesting aspect is that without fail, throughout the dozen questions, men scored better than did women, if only slightly better in some areas.

We'd be willing to make three bets in this regard. First: that if a similar set of questions could be framed around the United States, and asked of 1,000 Americans, the average score would be higher. Second: that if this second set of questions could be asked of the same Canadians already queried, their average score would drop only slightly, by not more than eight per cent. And thirdly: that if the original questions could be asked of 1,000 New Canadians, they would score higher than those of us who are native sons.

The question is: with or without a centennial, what are we going to do about it? Or is it "gratifying" after all?

By George!

Isn't it funny how just the smallest things can sometimes brighten up a day for you? You know what I mean . . . everything seems to go wrong, or you've got a problem for which there just seems to be no solution, and your whole day is shot, and then some little bit of joy creeps in and your day is made!

This was about the way things were going for me last Thursday. I couldn't seem to do anything right or complete any little job, and by early afternoon I was pretty gloomy. Then about a quarter to two, Dr. Don Murray phoned me to say that my wife had just given birth to our third daughter. Yep . . . you never know what little joy or sunshine is going to brighten your day for you!

All this got me to guessing about the little things that could come to people in this city to give their spirits a lift. The list is long, but just to name a few that give me a warm glowing:

A smile from Judy Scudder (or from her Dad, for that matter).

They greeted him on the street, but rarely spoke the brethren then. "Praise you must be getting' on in years," they'd say, "for one Ebel Ladies' Aid."

"Ah", said the man, "the way to heaven

Is long and hard and steep; With slopes at once on either side The path I've had to keep. The valley's filled with pebble stones, Our hearts are sore dismayed, We ne'er shall get to heaven at all Without the Ladies' Aid".

Call in the Ladies' Aid

November 10, 1964.

Editor, The Mercury.
Dear Sir:—

The Flag Issue has been hanging on so long, I would suggest a Maple Leaf wrapped around the Red Ensign and a Beetle in each corner. Then everybody would be happy.

Perhaps the Ladies' Aid could help the "Boys" at Ottawa get things straightened out.

Yours truly,
(Signed): "Cogit".

JUST ASK THE LADIES' AID
(Author Unknown)

The old church bell has long been silent,
It's cry was lost in space;
The belfry's now the nesting haunt,
Of birds every shape and face.
"It's need a bell", the brethren said,
"But taxes must be paid,
We have no money we can spare—
Just ask the Ladies' Aid".

The shingles on the roof were old,
And rotten from the rain;
The brethren slowly shook their heads
And thought of monthly bills.
The children of the board arose
And said, "I am afraid
That we shall have to lay the rain
Before the Ladies' Aid".
The matter had been pitched and tossed,
The quite beyond repair,
And through the cloths and on the floor
The rain showed hard and bare
"It's no use", the brethren said,
"An effort must be made
To raise the money in some sort
For the benefit of the Aid".

The preacher's stipend was behind,
The poor man blushed to meet
The grocer and butcher as

The money came in slowly,
But really spoke the brethren then,
"Praise, you must be getting' on in years," they'd say, "for one Ladies' Aid".

"Ah", said the man, "the way to heaven

Is long and hard and steep; With slopes at once on either side The path I've had to keep. The valley's filled with pebble stones, Our hearts are sore dismayed, We ne'er shall get to heaven at all Without the Ladies' Aid".

Guest Editorial—

Persons have rights under rule of law

The Sudbury Star

"I hold that, in a society which professes to live by the rule of law, any and every person has a right to expect that he or she can walk the streets and lanes of our cities and countrysides with a reasonable — and I repeat, reasonable — expectation that he or she can do so without fear of violation of the person either by robbery, assault, rape, insult or obscenity. Such is just not the case today."

This is an excerpt from a speech by RCMP Commissioner George B. McClellan in Saskatoon. These are words to be printed, framed and displayed in every police station and every court room in this country. They would serve as a constant reminder to lawbreakers, as well as to law enforcement agencies, that justice does not condone making a farce out of punishment.

Commissioner McClellan also said: "If civil rights mean anything, they mean the inviolability of the dignity of man — and the dignity of man surely means freedom from indignity to or violation of person.

"Where are the civil rights of the family whose breadwinner has been cut down by some drunken sot in a high-powered car? What system exists to provide free legal advice to the widow who may have a legitimate claim for damages? Who moves to rehabilitate her children, find them jobs, give them career guidance, feed them and clothe them? Who, indeed, but cold charity and local welfare organizations?

"But the drunk who drove the car, if convicted, is entitled to all these things when he becomes a ward of the state."

The words of the RCMP Commissioner are worth more than a passing thought.

FIRST HEAVY SNOW

The first heavy snow of the season fell on Tofield and district last Wednesday night and Thursday. Since there was no wind, the snow piled unusually high on trees and gate-posts, as evidenced in this picture.

Remembrance Day observed with parade and banquet

(St. K. Westmoreland)

Remembrance Day, Nov. 11 was observed here in the community room as it was to most Canadian cities and towns both large and small. The veterans were on parade to the Cenotaph a few minutes before 11 o'clock. Cllr Elmer Anderson led the poppy wreath in memory of the first war, and Cllr Harold Wagner for the second.

Roger Osborn sounded the "Last Post"; while the flag was lowered and the color party consisting of Mrs. Barbara Harbick, Mrs. Julia Anderson, Cllr. Don Campbell and Cllr. Garnet Burnstad dipped their colors. After the two minutes' silence Roger sounded "Reveille" and the service was rattle-tossed in the Community Hall. Rev. W. H. McDonnell was in charge of both services.

At the Legion Hall at 12 noon, the ladies of the auxiliary to the Canadian Legion served a hot turkey banquet, buffet style, to the veterans and their families and friends, numbering some 200. The afternoon was spent with music and visiting, and a social evening finished the day.

400 see showing of 'Fabulous Africa'

(By Peter Nichol)

Approximately 400 persons of all ages packed the Tofield Community Hall last Monday to see the film "Fabulous Africa". Many more were turned away, which is very unusual in Tofield as 350 persons in the hall has generally been considered a big crowd.

The spectacular film was presented by Edgar T. Jones in person, who, everyone will agree, did a splendid job of photographing of the African birds and animals in their natural habitat. Many of the birds and some of the animals shown were not those usually read or hear about or see in photos.

The educational film revealed that, contrary to popular belief, African game is not plentiful, and many of the animals are nearing extinction. Animals surviving are being captured and placed in game preserves where they are safe from poachers and hunters.

Sequences of this film are being used by NBC/TV and shown in 18 different countries on television screens.

Tom Indeed was top entertainment for Tofield.

Modern etiquette

By Roberta Lee

Q. Is it in good taste to use correspondence cards?

A. Yes; they are very popular and in good taste for the short, informal kind of notes. It is becoming more and more customary for both men and women to use these cards. However, they should be used only for strictly informal correspondence.

Q. When a man meets a woman on the street and walks with her, and she is carrying several packages, should he offer to carry them for her?

A. Only a few packages seem necessary, or if she is loaded down with a number of them. Otherwise it is not necessary.

Q. If letters, parsley or watercress are placed around an item of food to garnish it, may this properly be eaten?

A. Only that part of your individual serving and you wish to eat. You have a perfect right to do so.

Q. When a man calls a taxi for a woman whom he is unable to accompany to her destination, how does he arrange to pay her fare? It seems rather awkward to give her the money.

A. No, don't thrust the cab fare into the woman's hand. Ask the driver what the approximate fare will be, then pay him in advance, including a tip.

Q. Do you think it is proper for people to keep their TV sets turned on while entertaining guests?

A. If the guests are really interested, it is all right. But to have the set in operation while conversation or a card game is in progress is not only distracting, but in poor taste.

Q. When is the proper time for the host and hostess to seat themselves at the dinner table?

A. The hostess always seats herself first, this being the signal for the guests to seat themselves. The host is always the last to seat himself.

THE SYMBOL OF YOUTH AT EXPO '67

Gilles Gariepy, Chairman of the Expo '67 Advisory Youth Committee, explains the symbol of the Youth Pavilion to Jean Bellemare (left), Valerie Forbes and Stuart Coolidge (extreme right), coordinators of the Committee. The symbol, adopted at a plenary meeting of the Committee, was unveiled during the submission to the Canadian Corporation for the 1967 World Exhibition, of the Youth Committee preliminary recommendations regarding the participation of the various national and international Youth Organizations to the 1967 World Exhibition. Designed by a 23-year-old artist, Jacques Roy, the symbol combines the traditional dot and circle, emblem of international youth, with a stylized flower or graphical interpretation of a furrow, symbolizing Springtime. The Committee also recommended the creation of an International Youth Centre and Hostel.

Speaker forecasts more Alberta MP's

Alberta is listed for two additional seats in the House of Commons under redistribution recommendations currently before Parliament, Mrs. Margaret Konantz told members of the Alberta Liberal Women's Association meeting in Camrose Monday. Mrs. Konantz is Liberal Member of Parliament for Winnipeg-South. The day-long meeting opened Monday morning, and concluded with a banquet in the evening attended by one of the largest groups at a political rally in Camrose in several years.

SPEAKERS

Other speakers during the conference were: Mrs. Elizabeth Alberta Liberal Leader; Mrs. Ronald White, President of the Alberta Liberal Women's Association; Hal Veale, Liberal Candidate, Battle River-Camrose; Jred Kinzel, Provincial Battle River-Camrose Liberal Association; and Mrs. F. M. Smith, chairman of the evening meeting.

A panel of four people discussed "Some Family Farm Problems in Central Alberta" during the afternoon session under the guidance of Moderator Mrs. H. Fenerty of Tofield. Members of the panel were Ralph Tarr, Mrs. Robert Ingersoll, Glen Monson and Paul Bailey.

Mrs. Konantz, who flew from Ottawa to address the meeting, spoke for about 1½ hours on what she called "News From Parliament". It was her opinion the present Liberal Government in Ottawa has accomplished a great deal since February. To support this she reviewed work done by the numerous committees on which she is a member because she represents the West. The flag question was singled out for special discussion. Mrs. Konantz was on the special committee and explained how the committee arrived at the single maple leaf design.

Explaining the redistribution bill Mrs. Konantz said the maximum population of a constituency was set at 88,624 and the minimum 33,174. This permitted a 25% tolerance. The urban seats are to have no more than 93,000. Working on this basis Ontario will gain three seats; Quebec will lose one seat; Nova Scotia and Manitoba will lose one seat; British Columbia will gain one; Alberta will gain two; Saskatchewan will lose four; New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island will remain the same. The Northwest Territories are not included. The final result will provide 264 seats under amended provisions of the BNA Act.

Tofield to host livestock meet

Two relatively new subjects in livestock field will be discussed at a farm meeting to be held in the meeting room of the Community Centre on Wednesday, Dec. 2nd.

J. S. Law, livestock supervisor with the Alberta department of agriculture will discuss performance testing of beef cattle, a subject which has aroused considerable interest in livestock circles in the past few years, but about which there is still a lack of appreciation and understanding.

Another topic which should be of interest to all cattlemen is the matter of Artificial Insemination of range cattle. With improved techniques being rapidly introduced it is quite possible that A.I. will, in the near future, be widely used on range animals. H. B. Jeffery of the livestock branch will discuss and explain methods presently used to adapt A.I. to range breeding.

The meeting will begin at 1:30 p.m. and will conclude in time for most stockmen to make it home for chores.

The information which will be provided by the two speakers should be of interest to all progressive stockmen.

Community league honors newcomers

Over 170 people turned out for a pot-luck supper in the Tofield Community Hall Monday evening to welcome about 40 families who had moved into the district during the past year. The newcomers were welcomed at the door by members of the Tofield Lions Club and entertained by speeches, music and colored slides.

Not all of the new families were present, but those attending the dinner were introduced by the master of ceremonies, Herod Schultz. A haunting puppy of acid was provided for the occasion by members of the Community League.

Official welcomes were extended from various organizations in Tofield. John Hoerper, president of the Community League, spoke on behalf of his organization, while Mayor Dr. W. H. Freebury spoke for the town. Harold Woodsetzk spoke for the County of Beaver. Mr. Schultz extended greetings on behalf of the Chamber of Commerce. Dr. Price replied for the newcomers.

A ladies' trio consisting of Miss Doris Osland, Mrs. Stella Wall, and Mrs. Lilly Schultz entertained the gathering briefly before Mrs. Cass showed a number of colored slides from her collection on Europe.

John Wall is the chair. Eight Lion members from Andrew club were present on a visitation trip, together with 22 members of the Andrew Junior High School band including seven girls. The band is sponsored by the Andrew club, led by Lion Leo Kreminsky, a teacher at Andrew. This was only part of the band, and from the energy and ability shown, the village of Andrew is very lucky indeed.

The Tofield club learned that the skating rink is being flooded and that Dave Dalgaid has been engaged by the Andrew club as supervisor for this winter. Mrs. Ken Rempel has also agreed to take charge of the junior skating activities later.

Arrangements were made for visitation to other clubs, during meets Christmas entertainment. Santa Claus to arrive by helicopter on Saturday, Nov 28th, and other incidentals.

The hostesses found their facilities taxed to the limit to serve the large crowd present, but they did not run out of food.

A service to Tofield

The report of the meeting of the County of Beaver School committee in this issue of The Mercury refers to a news report carried in this paper some time ago concerning an alleged fire hazard at the Grade One school in Tofield. The minutes of the school committee meeting state that an investigation into the matter had been conducted, and it was the opinion of the investigation committee that a "dangerous fire hazard did not exist and that all precautions had been taken to insure the safety of the children of the school."

Certainly this will be reassuring news for parents of the children attending the school, and the school committee is to be commended for making an early inspection of the situation.

In the same minutes, The Mercury is taken to task for over-stepping its authority by publishing the article on the alleged fire hazard, the school committee claiming the article should not have been published in view of the fact that the report of the Tofield Fire Department had been referred to the provincial fire commissioner's office.

Here we feel we must take issue with the school committee. Firstly, the newspaper report was checked by the inspector from the fire commissioner's office, and he agreed that there were no errors in the report, though he, too, felt the matter should have been referred to the fire commissioner's office before it appeared in a newspaper. Here we hasten to point out that The Mercury's reporter was ASKED to accompany the Tofield firemen in the inspection of the school. The fact that there was a supposed fire hazard in the school was not the opinion of the reporter. The fire brigade, noting that there was only one exit from the Grade One room, and that that exit was over a furnace in the basement, felt that another exit was needed, as the only other escape in case of fire, as the situation is at present, would be the windows. "This would be equally hazardous, as the children would then have to jump into broken glass," a Tofield firefighter commented during the inspection. The news report in The Mercury of October 22nd says, in part: "To combat this problem, the brigade immediately filled out an inspection report, asking that another exit be placed on the north side of the west room in the Grade One building."

We have repeated this part of the report to indicate that the Tofield Fire Brigade was sufficiently concerned about the alleged hazard to recommend in an official report that something be done about it. When the news report reached the desk of The Mercury editor, he, too, felt that such a situation could be hazardous, and that the Tofield Fire Brigade should be commended for being so alert. So the report was published. Nor do we at this time apologize for publishing it.

Referring again to the minutes of the county school committee meeting, we read: "It was considered that the writer of the article had to some extent overstepped his authority. However, it was also realized that the Tofield Fire Brigade in conducting these inspections was doing a very worthwhile job, and it was moved (and carried unanimously) that this committee express its objections to the report in The Tofield Mercury and that a sincere vote of thanks be accorded the Tofield Volunteer Fire Brigade for the work that they are doing in fire inspections and other work intended to lessen the fire hazard."

We quite agree that the brigade is to be commended for its service to the community, but what we cannot understand is that while the school committee was quick to compliment the fire brigade for the service it rendered, in almost the same breath The Mercury was reprimanded for rendering much the same service to its readers in the Tofield district by reporting the findings of the fire brigade.

With regard to whether or not the article should have been published, we repeat The Mercury's reporter was asked to accompany the brigade on the inspection, and to report it. He did not "over-step his authority", but, rather, he reported only what he saw and heard. He was doing his job.

The job of a newspaper is to report items of interest to readers in its own community, and surely no item could interest parents more than the safety of their children. When The Mercury feels it can offer a service to the people of Tofield and district by reporting such things as the alleged fire hazard, it will continue trying to serve to the best of its ability.

Naturally the councillors are entitled to their opinions in this matter. We are sincere when we say we are glad they are interested enough to have strong feelings. By the same token, we insist on the right of The Mercury to its opinion that this matter is one of broad public interest, that there was no error made in the facts, and that the matter of overstepping of authority is not for the school committee to decide.

Since no blame has ever been imputed to the school committee, we feel its members have been unduly and unreasonably sensitive in this matter. It may be The Mercury is being oversensitive to the committee's complaint, but it would be a poor fig of a newspaper that did not defend its right to judge for itself. We have no intention of earning this description.

THE CHOICEST

If you would choose the choicest book, select the one that's soiled and worn; and as you finger through it leaves you'll note how they are curled and torn.

The book, by use, acquired these marks, which show on every leaf and page, as eager eyes have scanned the text to garner wisdom for the age.

Then, if you'd choose the choicest man, select not one who's pride and prim, but pick the man who shows some wear, and has the marks of use on him.

YOU ARE THE DETECTIVE

Wilfred Bowman, one of the city's most-loved men, lies dead on his living room floor, his skull horribly crushed. Next to his body lies the death weapon, a bronze poker, which you have examined and found clean of any fingerprints. You guess correctly he luxuriously-furnished room at the two young men seated to two leather upholstered chairs. "You two young men, of course, are prime suspects", you say.

"And why so?" asks Dick Stanton, straining to see clearly through his thick-lensed glasses.

"Because you both had a big motive both of you nephews of Mr. Bowman, both of you heirs to a considerable fortune and with much to gain by his death. Could be one of you became impatient to inherit sooner."

"That's just so much hogwash," exclaims Sam Ferguson. "We both loved, respected, and thought highly of Uncle Will".

"Anyone could have walked into the house downstairs here while Sam and I were in our rooms upstairs, and killed our uncle", says Dick. "Perhaps a robber".

"Robbery seems to be out", you reply. "Nothing was taken. Moreover, I'm sure the murderer knew your uncle very well", and you point to an ashtray which rests on the arm of an easy chair next to the body. "The murderer sat there and had a cigarette, talking with him before he killed him". A cigarette stub with a long column of ashes lies in the ashtray. "I have been told by the servants", you continue, "that your uncle didn't smoke himself, also that no one was an extremely meticulous man, and wouldn't tolerate any unemptied ashtrays once a visitor had departed . . . all of which convinces me that it was the killer who had the cigarette and . . . "

"That eliminates me", said Dick Stanton, "I don't smoke . . . the one time I tried it made me so sick that I've never touched a cigarette since".

Party honors Mrs. Winder on 90th birthday

On Friday night, Nov. 6th, there was an open house birthday party held at the Kingman Baptist Church to celebrate Grandma (Mrs. Margaret) Winder's 90th birthday. Grandma Winder enjoys music, song, and God's Word more than anything else in this world. In her honor and for the friends gathered, a program was put on by various members of the family, ably led by Herman Swanson, a friend of the family.

Allan Winder and daughters, Margaret and Gloria, played two numbers on accordion and piano; Elaine Sorell gave a lovely reading, "A tribute to Aunt Margaret", which she had written herself; a number in music by some of the grandchildren, and great-grandchildren, "Mansion over the Hilltop"; a Swedish song, "Le Den i Sander" by Irene Weins and Signe Brown, and a recitation by Lynn Schmidt, "Mother's accomplishments".

It was indeed an honor to have Ole Sorell and family present, missionaries home on furlough from the land of Peru. Ole gave a few inspiring remarks from God's Word, and extended birthday wishes to Grandma Winder. A duet "He Knows It All", was sung by Signe Brown, and a recitation by Lynn Schmidt, "Mother's accomplishments".

Albin Anderson, one of Kingman's oldtimers, gave a few reminiscence of the "good old days" when the cost of living was not so high, and how the old timers used to come into Kingman to get their supply of groceries and pick up their mail. Some would walk, others would drive with horses and wagon or sleighs.

Another number of music was rendered by Albin Winder and daughters.

Lunch was served in the church basement, the ladies of the Mission Circle doing the serving. The lovely birthday cake was made and decorated by granddaughter, Margaret Jrosen Mrs. Elolahl poured coffee and Mrs. Ruth Sorell served the Kool-Aid. Grandma Winder was the recipient of many cards and gifts of money from friends and relatives. Her immediate family presented her with a bouquet of flowers.

With a guest book was signed by over 100 people. A lovely Swedish song was sung by Agda Asp and Albert Winder.

Thanks were extended to all for coming and making Grandma's 90th birthday one to be long remembered.

TASTY POT-LUCK

As evidenced in this picture, the pot-luck supper honoring newcomers to Tofield Monday night offered such a range in choices of food that guests had trouble making up their minds which to taste and what foods they would have to reluctantly pass up. This year's edition of the annual "welcome party" was considered very successful by the host group, the Community League. —Mercury Photo.

Barbershoppers travel to Tofield for show

The Camrose Barbershop Chorus and the new quartet, which is now using the name "Chordinators", presented a show of barbershop-style singing for the first time this season at Tofield last Wednesday evening. Along with the program there were numbers staged by Tofield performers.

LOCAL TALENT

The first item of local talent was given by Ralph, Andrew and Frank Denham, and Dorothea Freeberg, presenting a burlesque impression of the London Music Hall.

The second item was Tofield's homage to William Shakespeare on the occasion of the 400th anniversary of the author's birth. The eight high school girls who so ably became characters from some of the plays were Diane Hoover, Joyce Lampitt, Elaine Sorell, Shirley Swift, Gloria Scott, Channa Astley, Margaret Hallett and Frances Schultz.

The last item was our answer to the eternal soap opera as portrayed on T.V. Taking part were Gloria Hoover, Dorothea Freeberg and Joan Dunham.

The Chordinators have sung in programs four times this fall, including the ESAC 40th Charter night celebration, a banquet honoring the Alberta midget baseball champions from the County of Camrose, the Killam Co-op's 50th anniversary program in the Erskine school auditorium last Saturday evening.

CAROL FESTIVAL

The next sing - out for the chorus will be at the Order of the Eastern Star Carol Festival to be held in the city later this month. The night previous the Chordinators will be entertaining at Strettler.

The Chordinators, formerly known as the "Mavericks" were forced to change their name when it was learned that there is another Barbershop quartet in the U.S. with the same name. The new name has not yet been approved by the International office of SPEBSQSA. Should this name, too, already have been chosen by another foursome, the local quartet will be seeking its third "handle".

Register trucks for winter work

Hon. Gordon E. Taylor, Minister of Highways, has announced that truck registration for Winter Work commenced Wednesday, Nov. 25th, and that the necessary forms are available in the Highways Building, Edmonton, and in the offices of the District Engineers.

The farm registration system is designed to distribute work among gravel dump truck operators who are depending wholly on this work for their living. Gross earnings accumulated will be set at $1,000 per owner unless it is less. Only one truck per owner may be registered.

In order to effectively operate this scheme, truckers must be ready to go anywhere in the province when called, and those not prepared to do so should not register.

Princess Pats' Band to present concert

Next Monday, Dec. 7th, the Princess Patricia Canadian Light Infantry Band will entertain the students of the Tofield school. They will put on a concert from 1:30 to 2:00 for Grades 1 to 6. Then there will be a music appreciation and a short concert for junior and senior high from 2:30 to 3:30. This was made possible through the co-operation of the band leader and a music teacher, Captain Jefferies.

The Holden teams were unable to meet the schedule on Friday, Nov. 27th. As a result, the Tofield basketball teams automatically won 2 to 0. This Friday, Dec. 4th, the Tofield and Ryley basketball teams will play in Ryley.

Santa visits Tofield

(By Peter Nickel)

A great day for the kiddies was experienced last Saturday when approximately 300 children and some parents greeted Santa as he stepped out of his helicopter in Tofield last Saturday.

Santa's whirly-bird landed at the ball diamond where he was met by Matt Lasiuk of Holden with a one-horse open sleigh and taken to the community hall, where he spoke to all the young kiddies and heard their Christmas wants.

Having a busy schedule he stayed only one hour, but found time to make the door prize drawn consisting of goods donated by the local businessmen. One of Santa's comments to all the folks was, "Of all the towns I've visited this year I have never seen so many kiddies. My goodness, they are here from all over—Tofield, Ryley and Holden".

When asked by the reporter if he could remember everything said could he have them all made before Christmas, he replied, "I've got it all down and they'll be ready for Christmas". Then he had to hurry on his way, leaving a trail of cheery little voices saying "Bye Santa, Bye Santa, see you soon".

Both Mr and Mrs Komarnisky thanked their friends and neighbors for the lovely gift and they each spoke for the people of the Holden town.

Mr. and Mrs. Komarnisky left Holden the early part of last week for Red Deer to spend a few days with their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Igor Lozynsky. They then plan to drive to Kelowna, B.C., and on to Vancouver to visit for a while with their son Ronnie and family. Later they plan to go to Victoria for a visit with Mrs. Komarnisky's sister and husband and possibly to spend the winter months there.

A child shall lead them

Several 4-H'ers in the area are in the van of a club-sponsored movement to promote distinctive markings on slow moving vehicles, such as farm implements, tractors and trucks, in order to help reduce the high accident rate and the hazard they present to faster moving traffic.

Recruitment of this group, rather than the Farmer's Union, which graciously stepped out of the field, will be a big boon to the idea. Young people are quick to pick up new ideas, and they're often quicker to recognize the need than their elders. If the young will adopt the idea, not only will it spread rapidly, but it will be firmly ingrained.

The 4-H program involves use of a brilliant pennant on a ten foot pole mounted on the vehicle, making it visible even in the ditch, or on rolling roads. The pennant means traffic moving less than 25 miles per hour, no slow downers. Equally sound is the introduction of new brilliant red reflecting triangles which quickly resemble those on the highway. Compulsory in twelve European countries as warnings, the red triangle has been a warning at least since they were mounted on rear fenders to inform traffic behind that a car had four-wheel brakes and could be expected to stop more suddenly than expected. Remember when?

Wholesale imagination?

What of the 12,000 winter tunics recently bought by the RCAF at $8.50, but which it now finds it doesn't need, asks The Financial Post. Turned over to the Crown Assets Disposal Corp, there is no-one to buy them. One bidder offered 17 cents each, then withdrew his offer as too high. Comments The Post, if they won't sell at 17 cents, they're not likely to be sold at all, and may probably wind up as part of our foreign aid program.

The latter suggestion wouldn't dismay us a bit, if say, they were given to Dr. Letta Hitschmanova of the Unitarian Service Committee, which has for many years done wonders in the field of foreign aid at minimum expense.

But we wonder if there isn't room for some wholesaling imagination in disposal of these tunics. We're not immediately sure of their styling, or whether they even remotely resemble the army winter tunic. However, if they're for the service, it can be accepted that they are good and serviceable.

If they're not saleable then at Yonge Street and Bloor, why not try Railway Avenue or Main Street in many a smaller Western town? We'd bet odds that they'd find ready acceptance among a lot of farmers, truckers, hunters, possibly, . . . all people who have to work outdoors, where the tunics were designed for. Maybe they could be released through Fish and Game offices or some other government outlet. Maybe they could be turned over to welfare departments, or maybe a new fad could be started where they were a status symbol . . . "Watch your son play hockey in your Air Force surplus winter tunic" for instance. Or whisper to teen-agers that they're "in" for this season and 12,000 won't be enough.

But let's give them away before we take 17 cents for garments that cost $8.50 to 12,000 lots.

New wealth from oil

Oil has long been heralded as the black gold from Alberta, but now it's also producing yellow gold. Last week a Canadian exporting firm made its largest single shipment of sulphur, from Alberta oil wells.

Produced as a by-product of the industry, the smelly yellow substance is used in a tremendous variety of manufacturing processes, and bids fair to become a major industry in its own right. Last week's shipment was enough to fill an apartment block five stories high, fifty feet wide and 200 feet long. It took 323 railway hopper cars to move it to Vancouver, where it was trans-shipped in the Liberian freighter "Delphic Oracle" for Australia.

Nearly a score of countries, ranging from the U.S.S.R. to Taiwan have been customers for this important new export, which helps to bring thousands of dollars to Albertans and to provide many new jobs.

'Farmers must organize' says farm union member

At the November meeting of the Tofield Farmers' Union, although not too well attended, delegates were appointed to the annual convention in Edmonton, December 7th.

Membership canvassers except for one couple had not been very active, and the president impressed on them the importance of this. It is unfortunate that a few have to spend valuable time each year going around for membership. Unorganized farmers cannot expect to get attention with the majority of organized society.

Councillor Weatherill brought up the question of co-op insurance, and said he would like to get the reaction of the union to this. It was agreed to endeavor to get a speaker at an early date in 1965.

The next meeting, Thursday, Dec. 8th, at 8 p.m., in the League Hall, will be the annual meeting, and it is hoped there will be a good turn out. A 30-pound turkey has been ordered for a turkey lunch, so it is hoped enough will turn up so that only the bones will be on view!

Take part in Pool meeting

Two delegates from this region to the annual meeting of the Alberta Wheat Pool were elected so sit on working committees during the meeting last week. Charles P. Hayes of Strome was named one of four members to such meetings, while Ingvald Ness of Kingman was one of four members elected to the grants committee.

Slightly over half of the 70 official delegates were present, one being absent due to the death of his mother, while one seat has not been filled following the death of the member who held it.

Parish 'farewells' pastor and family

(M. K. Westmancoat)

RYLEY — On Friday evening, Nov. 27th, the congregation and friends gathered in the Lutheran Hall to bid "farewell" to Rev. and Mrs. M. A. Steiestol and family. Mrs. Eileen Magnesen acted as mistress of ceremonies for the program. Ed Magnesen opened the program with a reading and a prayer, after which all gathered in singing the favorite hymns of the honored guests, followed by a period of games in which all could participate. A duet by Bobby Hagen and Lloyd Wickstrom, and a trio, when these two boys were joined by Harold Johnson, were much enjoyed by all.

Presentations were made as follows: Paul Evans, on behalf of friends, by Dale Magnesen, a pottery mug with his friends' names on it. Bibles were presented to Randi and Ann-Marie, by Harold Johnson, on behalf of the Ladies' Aid.

Mrs. Steiestol was presented with a pair of blankets from the Lutheran Church Women by Mrs. Peter Kusmir.

From the Lutheran congregation and friends, Ole Hagen presented the Pastor and his family with a beautiful walnut table lamp, with amber shades, and a purse of money. Everyone wished them all the Lord's richest blessings in their new parish at Birch Hills, Sask.

The serving of a delicious lunch brought the evening to a close.

THE RYLEY TIMES

'Farmers must organize' says farm union member

At the November meeting of the Tofield Farmers' Union, although not too well attended, delegates were appointed to the annual convention in Edmonton, December 7th.

Membership canvassers, except for one couple have not been very active, and the president impressed on them the importance of this. It is unfortunate that a few have to spend valuable time each year going around for membership. Unorganized farmers cannot expect to get attention with the majority of organized society.

Councillor Weatherill brought up the question of co-op insurance, and said he would like to get the reaction of the union to this. It was agreed to enter a resolution to get a speaker at an early date in 1965.

The next meeting, Tuesday, Dec. 8th, at 8 p.m., in the Legion Hall, will be the annual meeting, and all is hoped there will be a good turn out. A 30-pound turkey has been ordered for a turkey lunch, so it is hoped enough will turn up so that only the bones will be on view!

Take part in Pool meeting

Two delegates from this region to the annual meeting of the Alberta Wheat Pool were elected to sit on working committees during the meeting last week. Charles P. Hayes of Elnora was named one of four members to chair meetings, while Ingvald Vess of Kingman was one of four members elected to the grass committee.

Sixty-eight of the 70 official delegates were present, one being absent due to the death of his mother, while one seat has not been filled following the death of the member who held it.

Parish 'farewells' pastor and family

(M. K. Westenraaet)

RYLEY — On Friday evening, Nov. 27th, the congregation and friends gathered in the Lutheran Hall to bid "farewell" to Rev. and Mrs. M. A. Steiestol and family. Mrs. Eileen Magnuson acted as mistress of ceremonies for the program. Ed Magnuson opened the program with a reading and a prayer, after which all joined in singing the favorite hymns of the honored guests, followed by a period of games in which all could participate. A duet by Bobby Hagen and Lloyd Wickstrom, and a trio, when these two boys were joined by Harold Johanson, were much enjoyed by all.

Presentations were made as follows: to Paul Ann, the school friends, by Dale Magnuson, a pottery mug, with his friends' names on it. Bibles were presented to Randi and Ann-Marie, by Harold Johanson, on behalf of the Ladies' League.

Mrs. Steiestol was presented with a pair of blankets from the Lutheran Church Women by Mrs. Pearl Kuisnir.

From the Lutheran congregation and friends, Ole Hagen presented the Pastor and his family with a beautiful walnut hide lamp, with amber shades, and a purse of money. Everyone wished them all the Lord's richest blessings in their new portals at Birch Hills, Sask.

The serving of a delicious lunch brought the evening to a close.

The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Royal Canadian Legion are sponsoring a novel idea for a Christmas raffle. The lucky number drawn will be entitled to a "family Christmas dinner for 12" with all the trimmings. Tickets may be purchased from any member of the auxiliary, and the draw will be made on the evening of the Legion turkey bingo.

The Ryley Lions club were hosts on Sunday for the banquet of the Lions Zone playoffs. Over 100 curlers were in town for the big games and the banquet held in the Legion Hall. Eighteen rinks competed, and Chipman came out in first place, with Two Hills second.

Don't forget the turkey bingo in the Legion Hall on Friday night, Dec. 4th, sponsored by the 4-H Dairy Club.

Visitors at the Hans Hilmerd home on Saturday, Nov. 28th, were Hilmer and Evelyn Moen.

Curling gala fetes departing women

Last Saturday evening the Tofield Ladies' Curling Club, together with several former members, organized a curling game to honor Mrs. Emily Carlisle and Mrs. Dot Pierson who have left Tofield. The nine rinks were gaily attired in a variety of costumes which included Indians, hillbillies, flappers, bobies, football players, old fashioned curlers, darkies, and yellow woollies.

The curling shots were somewhat hampered by fastballs and Indian tomahawks, so the games were called off by the referees after six ends. Everyone was then invited to the home of Mrs. Irma Pravda for a social evening. The skips each introduced their rink with a verse pertaining to their costumes. Skips were W. Christensen, B. Pilger, E. Bowick, I. Dodds, Z. Hladun, D. Pigeon, G. McKay, E. Nolan, M. Dunlop.

On behalf of the club, Mrs. Marie Wortan presented the two guests with soapstone curling coffee spoons. Both Mrs. Pigeon and Mrs. Carlisle spoke briefly and said the would be back to take part in our open bonspiel.

Podruzny - Pope rites held November 28th

(St. K. Westmancoal)

RYLEY — On Saturday morning, Nov. 28th, at 11 a.m., in the St. John M. Vianny Catholic Church in Ryley, Marilyn Virginia Pope became the bride of Bert Michael Podruzny. The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Pope, and the groom is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Podruzny, all of Ryley. The double-ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Father L. Ecrizan. and during the signing of the register, the choir sang "On This Day".

The petite bride entered the church to the strains of the wedding march on the arm of her father, who gave his daughter in marriage. The bridal gown was a full-length model in chalk white, with a billowing skirt of nylon net inserted with bands of alencon lace. The lace bodice, with long lily-point sleeves was buttoned down the back, and trimmed with silver, her chapel veil was held in place by a dainty silver garnet, and she carried a bouquet of deep red roses.

The bride was preceded down the aisle by three bridesmaids. Misses Geraldine Kmiech, Lauren Anderson, and Betty Kryss, friends of the bride. They were identical full-length gowns of crystal charm in Nile green, with headbands and short veils in the same shade. Their bouquets were of white daisies.

Attending the groom were Henry Podruzny, brother of the groom, as bestman, and Darryl Albright and Robert Podruzny, cousin of the groom, as groomsmen.

The ushers were Gordon Pope, brother of the bride, and another young man, friend of the groom.

A reception was held at 5 p.m. in the Legion Hall for 175 guests. The bride's table was centred with a beautiful three-tiered cake, made by the bride's mother, and decorated by the bride's aunt, Anne Marie Pope. On either side of the cake were white and silver candles and vases of white and yellow chrysanthemums.

For her daughter's wedding, the bride's mother chose a bottle green dress trimmed with white, and a satin ribbon hat to match, white accessories, and a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Podruzny chose a black silk dress and a grey hat, with corsage of pale pink carnations.

Bob Westmancoat proposed the toast to the bride. Dancing following the reception, and the presentation was made to the bridal couple at midnight.

For travelling, the bride wore a pink wool suit, with a corsage of roses. The happy couple will make their new home in Edmonton. The many guests from out of town came from all points in Alberta.

Is that light necessary?

Work has been difficult for Calgary Power crews who have had their fingers crossed for the past two weeks following failure of two armature coils on their largest generator at Wabamun.

Maintenance crews have been working on a round-the-clock basis trying to head off the trouble that might develop with peak loading factors. Augmented power supplies have been made possible by drawing interconnecting power from every inter-connecting provider, including the cities of Edmonton Lethbridge and Medicine Hat, and generating stations of Canadian Utilities and both East and West Kootenay Power Companies. Where possible, certain interruptible industrial customers have been cut back. Other large industrial users are helping by voluntarily cutting load at critical times.

The peak loads are normally felt from 4:45 to 8:00 p.m. on Monday to Friday, and every effort is being made to avert a power overload at this period.

Should it occur, company officials say it may be inevitable to ask customers for a substantial reduction of load during these peak hours, until the armatures can be replaced, probably in a few days.

Every dollar you saved went right to work in 1964

Horace Seller, Manager
Tofield Branch
Bank of Montreal

As Manager of your local branch of the Bank of Montreal, I would like to report to you briefly about the use we made of the savings dollars which you placed in our keeping in 1964.

Let me say that our country's economy got 100 cents of effort from every savings dollar entrusted to us in the past year. A large portion went to assist people in financing things that meant an improved way of life for them . . . such things as care, home improvements, household appliances of all kinds. Another very substantial proportion of your savings dollar was lent to small, medium and large business enterprises, encouraging them to expand and to employ more people.

The personal savings of all our customers this year amounted to very nearly one-half of the total deposits of $4,340,434,040 at the Bank's year-end on October 31st, 1964. This figure is the highest in all our 127 years of banking and allowed us to bring our loans to a record high of $2,728,082,230.

Another $674,466,286 was invested in high-grade government bonds which have a ready market, plus $268,161,390 in other securities—mainly short-term credits to industry.

What else did your hard working dollars do in 1964? Well, they breathed new vitality into virtually every community across our nation. They financed new industry and created new jobs . . . helped farmers improve both their farms and their way of living . . . constructed new schools and helped students get a better education . . . built new roads and highways . . . supported community projects, large and small, of many kinds.

Yes, your savings dollars worked hard in 1964 — and hardest of all for you. For, steadily accumulating at interest, they are a sound investment in a better future for yourself and your family.

On behalf of the Bank of Montreal, may I say "thank you" for your confidence in "My Bank" and for the opportunity you are giving us to work with you in building a more prosperous Canada.

P. Ericksons mark 40th anniversary

On Sunday afternoon, Nov. 29, despite the cold weather, a number of friends and relatives of Pete and Oliva Erickson gathered at the home of their daughter and son-in-law in Edmonton to help them celebrate the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary.

The happy couple received many gifts and congratulations from those who attended and also from many who were unable to attend due to the cold weather.

The serving table was highlighted with a four-tiered wedding cake and accessories with a ruby motif. The cake also was enhanced with a replica of a church and the bride and groom ascending the velvet steps in the front of the cake.

A small program was presented including a verse of dedication to Mom and Dad, read by their daughter, Muriel, also a verse written by Mrs. Erickson's sister, Emma, and read by her niece, as well as two songs, one by the couple's grandchildren, Judy and Roger, and the other by their grandniece, Marilyn.

A buffet supper climaxed the afternoon which was enjoyed by all.

Modern etiquette

Q. When addressing an envelope to two unmarried sisters, should it be written as "The Misses Brown", or as "Miss Anne Brown and Miss Jane Brown"?

A. "The Misses Brown" is sufficient.

Q. When visiting in the home of friends, should you ask an open dish of candy on the table near a guest's chair, isn't that guest privileged to help himself without an invitation?

A. Certainly not. To do so would show a lack of good manners.

Q. Would it be all right for me to have my birthstone, instead of the usual diamond, for my engagement ring? My friends claim this would be improper.

A. This is not for your friends to judge. It is your privilege to wear any kind of engagement ring you wish, and any kind is perfectly proper.

Q. Is there any rule as to who should make the introductions at an informal home gathering, the host or the hostess?

A. No; either may do this.

Q. Is it necessary to write anything, except your name, on the card that accompanies a wedding gift?

A. Not necessary — but not wrong.

Q. What is the "preferred" time for one to make a chance call?

A. Sunday afternoon or evening are the most popular times for this type of visit.

Based on reports received from their correspondents, the Searle Grain Company estimated the average wheat yield for the three Prairie Provinces at 19.7 bushels per acre. This compares with the long-time average yield of 18.9 bushels per acre. By province the estimated average yield per acre is: Alberta, 21.8 bushels; Saskatchewan, 18.1 bushels and Manitoba, 24.7 bus.

Yields in Manitoba were uniformly good following the better than normal growing season rains. In both Saskatchewan and Alberta the wide differences in growing conditions and in the amount of rainfall received made for wide variations in yield.

Your candidates sav—

With the County of Beaver election in Division 7 coming up this Saturday, The Mercury has asked the three candidates for county councillor to make pre-election statements. Unfortunately, only two candidates submitted statements to The Mercury office, and those too late.

To the ratepayers of M.D. Beaver No. 9, division 7:

The purpose of this letter is to acquaint the ratepayers in division 7 with some of the issues which have tempted me to enter as candidate for Councillor.

I see no sense of either economy or value for dollars spent on putting stones or silt on our roads. Lighter applications or less miles of at least fair gravel would, in my estimation, be a sounder investment of the taxpayers' dollar. I believe the school buses could be operated more efficiently if given more supervision. I will most definitely not at any time or to any extent cover up for businesses or individuals doing or attempting any shady dealings with either the municipality or the school division.

I sincerely request your support in the forthcoming election and if successful I will at all times be open to suggestions or criticisms from the taxpayers.

George Eidse.

Dear Friends and Neighbors,

First, I wish to thank the Editor of The Mercury for giving the candidates in division seven, space to state their case.

As there are many newcomers in our district since I first was elected councillor, I wish to point out that at that time more than one-third of the ratepayers had no road whatever. Now, every resident ratepayer has a road to his gate, with either sand or gravel on it. I admit we had to use some inferior gravel to achieve this end. In division seven where good quality crushed gravel must be hauled in from a distance, using three hundred yards to a mile, which is required for a fair road, the cost, on an average, would exceed $1,200.00 per mile. However, now that most of the urgent construction is done, it should be possible to use a better quality gravel.

I would like to state the school committee's position regarding the editorial in The Mercury last week. The Fire Commissioner of Alberta has trained, qualified inspectors, who inspect all public buildings in the province. At any time one of these inspectors has reported a possible fire hazard in our County, the county council has corrected it immediately. In this case when the inspector was called to his position had all the latest safety devices built in, and most school rooms in Alberta have only one exit. In his opinion there is no dangerous fire trap. If the fire inspector ever reports differently and recommends changes, the county council will see that those changes are made.

The only reason the school committee objected to the article, "Local Brigade Discovers Fire Trap", was because the article created a lot of unnecessary worry.

Carol festival to be at Community Centre

The regular meeting of the Tofield Community League was held on December 1st in the Community Centre with president John Roegiers in the chair.

It was the unanimous opinion of those present that a letter of appreciation be sent to the Lions' Club of Tofield for their very substantial cash donation to the League.

The annual "welcome to new residents" dinner was discussed, and suggestions made regarding improvements in procedure.

A turkey bingo is to be held on December 17th in the Community Centre, for which Dick Mathew will purchase the turkeys.

CAROL FESTIVAL

The annual Christmas Carol Festival will be held in the Community Centre on Wednesday, Dec. 16th. This event, in which the local choirs participate, has been sponsored by the League for many years, and is one of the chief events of the Christmas season. George McFarlane is in charge of arrangements, and the ushers will be chosen from the Tofield High School.

The Theatre Committee of the League reported a very welcome increase in revenue from the showers in recent weeks.

The New Year's dance was discussed. Jack Lamph's boys secured a band to play for the dance, and novelties have been arranged.

A request for a donation of $50 was received from the Boy Scout Troop of Tofield, and the League was happy to comply with this request.

It was suggested by Dr. Fraser that the League take as its centennial objective, the complete repayment of the debt on the Community Centre, and the incoming executive will be asked to do this objective.

The next meeting of the League will be held on January 5th and, as in the past, will be a pot-luck supper meeting. A nominating committee to select candidates for next year's officers is to be appointed by the 1964 president, John Feenstra.

Students hear PPCLI band

On Monday afternoon all Tofield students enjoyed a very entertaining concert provided by the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry Band.

From 1.30 until 2.50, the band played some lively selections, and Lt. Naylor explained the various musical instruments. The concert enjoyed by the students resident. Later from 2.50 to 3.30 the dance and music selections were entertaining choices of music after the selections and a short Cape Jeffers introduced the band and explained its background.

A colorful marching session was then played, containing several well-known tunes, to close the performance. The students and the guests enjoyed these concerts very much, and hope it will be possible to hear the PPCLI band again.

YOU ARE THE DETECTIVE

... let's see". Harrington paused as if in deep thought. "It was Monday afternoon . . . I knew because I had to hurry home to get dressed in time for the big political meeting and party in Community Hall".

You think for a moment, then ask, "Do you mean you were out on the lake fishing Monday afternoon in that rickety dory-pour of ruin we had all that afternoon?"

"Sure", Harrington comes back defiantly. "A little rain doesn't bother me".

"Well, maybe this will bother you", you retort. "I'm taking you with me on suspicion of having murdered Frank Tiller!"

What has made you suspect Henry Harrington's story?

SOLUTION

The well-known political leader, Frank Tiller, was murdered several days ago, shot in cold blood on the driveway of his home, just as he emerged from his garage. You have been tracking down all possible suspects, and your investigations have led you to the apartment of Henry Harrington, another politician well known for his bitter opposition to Tiller. Armed with a search warrant, you have proceeded to go through the apartment and, tucked in the back of one of Harrington's dresser drawers under the pile of shirts, you have found a gun. A test has revealed it as the gun which killed Tiller.

"But that doesn't prove I did the killing", exclaims Harrington. "I found the gun a couple of days ago . . . in the lake in Church Park . . . up near the north end of the lake".

"You found it in the water?" you ask with little interest. "And how did you do that?"

"I was in one of the rented boats . . . doing a little fishing, I was rowing near the north end when suddenly I spotted something glimmering through the water on the bottom of the lake . . . it's not very deep right there at the north end . . . maybe two or three feet. So I fished down into the water with a stick I had in the boat, hooked the gun through the trigger guard, and brought it up. I brought it home here with me, cleaned it up, oiled it, put it away, and thought nothing more about it . . . until you came along today and tried to pin this murder rap on me".

"What day did you say you found the gun?" you ask.

"I said a couple of days ago

Rumours have it that the ANDREWS-McLAUGHLIN FUNERAL CHAPEL Ltd. has been sold. This is strictly propaganda being spread by other competitive firms.

The accident on October 4th, 1964 at Cooking Lake which took the life of Donald McLaughlin does in no way alter the services extended by the firm of ANDREWS-McLAUGHLIN LTD. The McLaughlin family were well known and respected in Tofield and Ryley and will continue to be so.

The firm of ANDREWS-McLAUGHLIN FUNERAL CHAPEL Ltd. is being managed by Max Baron and Robert Long under the supervision of the McLaughlin family. Max and Bob have been with the firm for 24 and 17 years, respectively, and are well known in the district having attended most services in the past.

A HOME, GOING HOME

You could call this a house on wheels, but in a relatively short time from when this photo was taken this home was set on a prepared foundation south of Ryley on the farm of Mr. and Mrs. A. Bretrud, the proud new owners. This is only one of the 22 such homes built at Kaital Lumber during this year. The Rush-Bilt homes have supplied employment summer and winter to several local men as well as local sub-trades.

Robert Burnstad passes

The Mercury learned this morning that Robert Burnstad, 23, a well known baseball player and businessman of the Willowdale district, passed away during the night in University Hospital, Edmonton, after a fairly lengthy illness. Mr. Burnstad was in partnership with two brothers, Howard and Ronald, in the Burnstad Coal Mine in the Willowdale district, and was well known in the Tofield, Ryley, Holden, Round Hill and Camrose areas.

He is survived by his wife, Mary; four daughters, Lylis nine, Cleeda eight, Dolores six and Myrna four; one son, Larry two; his mother, Mrs. Bertha Burnstad, Willowdale; four brothers, Howard and Ronald, Willowdale, Garnet of Ryley and Norris of Fort Macleod, Alta., and one sister, Mrs. Irene Olsen of Holden.

The late Mr. Burnstad, who was suffering from cancer, had been in and out of the University hospital since last June. He had spent all his life in the Willowdale district.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed at the time of writing.

The reason people who mind their own business succeed so well is that they have so little competition.

Stores open Monday

All stores in Tofield will be open all day Monday, Dec. 21st, for the convenience of Christmas shoppers. Normally Monday is a holiday for business places here, but the exception is made at this festive season to give town and district shoppers the greatest possible service.

Carol festival postponed to December 21st

The annual Christmas Carol Festival, sponsored by the Tofield Community League, which was to have been held last night (Wednesday) was postponed, when the temperature dipped to 30 below this week, accompanied by a biting wind, blocking side roads in the district. The new date chosen for the program is Monday, Dec. 21st, and those in charge feel the presentation will be well worth waiting for. Local choirs and other groups will be participating, and students from the high school will act as ushers. For many years, this event has been one of the highlights of the Christmas season, and has won high popularity in Tofield and surrounding districts.

Pearson wins... well, soon

Well, the Prime Minister has forced his flag issue through the House of Commons, and won with a quite handy majority. When the votes were counted, there was a substantial majority against the Red Ensign, and an even larger group for the new flag.

Well, almost new flag. Actually, it still has to clear the Senate, and while this is probably only a matter of time, many Senators are girding themselves to do battle on the score, and they still may accomplish the project of defeating Mr. Pearson's Christmas deadline. Maybe not. In any case, they have no real chance of blocking adoption of this design as the Canadian flag.

In some ways, looking back, it might almost seem Mr. Pearson had already figured out the weeks and months of technical manoeuvring when he announced the flag at the Legion convention last spring. It's possible he had it figured that it could go two ways . . . either a quick and fairly easy adoption or a prolonged debate, which he would allow until the last minute, then suddenly lowering of the boom by invoking closure, when he could get his motion passed.

If this is correct, he fought a magnificent campaign, and we'd like to give him credit for it. We don't actually think it was that well thought out or planned, certainly judging from the conduct of the battle at times.

Fate of the issue was sealed when the Tory backwings told the Prime Minister to back off recently, but Diefenbaker is trying still to regain some stature by hurling the epithet of "closure" at the Liberals. It's all too unfortunate this is now a dirty word at Ottawa. Certainly there was every reason for it to be vilified in 1956, but Pearson would have earned more condemnation if he had not finally cut off the discussion. That is what closure is for. That is why it was invented in the first place. That is why there should never be talk of abolishing closure, because it is a useful and sometimes essential weapon.

Dislike his flag and his methods as much as we do, we still cannot but applaud the Prime Minister for his courage and decisive action in chopping it off . . . by closure.

Freedom or license?

When does the exercise of freedom verge on license? This seems to be the problem involved in a disagreement assuming considerable proportions between several members of the university faculty, and several other citizens, notably members of the Alberta government.

Almost 150 members of the university faculty signed a letter protesting the "growing atmosphere of restricted freedom in Alberta" last week, pointing out that the recent exercises of freedoms of speech, of religion and of association in Alberta has resulted in strong condemnation by some members of the cabinet and other influential people.

Minister of municipal affairs A. J. Hooke was quick to point out that while the faculty members wanted free speech for themselves, it appeared they would deny it to, say, cabinet members.

Part of the problem seems to hinge around the question of pressure being brought to bear in one way or another to quiet the voices which are found to be particularly embarrassing. We don't know that this is happening, but certainly the university men seem to feel so. In any case, is not this one of the facts of life? The professors, or anyone else, have the right to express their opinions any way they see fit. They also have the right, and the responsibility, to accept the consequences.

In olden days, heads used to roll for opinions expressed contrary to ruling or prevailing opinion. Heads no longer fall in the literal sense, but some of today's refinements can be nearly as effective.

This has always been the penalty for speaking fearlessly, and probably always will be. Mr. Hooke has the courage to express the opinions, face the public and take the consequences when the ballots are cast. If he wins, he's a hero; lose, and he's a has-been.

Have the professors the same spunk?

Don't sell the North short

Intelligent suggestions have been made in recent weeks by water engineers from the American side of the border suggesting a long-range water conservation and utilization program which would involve a two-country mutual commission to plan, develop and operate. It hinges on the near certainty that long before the year 2,000 there will be an acute shortage of water in North America, based on rapidly developing demands for water, and rapidly growing populations.

Speaking quickly on the matter, one of Alberta's government members agreed there might be considerable merit in the proposal, adding it would take a great deal of study and thought.

Naturally, since it involves waterways and power developments, not only the Alberta government, but several western provinces, and the dominion government, too, would be brought into the picture.

One of the first and more obvious suggestions from the American engineer was that water now flowing uselessly out of the North country might be diverted to flow south, creating more power along the way, and increasing available water supplies. At first blush, it sounds very practical and farsighted to thus conserve and develop water which is currently being wasted.

But before any treaties are signed, and before any plans are developed, let's hope the Canadian members of the committee will take a long look, maybe a visionary look, at Canada's North, and try to imagine the demands for water which will revolve around the certain development of this last frontier. Let's not sign away resources which will be vital to the effective development of the area. Wasted it may be today, yes. But its diversion could conceivably doom any major northern development before it ever was born.

Brain drain

The idea that Canada is gaining, rather than losing, in medical resources through population movement takes some getting used to. But its source commands respect.

The conventional belief was embodied in a dispatch in The Star recently summarizing a speech given by a prominent Canadian industrialist over the weekend. Mr. C. A. Pullock, of Kitchener. One quarter of the 56,000 Canadians who emigrated last year, he said, and in nearly all cases to the United States, were technically trained and went in search of more rewarding opportunity and higher income.

Some investigation proclaims the opposite. Dr. F. Sheffield, research director of the Canadian Universities Foundation, points out that numbers alone do not convey the reality of the matter.

In the academic field, the level

Too often people tend to ignore aching or sore feet. You should be aware that your feet need care and attention. Pay attention to minor aches and pains which can lead to more serious foot problems. Seek professional advice and assistance for your foot disorders; avoid "home remedies". Include a foot examination in your annual health examination. Don't neglect your feet; they're necessary.

Any fool can criticize, condemn and complain . . . and most fools do.

in the reservoir of university teaching ability in Canada is rising. Not only is the number moving in larger than the number leaving for the U.S., but their attainments are higher, and they are being attracted by both salary and research-facility advantages.

100F and Rebekahs fete Senior Citizens

(M. K. Westmancoat)

RYLEY, Dec. 14. -The senior citizens of Ryley and district were guests of the Oddfellows and Rebecca Lodge on Monday evening, Dec. 7, in the Legion Hall. The occasion was the annual Christmas turkey supper, and this year the guests numbered approximately fifty.

After a delicious supper, there was a nice program, enjoyed by all. Ernest Brown showed movies he took on his holiday trip last summer when he went to Nova Scotia, and Mrs Bertha Winsnes showed colored slides that Gary had taken while working in the Yukon Territory. Lloyd Wickstrom entertained with a couple of vocal numbers, accompanied by his wife on the piano.

HOSPITAL NEWS

SUCCESSFUL BINGO

The largest crowd ever to attend a bingo in the Legion Hall braved the bitter cold weather Friday evening to try their luck at bingo for Canadian Legion turkeys. Winners were Mrs. Alec Weiss (2), Johnny Fish (2), Mrs. Helen Pope, Irene Cardinal, Bruce Cheeyk, Lottie Cardinal, Tom Kreiker, Doug Kolodychuk, Son Kuhns, Dennis Patrick, Pete Cuipleo, Elston Solberg, Jerry Nelson, Deanne Powers, Bernie Patterson, Curly Kuhns and Johnny Candiliers.

The Ladies' Auxiliary Christmas Dinner was drawn for, and the lucky winner was Mrs. Merle Westmancoat. Mrs. Marguerite Fish sold the winning ticket.

The Viking Badminton Club visited Ryley on Sunday afternoon Dec. 13th, when some exciting games were enjoyed.

The Emergency Measures Organization held a planning conference on Police Service in An Emergency, in the Municipal Council Chambers on Monday, December 7th. RCMP officers were in attendance to give details and instructions, with representatives present from all points in the County of Beaver.

LEGION AUXILIARY

NEW EXECUTIVE

The 1965 executive for the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion, Ryley branch, was elected as follows: Maxine Reid, president; Mildred Somerud, 1st vice-president; Hazel Davidson, 2nd vice-president; Esther Anderson, secretary; Patsy Jeffrey, treasurer.

Although the Auxiliary is small in number, they certainly get things done in a very efficient way, their latest venture being the kitchen in the Legion Hall. It is now a model to be proud of, and a joy to work in, housing three stainless steel sinks, two gas stoves with ovens, lots of shelves and cupboards, and plenty of counter space finished with arborite in a lovely pink pattern that harmonizes colorfully with the tiled floor and the white woodwork.

David Harris is back home again after a few days spent in the Tofield Hospital.

EIGHT-ENDER

One of the rare events in curling was achieved by the Bob Rokes rink Friday evening when they scored an eight-ender.

4-H party honors Gail Kirkland

(M. K. Westmancoat)

RYLEY, Dec. 14. The combined 4-H club party arranged to honor Gail Kirkland was held in the Legion Hall on Saturday evening, Dec. 12th.

Gail gave an impressive talk on his trip to the Royal Winter Fair, if going to Ottawa and then - introduced to the gracious Governor General Geo. Vanier and Madame Vanier, and meeting Agriculture Minister Harry Hays. He also told of visiting Parliament while in session, and at the Embassy of their choice, and of the trip home in a jet aircraft by Air Canada.

At the close of Gail's talk, Geraldine Kosack on behalf of all the combined club members, presented her with a lovely ring, the inside engraved with the inscription, "Gail, Toronto, '64", for which Gail thanked them heartily.

The club leaders and District Agricultural Stan Powers spoke of the importance of these coveted trips to the "Royal" each year, and how proud they were that Gail had won this honor for 1964. Mrs. Margaret Booth led the sing-song of Christmas songs and carols, and Brian Westmancoat showed the movie films of the Dairy Calf Club Achievement Day taken last July.

Coffee and doughnuts were served as the pleasant evening came to a close.

Ministik news

While it snowed outside most people were warm and cozy inside on Saturday watching the parade and Grey Cup game at Toronto on TV. This is a far cry from when our ancestors would have to take the snow as it came with no entertainment to offset it.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill George and Georgina and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas George and family were Sunday dinner guests with Mrs. S George.

John Kleinsteuber of Edmonton has been building the cupboards and doing the finishing work on the new home of Mr. and Mrs John Vandermeer, who hope to move in before Christmas.

Lots of people know a good thing the minute another fellow sees it.

Solve a Crime

BY A. C. GORDON

YOU ARE THE DETECTIVE

Martin Matthews is almost unable to believe his eyes when he walks through the front door of his suburban home.

"It's horrible . . . Kate my wife . . . killed in cold blood" and there I was sitting in the living room only a few feet away!" He dabs at his eyes with a wad-of-tup handkerchief.

You have entered a small hallway, and on the floor just a few feet from the front door lies the woman's body, a bullet hole through her throat. To your right as you face the front of the house is an open doorway leading into the living room and to your left is a stairway leading to the second floor.

Matthews leads you into the living room, offers you a drink, and when you decline proceeds to mix himself a stiffy—laced heavily. You wait until he has taken a few gulps of his drink, then ask him for his story.

"It's hard to say just how it happened," begins Matthews. "Maybe it was a rubber and marker it was some fiend . . . or someone who really lost it as for poor Kate She did have a way of making enemies, me see. Well anyway, I was sitting here in the living room reading the evening paper when the doorbell rang. It rang two or three times before Kate finally came downstairs to answer it. I didn't pay much attention to what was said . . . just heard the murmur of a little conversation . . . but then the sudden sound of the gunshot. I was too shocked to move for several minutes . . . then I rushed out into the hall . . . and there was poor Kate lying there . . . dead!"

You sit in silence digesting Matthews story for several minutes, then you rise and return to the hall where you bend over the body for a closer examination. You notice that the woman's hair is all freshly done up in curlers, that her hair is still damp to your touch, also that her face is heavily coated with some sort of beauty cream. You look up at Matthews, who has followed you into the hall, and you ask him, "Was your wife preparing to go out somewhere this evening?"

"Oh no, we were in for the evening, but she had gone upstairs to work on her hair and her face for a club meeting she was intending to visit tomorrow afternoon".

"Do you keep much money here in the house?"

"No . . . just enough for incidental household expenses. Of course, there are my wife's pet birds . . . she keeps them in a safe in her room. Maybe the robber thought I was away from home this evening. I just cannot understand it!"

"I'm with you there", you reply, "I can't understand it either. But maybe a little more questioning will clear this up. I'm taking you to headquarters with me!"

What has aroused your suspicions?

Sunday School presents concert

(Mrs. G. H. Taylor)

HOLIDAY — Monday evening Dec. 14th, the pupils of the United Church Sunday School held their annual Christmas concert. All the children from the nursery classes to the junior classes participated in presenting a very pleasing and enjoyable program. Mrs. Hilda Jeffreys is also a very capable chairman and Mrs. Bruce Mathieson presided at the piano for the various songs and choruses. At the close of the program Santa made his appearance and each child received a gift and bag of goodies. Hugh Cruickenring, accountant at the Royal Bank, made a most cheerful and charming "Father Christmas".

The manner of giving is worth more than the gift.
—Pierre Corneille.

From the Scrap Book

The following was written for Christmas, 1941, some twenty-three years ago, when the world was plunged into the horrors of a second world war, and we are still living in a world today of chaos, trouble and unrest.

—Christmas 1941—

"Peace on earth, goodwill towards men".

At the first thought it seems ironical. Yet never since the close of our Lord's birth was the message of Christmas more needed in this world, than it is now.

The foundations of human life are being shaken. Everywhere is uncertainty, bewilderment, and anxiety for the future. Standards of honor and truth among nations have broken down, and over the earth hangs the terrible world war, with all the horrors of modern warfare.

At this time, let us remember our forces on land, on the sea, and in the air.

In workshops often, in weariness often, may the spirit of the manger be their guide and stay".

Let us remember all those who are suffering by reason of this war.

The wounded, the sick, the prisoners, the homeless, the hungry and oppressed, and all those that are bereaved, or in anxiety . . . may the Holy Spirit bind up their wounds and comfort them in their distress.

Let us pray for our leaders, that they may have wisdom and understanding of counsel and strength likely upholding that which is right they may obey Thy Holy Will and fulfil Thy divine purpose.

As we prepare a merry Christmas for our own children, for the children of the community, and the less privileged, remember the millions of children whose bodies are broken by war, whose minds are terrified beyond their understanding, and the children being trained in false doctrine, of the enemy, to cruelty and wrong. And as you thank God for the Holy Nativity at Bethlehem, for the Holy Family at Nazareth, let us make fresh dedication to the Holy Child Jesus and to the cause of children throughout the world.

Where He is worshipped on His manger throne, there is safety for His little ones and, because He is the friend of all the world, safety for the lovers of their fellows, safety for them that are true of heart; and so, in His name, we can still say "A MERRY CHRISTMAS!"

Wishing the editor and his staff and all our friends a Merry Christmas and a Bright and Happy New Year.

—J. W. Robinson.

Fire damages school

Fire which was confined to one classroom and a hallway caused damage estimated at $2,000 to the Tofield High School last Friday.

It is suspected the blaze was caused by faulty electrical floodlights on the new wing of the school, according to Tofield Fire Chief William Friesen.

County of Beaver School Superintendent H. A. Pike said that while the flames were confined to a small area in the school there was considerable smoke and water damage to the rest of the building, but school re-opened on schedule Monday.

There were no injuries.

Mr. Pike said the members of the County of Beaver School Committee were high in their praise of Fire Chief Friesen and members of the Tofield volunteer Fire Brigade. Their note of appreciation is carried in the advertising columns of this week's Mercury.

YOU ARE THE DETECTIVE

The young man, Bob Fillmore, has been found lying dead on the shore of the lake near his home house His skull has been brutally crushed in, and a blood-spattered rock lying on the ground ten feet from the body tells you what the death weapon was.

You are now interrogating a husky young man, Jim Gardner, who had been seen walking along the lakeshore with the victim earlier this afternoon.

"Bob was pretty well teed off at me", says Gardner, "I was out with his ex-girl friend last night . . . Betty Higgs. He sneered at me when I had something to do with her giving him the gate last week, and he called me some very uncomplimentary things. That made me kind of mad, and I fired some sarcastic back at him. Then he started throwing some punches at me, so I threw some back to avoid them, tripped over a rock, and fell right into the water. He stood there on the shore glaring down at me, so the water level kept me wheeled around, and walked away. I screamed out of the water, and sat on the edge of the dock for about 15 or 20 minutes trying to wring most of the water out of my clothes. It was getting real dark along about then then, too . . . It was about seven o'clock, I think".

"Are those the clothes you were wearing?" you ask as your eyes wander over the young man's wrinkled suit.

"Yes . . . I guess you could say I got a good douking, and it was cold one it was, too." Gardiner pauses as if to collect his thoughts, then continues. "I was sort of groping my way in the dark along the path toward the road when I suddenly stumbled over something kind of soft and yielding. . . I stooped over and put my hand on it . . . It was a body! Then I lit a match, held it down near the face, and almost passed out when I discovered it was Bob . . . dead! I'll admit I was plenty angry with him a half-hour or so before that, but then when I saw him lying there so cold and quiet . . . all that anger was wiped away, and I sure hope you will catch up with the one who did this to poor old Bob!"

You flash your lantern here and there on the ground near the victim's body, see nothing more of interest other than the blood - spotted rock which was used by the murderer, then you turn back to Gardner "Where did you phone me from?"

"Oh . . . . from, Bob's boathouse there. There's a phone in there . . . and the door was still open".

"And you didn't stop at the boathouse after you left the dock, and before you found the body here?"

"No . . . it all happened just as I already told you".

"Well, I'm sorry you couldn't think of a better story than the one you did tell us.", you come back. "You're coming with me and I hope this time you'll tell me the truth about this!"

What has made you suspicious of Jim Gardner's story?

SOLUTION

The fact that he told you he lighted a match in order to identify the body in the dark. Water-soaked matches just don't light!

School committee meets Dec. 8th

ed and that, in his opinion, no further difficulties should be experienced. It was moved and carried that the report be accepted and the correspondence received and filed.

A letter from Mr. David W. Mierchee of Holden, applying for the position of a school bus driver in the Holden area was referred to the Committee. Cr. Gibson reported that Mr. Mierchee had his A License, having obtained this recently, and that he wished to use Mr. Mitchie as a regular school bus driver.

Moved and carried that David W. Mierchee be appointed regular school bus driver for the County.

Information from Mr. Wm. Oprobisch, Secretary Beaver Lesol A.T.A., of an organization meeting of the Education Committee of the Beaver Lesol A.T.A. to be held at the Holden School on Wednesday, Dec. 2, was referred to the Committee. The Committee was informed that the Supt. of Schools suggested that Mr. C. J. Nord attend this meeting. The proposed set-up of the Education Committee and what it intended to accomplish was discussed at some length, and it was then moved and carried that the information from Wm. Oprobisch be received, that the report given by Mr. Pike and Mr. Nord in this matter be accepted, and that C. J. Nord be appointed to represent the School Committee at any regular meetings of the Education Committee.

Moved and carried that the requests submitted by Mrs. Doris Likness of Jarrow and Mrs. Marjorie M. Hansen of Viking, to live outside the School District in which they teach as provided by Section 302A of the School Act, be granted.

Moved and carried that the Bus Supervisor's Report be accepted and that his account in the amount of $40.25 be paid and that Mr. Wesley Ingram, bus driver, be advised by letter that he must immediately report any and all accidents that he may have with a school bus.

Moved and carried that Mr. Donald Geddes' resignation from his position as teacher in the County as at June 30th be accepted.

Mr. Pike informed the Committee that Mr. Geddes intended to go into the Ministry.

Moved and carried that Mrs. Edna Wideman be appointed teacher, Grades 2 and 3, in the Ryley School.

Moved and carried that Mr. Donald Kauffman and Miss D. D. Shackleton, whose marriage is to take place on December 26th, be granted leave of absence without pay on Dec. 24, 25, 28 and 29, and that Miss Diane Davis be granted leave of absence without pay, Jan. 4, 5 and 6, 1965, in order that she may be able to travel to her home in Vancouver for the Christmas holidays.

Moved and carried that the Christmas recess in the County's Schools be from 3:30 p.m. Dec. 23rd, to 9:00 a.m. January 4th.

STUDENT SMOKING

The superintendent informed the committee that the question of students smoking on school premises had been discussed at the last principals' meeting and that the teachers were opposed to the pupils smoking on school premises at any and all times. It was moved and carried that students be not permitted to smoke on school premises and teachers only in staff rooms and offices during school days, this to include extra curricular school sponsored functions.

Mr. W. T. Mackiem of Western School Bus Sales Ltd. interviewed the committee at this time, placing before the committee a proposal whereby the Western School Bus Sales Ltd. would take over the school bus operation in the county on a mileage fee. The proposal was discussed quite fully and it was moved and carried that authorization be given to supply Mr. Mackiem with the information that he requires to place a concrete proposal before the school committee at a later meeting.

The committee was informed that a supply of typewriters was required for the schools and that it was possible to obtain these typewriters at the same price as the ones purchased in January of 1964, that is $139.50 apiece. There was rumors that a price increase would come into affect and the supt. and sec.-treas. felt that by ordering now some saving could be realized. It was moved and carried that 15 typewriters be ordered for the county schools.

Progress report on the building program was made by the supt. and certain changes that had been found necessary were referred to the committee for approval.

It was moved and carried that the necessary changes be approved and the report be accepted.

At this time Mr. Lars Olson, representing the local ATA, attended the meeting and discussed the matter of school office assistance which had been brought up at the November meeting and dealt with by motion 5:44/64. At the November meeting Mr. Olson had stated that there was no need to decide this matter immediately but that consideration should be given so that a decision could be made in the late spring. However, the rest of the school principals had felt that this should be resolved as quickly as possible. Some considerable discussion took place and it was moved and carried that this matter be tabled to the January meeting and that the members of the committee study the proposal in the meantime.

The committee was informed that Mr. W. Myers of Viking had purchased a 48-passenger bus to replace the smaller bus that he had used on the Lernedale route due to an increase of pupils travelling on the bus, and it was moved and carried that the purchase of the bus by Mr. Myers be approved and that his rate of payment be increased accordingly.

DODGE — PLYMOUTH — CHRYSLER — VALIANT

The School Committee of the County of Beaver would like to thank the Tofield Fire Brigade for its prompt and efficient handling of the fire at the Tofield school.

Without the methodical isolation of the fire to a small area, the pupils of Tofield and district would be without instruction and without adequate housing for a long period of time. The Committee is indeed grateful to volunteers who give of their time to protect the community. The training of the crew under the direction of Bill Friesen has paid dividends for the taxpayers of the Tofield district.

While not detracting from the work of the fire fighters, a vote of thanks should go to Larry Wilson (and his dog), to Jack Hardy and his crew, and to Bill Christensen and Ben Henriksen. A special vote of thanks goes out to all volunteers who helped to save the building.

H. A. PIKE,

Town council approves liquor store for Tofield

The Tofield Town Council meeting was held December 7th, 1964 at 8 p.m., with Mayor Dr. W. H. Freebury and Councillors Allen, Bosse, Everitt, Patterson and Swift present, as well as A. C. Francis and Const. J. Wall.

QUEEN STREET CROSSING

Correspondence from the Board of Transport Commissioners was read confirming acceptance of the Town's submission and stating that automatic light protection would be installed within ten months. It was resolved that the East crossing be closed.

WITHDRAWAL VETOED

A. C. Francis was seeking Council's approval to his application to withdraw from the Town of Tofield into the County of Beaver No. 9. It was Council's unanimous decision to disapprove of such action, fearing it would influence other withdrawals, thus defeating the purpose of the new legislation assessing farm buildings within Town limits.

The Chamber of Commerce asked for Council's opinion on the application of a Liquor Store for Tofield. After much discussion it was unanimously approved by Council.

E.M.O., representative Mayor Dr. Freebury informed Council that Father Scriven had agreed to represent Tofield in the Emergency Measures Organization.

APPLICATIONS FOR WELFARE

Council was informed that the Thomas Campbells are to be the treasurers of the Provincial Government starting January 1, 1965. The Secretary-Treasurer was given authority to deduct the taxes owing and the water deposit from the total mortgage payments owing to the Bank of Montreal by the Campbells to the end of 1964.

An application was received from Gordie Williams for welfare. The Secretary-Treasurer was instructed to check with the bank regarding his financial status before authorizing payment. An application was received from Mrs. Mc Eachern for Mothers' Allowance. It was left to Halvorson to check with the school nurse as to the needs of the children and to confer with the committee.

Application from the Attorney General's Department for authority to search under the Liquor Act was discussed. Council decided to grant the authority.

Chamber of Commerce sent a letter to Council desiring a poll be taken by Town regarding Monday closing. Council approved this and named Mrs. Halverson to take the poll.

4-H Club meets

The 4-H Club of Tofield met on December 10th, when members decided to hold a $50 raffle, to be drawn February 5th.

The meeting progressed with demonstrations on knots, how to put a heads on a lariat and a calf tailer. There was also a very interesting talk on how to conduct a business meeting.

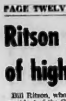
Ritson named president of highway association

Bill Ritson, who will retire as president of the Camrose Chamber of Commerce in January, has taken on the presidency of an other organization, even before his Chamber job is completed. Mr. Bill was elected president of the Highway 13-14 Association at the group's annual meeting held in Camrose on Dec. 15th.



Former president Ormond J. Koehli of Daysland was elected vice-president, and H. George Meyer of Camrose was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Re-elected as directors were Joe Krejci and Clarence K. Green, both of Daysland, Hamish F. House of Camrose and A. L. Gibson of Bodden.

The meeting was attended by 16 representatives of member organizations, who came from Sweet, Ohaton, Camrose, Daysland, Hardisty, Sedgewick and Viking. Also in attendance was Chesley I. Sayers of Meeting Creek, MLA for Camrose.

NEW NETWORK

Mr. Koehli read to the meeting a report clipped from a daily newspaper which said the provincial highways department is making plans for a new network of heavy load highways throughout the province, the new plan to be formulated in the next year. Asked if he could shed more light on the scheme, Mr. Sayers stated that he doubted the government means to give grants to the municipalities for highways to carry heavy truck loads. He said he wouldn't doubt, however, that the correction line road, the one in which the Highway 13-14 Association is interested, would be considered as part of the proposed highways network. "Mr. Taylor (Gordon E. Taylor, minister of highways) has given considerable thought to the correction line road", said Mr. Sayers, "and dedicated that eventually the government would take it over as a provincial highway, but he didn't say when this would come about".

Mr. Koehli read a letter from J. Gordey, MLA for Vegreville-Bruce, in which Mr. Gordey said he, too, had spoken to Mr. Taylor about the correction line road, and added that he (Mr. Gordey) would be available to help the association when required.

TO MEET MINISTER

The association will arrange for an executive meeting, early in the New Year, to draw up a brief for presentation to Highways Minister Tupker. Mr. Sayers volunteered to arrange the meeting with the minister, and suggested sometime in March. All MLA's concerned with the correction line road will be asked to attend the meeting with the minister, as well.

Modern Etiquette . . .

Q. Please name some foods that may be eaten at the table with the fingers.

A. Corn on the cob, olives, radishes, potato chips, celery, steamed clams, shoestring potatoes, artichokes (the fork is used to cut the center or heart of this vegetable); all forms of bread except spoon bread may be picked up — it is almost impossible to cut them in any other way.

Q. Isn't it considered poor form for a woman, at her second marriage, to have three or four bridesmaids?

A. Yes. The second marriage should be as simple and informal as possible, and the bride should have but one attendant.

Q. When a man is assisting a woman out of an automobile, should he take her hand or her elbow?

A. He should assist her by placing a hand under her elbow.

Q. When a number of girls are playing bridge at a friend's home, and the mother of the hostess enters the room for the first time, are all the girls supposed to rise when greeting her?

A. By all means, yes.

Q. When eating with a fork, may pieces of meat be speared with the fork held prongs-down?

A. It is all right to spear the meat with down-pointing prongs, but the fork should be lifted to the mouth with the prongs upward.

Q. When sending a wedding gift, would it be all right to enclose one's business card as identification of the sender?

A. Never! Either enclose your social card, or if you don't have one, a plain white card with your name penned on it.

Q. When drinking from a goblet, how do you hold the goblet?

A. It is held firmly between thumb and forefinger at the juncture of the bowl of the stem and at the bottom of the flared part of the goblet.

Q. What is the correct way to acknowledge an invitation to a christening?

A. Either by note or telephone is correct.

The Premier's Message Christmas 1964

HONORABLE E. C. MANNING

For over 20 years it has been my privilege, on behalf of the Government of Alberta, to convey Christmas greetings to the citizens of this province. It is important that I welcome this opportunity to wish each of you Alberta's richest heritage and every happiness again this Christmas.

This is a joyous season, a time when we all delight to observe the years as they pass with eyes aglow upon the Christmas tree in all its finery and thrill at the pleasure they display as they open their gifts. Those of us who are further along the path of life have many fond memories of that same era but, at the same time, our thoughts are sobered by the knowledge that there are many places in the world where anxiety and even tragedy overside the joys of Christmas and obscure the events which almost 2000 years ago heralded the birth of Christ.

No words can enhance the message voiced by the heavenly choirs when they announced the coming of the Prince of Peace to the world's first Christmas Eve. That message of peace on earth, good will towards men, has re-echoed down the centuries ever since. Notwithstanding our human failures the fact remains that the central figure of the Christmas season still offers to mankind the one and sure blessed hope of true peace and good will in this troubled world. It rests with individuals and nations to decide whether they will accept His solutions to our human problems or whether we will struggle on in failure by ourselves.

We, in this province and nation, who have so much for which to be thankful, should be mindful especially of those less fortunate than ourselves as we pause at this season to return thanks to God for His goodness to us and His concern for all mankind.

On behalf of all members of the government, I extend sincere good wishes to each of you for a very joyous Christmas and a happy and purposeful New Year.

Premier of Alberta.

Wishing you all the joys and blessings of Christmas.
